San Francisco, March 2.—Carrie Nation has been arrested at the Grand hotel on charges of malicious mischief preferred by a Montgomery street saloonkeeper in whose place she broke a bottle of whisky last night. At an early hour this morning she was released on bail furnished by her manager.

DOWLING AND LEWIS HAVE FIGHT IN HOUSE

Over Bill to Cut Fees of Marshals. Measure For the Use of Voting Machines.

FROM A STAFF CORRESPONDENT

St. Paul, March 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—There was a general little tilt this morning between two members of the St. Louis county delegation, Mr. Dowling and Capt. Lewis, over the bill introduced by the latter, cutting down the fees and mileage paid to marshals for bringing prisoners to Duluth from the range towns. Mr. Dowling opposed the bill and made a speech against it, but it was recommended to pass in committee of the whole. The bill was introduced by Mr. Lewis at the request of County Attorney McClintock and it passed it would make a considerable saving in expenses of the county.

Mr. Dowling also introduced a bill providing that where officers travel over thirty miles to bring their prisoners in they shall not be paid mileage, but shall receive $5 per day and their actual traveling expenses paid out of cash.

Mr. Dowling also introduced a bill including sheriffs and deputy sheriffs, and also so it includes city marshals, and also a criminal. Mr. Dowling in opposing the bill said that it was a move to cut the ranges out of what little political profit Duluth had left them, which was very little.

Capt. Lewis in answer said that it was simply a move to save money for St. Louis county, which it would do.

Mr. Armstrong of Hennepin county, in introducing a new voting machine bill, while opposing the bill, introduced a bill providing that city marshals of county marshals may purchase voting machines that have been approved by the Minnesota voting machine commission, for which the bill also provides. The commission is to consist of three men, two of whom are to be master marshals, and the third an attorney, and it is to examine the machine before they are permitted to be used in all elections, and where they are in use the voting machine may be crossed to districts including 600 voters.

Mr. Cole of Cass county, introduced a bill, authorizing the construction of railroad and warehouse commissioners under the present election laws, and election shall be strictly non-partisan. Nothing must appear on the ballot of any candidate that has been approved by the Minnesota voting machine commission, for which the bill also provides. The commission is to consist of three men, two of whom are to be master marshals, and the third an attorney, and it is to examine the machine before they are permitted to be used in all elections, and where they are in use the voting machine may be crossed to districts including 600 voters.

Mr. Clague of Redwood county introduced a bill designed to give the state a little more show in criminal cases by increasing its allowance of pecuniary allowances of jurors. The state now has seven per centum to twenty for the state in cases involving hanging or life imprisonment. There was a general little tilt this morning between two members of the St. Louis county delegation, Mr. Dowling and Capt. DELAWARE AT LAST ELECTS TWO UNITED STATES SENATORS

As Result of Prolonged Caucus Congressman Ball and State Senator Allee Are Chosen.

Dover, March 2.—Congressman Ball, for the short term, and State Senator Allen for the long term, have been elected United States senators.

Dover, Del., March 2.—In anticipation of the election of a United States senator the crowd at Dover today broke all records. Col. Dick, secretary of the Republican national committee, reached here at 11 a. m., and went into the Hotel Richardson.

J. Edward Addicks arrived ahead of Mr. Dick, after a conference with his state central committee, and appeared at the state house, accompanied by State Chairman Allee, who is regarded as his candidate for senator in the event of an election. Later Mr. Addicks went into the Union Republican chairman. Democratic State Chairman Willard Saulsbury, accompanied by former Senator Kenney, Peter J. Ford, Dr. Willard, joined the Democratic caucus at 11 a. m. They took with them a paper agreeing to elect two regular Republicans in order to beat the Addicks program.

Meanwhile the ten regular Republicans were in caucus at the Richardson hotel. Their first ballot resulted: Ball, 5; Higgins, 5. Representatives Price and Tyre, Republicans, who have been friendly to Addicks, left the regular Republican caucus and went to the meeting of the Union Republicans, where they were greeted with much applause and enthusiasm.

The Union Republican caucus named J. Frank Allee as their candidate for United States senator and agreed with caucus by invitation of Dr. Moore, its regular Republican vote to the same as on Friday and then take a recess till 3 o'clock, when two senators will be elected.

The Democrats were unanimous for one regular Republican but were hopelessly divided as to supporting two. Mr. Addicks appeared in the assembly hall at 12 o'clock and applause and hisses greeted him.

The thirty-fifth ballot for United States senator resulted as follows: Long term—Addicks, 21; Saulsbury, 21; Dupont, 8; Higgins, 2. Short term—Addicks, 16; Kenny, 21; Higgins, 8; Hill, 2; Richardson, 2. No election.

Both Republican factions are now agreed on the Union Republican proposition. The regulars may have to nominate a dark horse to satisfy the Higgins men, and in this event the choice will probably be State Senator Sparks.

SEVERAL LIVES LOST BY FLOODS

Rivers Continue to Rise in the East, Although in Most Cases the Danger Is Past.

Toledo, Ohio, March 2.—Although the danger of a serious flood in Toledo passed today when the ice moved out of the Maumee river, it is not true of other cities in this section of Ohio.

Specials from Northwestern Ohio towns show that the situation is serious at Findlay, Lima, Tiffin, Marysville, and other cities. The water has raised the level of the Maumee river, and the fact that the loss is heavy, as a great as in many previous floods, when the water did not reach as high a stage. Indirectly the loss is heavy, as all the mills and factories fronting the two rivers have been compelled to close and probably 40,000 men will be idle for several days.

Throughout all Western Pennsylvania the streams everywhere overflowed their banks and caused much damage. At Findlay, the water has raised the level of the Maumee river, and the fact that the loss is heavy, as a great as in many previous floods, when the water did not reach as high a stage. Indirectly the loss is heavy, as all the mills and factories fronting the two rivers have been compelled to close and probably 40,000 men will be idle for several days.

At Fremont, David Devalley attempted to pass a low spot. He was swept away by the current and drowned. All the rivers are higher than they have been for twenty years, steam and electric railroads have been washed out and bridges are in danger. Persons living in the lowlands have abandoned their homes.

Pittsburg, March 2.—The rivers are again almost within their banks, and as the water is falling rapidly here and at the headwaters, the worst of the flood may be considered as over. At 10 o'clock this morning the Allegheny was receding at the rate of half a foot an hour. Only a 1 1/2 dozen times in a century has the record of yesterday been beaten, but notwithstanding this and the fact that the loss is heavy, as a great as in many previous floods, when the water did not reach as high a stage. Indirectly the loss is heavy, as all the mills and factories fronting the two rivers have been compelled to close and probably 40,000 men will be idle for several days.

Pittsburg, March 2.—The rivers are flow prevails in the lowlands as far south as Helena.

There has been no break in the levee systems. Cincinnati, March 2.—The Ohio river will reach the danger line, fifty feet, by noon Tuesday, and will probably continue to rise Wednesday. The rise here the first twenty-four hours has been 6.4 feet. With the rapid fall at Pittsburgh and at Charleston, W. Va., where the Kanawha fell two feet, and with continued cold the rise here will not probably be destructive.

Huntington, W. Va., March 2.—The Ohio river rose four feet and is rising rapidly. The Big Sandy, the Twelve Mile and the Guyandotte are booming and great damage has resulted to timbermen owing to the breaking of beams. In Ceredo fifty families have been driven from their homes.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., March 2.—The danger of the flood ended today when the river, after reaching twenty-two feet, began to fall. This was due to the cold weather which has ended the thaw.

TWO TRAINS COLLIDE ON TRESTLE

Fort Scott, Kan., March 2.—Missouri Pacific passenger train No. 40, which left Wichita yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock for St. Louis via Fort Scott, Rich Hill and Pleasant Hill, collided head-on with a freight train on a trestle four miles west of Fort Scott during the night. The engines were completely telescoped, but none of the passenger coaches were turned over. Twenty or more passengers sustained cuts and bruises, but none were dangerously hurt. James Garrett, of Eldorado, Kan., the passenger engineer, jumped and his left leg was broken and his right hip dislocated. Walter Smith, a fireman, was caught between the tank and the baggage car and several ribs were broken. The injured were brought to Mercy hospital in this city.

The accident resulted from the fact that the freight crew, unable to run their train on a siding in time to give the passenger a clearance, failed to send out a flag.

DR. CYRUS EDSON SAYS THAT GRIP IS VERY CONTAGIOUS

It Is an Air-Borne Disease and Is Acquired By Breathing In the Germs—He Gives a Few Pointers on How to Avoid It.

New York, March 2.—Dr. Cyrus Edson in discussing the present epidemic of grip in this city, is quoted today as saying:

"Grip is contagious and if the public were fully aware of that fact many unnecessary infections would be avoided. The grip germ, a spirillum, or bacillus, located itself principally in the mucous membranes of the respiratory tract, and it is an air-borne disease. One acquires it by breathing in the germs. Ample evidence of its contagiousness is found by its passage through a fan, by a city or a section of the country, traveling along the ordinary lines of travel. It is in this way that it was brought to this country some fifteen years ago, coming in steamers from Europe.

A great mistake is made by the man who returns to his work too soon after an attack of the grip. To avoid catching the grip, keep your hands clean and keep your feet dry. If your baby has the grip, don't kiss it. If your stenographer has the grip, send him home until she gets well. If your friend has the grip, send him flowers and regrets, but don't call on him until he is well. Don't get tired, and above all, keep warm and dry. When you get the grip, take a dose of physic, go to bed and send for a doctor."

shows that it has spread all over the province. It is also on the increase in the West. The big waterway of that port and the three new launches with European officers have been ordered to quarantine. The Pacific brought details of the famine which is devastating five provinces in the northern part of Japan. There are in all 150,000 persons completely destitute and many thousands are dying. The Japanese government has started to boycott a Japanese bank. The Japanese government is protesting strongly. The government of Korea has also refused to allow Japanese to trade with the Japanese.

THE CHINESE REBELS HAD AN ELABORATE PLAN FOR UPRISING

Arranged to Rise at a Signal on Jan. 28, and Way-lay and Murder Mandarins and High Officials and to Sack Treasury at Canton.

Vietnam, H. C., March 2.—Further particulars were received by the steamer Pak Ling, which arrived from Hong Kong, where a number of rebels were arrested and boats laden with guns and uniforms were seized. Several hundred recruits were raised in Hong Kong and several thousand uniforms, quantities of arms, ammunition, canned provisions and food supplies had been dispatched to Canton. The rebels had arranged to rise at a signal on Jan. 28 at the beginning of the New Year celebration and waylay and murder the mandarins and high officials. They were to be started at various parts of Canton and the treasury sacked. The British gunboats in the harbor were to be attacked once to Canton when the plot was discovered. To aid in the sack of Canton a force of rebels under Col. Chen were hidden at a small cove not far distant from Canton when the signal was given. The gates of Canton have been kept closed since the intended uprising and numbers of arrests and summary executions have taken place. Col. Dougherty, of the British legation at Peking, has arrived at Canton to make a report to his government on the Kwang Sik rebellion. The latest news of this rebellion shows that it has spread all over the province. It is also on the increase in the West. The big waterway of that port and the three new launches with European officers have been ordered to quarantine. The Pacific brought details of the famine which is devastating five provinces in the northern part of Japan. There are in all 150,000 persons completely destitute and many thousands are dying. The Japanese government has started to boycott a Japanese bank. The Japanese government is protesting strongly. The government of Korea has also refused to allow Japanese to trade with the Japanese.

News is also given from Korea of fighting between Russians and Japanese over the acquisition of land at Mokpo harbor. Korea is encouraging the emigration of its natives to Hawaii. Several hundred are to leave shortly. The steamer Laertes which has arrived at Singapore reports having picked up a steam launch with the dead body of an European identified as Capt. Cannon on board. The launch was thought to have sailed from the Philippines. The Laertes towed the vessel to Singapore.

THE PRESIDENT CALLS AN EXTRA SESSION OF SENATE

Will Assemble at Capitol on March Fifth. No Hope For Treaties at Present Session.

Washington, March 2.—The president today issued the following proclamation:

By the President of the United States of America—A Proclamation: Whereas, public interests require that the senate should convene in extraordinary session, therefore, I, Theodore Roosevelt, president of the United States of America, do hereby proclaim and declare that an extraordinary session requires the senate of the United States to convene at the capitol in the city of Washington on the fifth day of March next, at 12 o'clock noon, of which all persons who shall at that time be entitled to act as members of that body are hereby to take notice.

Given under my hand and seal of the United States at Washington the second day of March in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and three, and of the independence of the United States the one hundred and twenty-seventh. By the President, THEODORE ROOSEVELT. JOHN HAY, Secretary of State.

Washington, March 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—In the extraordinary session of the senate, which has been called for March 5, there will be a number of treaties to consider besides the Cuba reciprocity convention. The two former are the most important, and there is doubt whether any of the European reciprocity treaties will even be taken up, as the opposition to them all is very strong. The protest against the seating of Reed Smoot, a senator from Utah, promises to develop into a fight almost as bitter as that against Roberts in the house, but thus far no real evidence has been produced to show that Smoot is, or ever has been, a bigamist or polygamist. The general opinion seems to be that unless this charge is substantiated the effort to keep him out of the seat to which he has been elected will fail. Not a senator seen thus far appears to believe that his oath as an apostle of the Mormon church disqualifies him from subscribing to the senatorial oath.

Washington, March 2.—The president today signed a proclamation calling an extraordinary session of the senate of the Fifty-eighth congress to meet March 5.

This is rendered necessary by the persistent neglect of the present senate to act on important matters before it. During the brief executive session Saturday, made necessary by the extraordinary actions of Senator Hawkins of Utah, who persisted in discussing the Panama and Cuban treaties in public, a formal announcement was made that no serious effort would be initiated now to pass the two treaties.

Senator Morgan of Alabama had announced his determination of talking to the end of the session. The Republican leaders know this probably would mean his death, and they were not willing to assume any such responsibility. Therefore they notified the Democrats that the attempt to ratify the Panama canal and Cuban reciprocity treaties will be abandoned for this session of congress.

President Roosevelt was notified that fore Wednesday noon, and has therefore issued the call for an extra session. The Republican leaders believe they can ratify both treaties within a few weeks, because the Democrats will see that it is hopeless to illustrate in view of the fact that there is no limit at all to an extra session of the senate.

WIFE AND MOTHER OF BURDICK ARE PLACED IN THE SWEAT BOX

Examined Thoroughly to Ascertain What They Know of Murder Which Occurred on Last Thursday Night—They Deny All Knowledge of Perpetrators.

Buffalo, March 2.—Mrs. Burdick, widow of E. L. Burdick, who was murdered at his home here last Thursday night, and Mrs. Hull, her mother, were examined at the Buffalo police station today by the district attorney, who was taken upon their return from Canastota, where they had attended the funeral of the murdered man.

Mrs. Hull was first questioned by District Attorney Cusackworth and Assistant Superintendent of Detective Cusack. She said she knew nothing of what had happened in the morning. She heard no sounds in the night, heard nothing of any voice whatever, and awoke in the morning ignorant of any tragedy. She denied positively that her relations with Mr. Burdick were unfriendly and emphatically declared she knew of no one in the household had anything to do with the crime or knew of it until morning. Mrs. Burdick was next questioned at length as to what she could offer to throw light upon the case. She said that after the murder she both women went back to the Ashland avenue home.

The district attorney said after they had gone. "We examined Mrs. Hull and Mrs. Burdick for the purpose of completing the examination of all those present in the house on the night the murder occurred, and to ascertain from Mrs. Burdick, if possible, who, in her judgment, might have been actuated to commit such a crime."

Mr. Cusack said he was still of the opinion that the murderer is a woman.

COLORADO & SOUTHERN MANAGER ISSUES ULTIMATUM TO STRIKERS

Gave Men Until Sunday Noon to Report and Hired Back Many—Says In Future No Consideration Will Be Given the Strikers.

Denver, March 2.—General Manager Herbert, of the Colorado & Southern railroad, says that so far as the railroad is concerned the strike at the machine shops of the company in several cities is at an end. No concession will be given in the future to the requests of the strikers or their representatives. He has issued orders that the instructions contained in his recent circular giving the men until noon yesterday to report for work or else be barred shall be obeyed in every particular. Mr. Herbert says that the company has all the men that can be used consistently. According to Mr. Herbert men who were out at Como, about thirty in number, applied for reinstatement within the limit mentioned in his ultimatum and were taken back. About half a dozen union men asked for and were given their old positions in the Denver shops. In addition to these new men from points in Kansas and Nebraska have just been given employment in the shops here and fifteen more are expected to go to work very soon.

The strikers assert that the desertion from their ranks because of the circular above mentioned have been insignificant. They declare that the fight will go on to a finish.

JUBILEE OF LEO

Archbishop Ireland Speaks on the Celebration
By the Church.

Significance of the Event and Meaning to Catholics.

Archbishop Ireland of St. Paul delivered the sermon at the cathedral yesterday morning. The occasion upon which he visits Duluth are few, and the desire to hear him is always great. The church was filled.

The ceremonies were very impressive, solemn high mass being said, with Rev. William McGillick, brother of Rt. Rev. James McGillick, being celebrant; Rev. Father James Hogan, deacon; Rev. Father John O'Dwyer, sub-deacon; and Rev. Father Timothy Corbett, master of ceremonies. The music was very fine. At the offertory Mrs. James McAniff and Mrs. Leo Ball sang a beautiful duet.

Archbishop Ireland's discourse was upon the jubilee celebration of the completion of twenty-five years in the reign of Leo XIII. in the Roman pontificate and the significance of that event. He said:

"There is occurring at the present time in Rome a celebration of which the press of the country has given notice to ourselves, and to which it is not unwise for us to pay special attention. The occasion for this celebration is that the reigning sovereign pontiff, Leo XIII., has completed twenty-five years in the Roman pontificate. The case is somewhat singular from the fact that only three in the long line of sovereign pontiffs of the church have reached the twenty-fifth year in the Roman seat—the present one, Leo XIII., his immediate predecessor, Pius IX., and St. Peter.

In the Roman pontificate. Who is Peter and what is his authority? One day in Galilee, Christ, whose every step was a miracle, who held in his hands and in every act the credentials of the skies, showed to his disciples, heretofore called Simon, 'Thou art Peter,' and speaking in the language of the country and of the time, 'Thou art rock,' Peter in that language being the same as the word used to express rock, as it is in some of the languages today, notably the French. So he said, 'Thou art rock, and on this rock I will build My church, and the gates of hell shall not prevail against you.'

"Christ came to make proclamation of a new gospel, but not merely to speak in the air, leaving the winds to bear to distant ages his words. He instituted a society, making a constitution and designing a government, the mission of which was to repeat to endless ages his teachings and to minister to the needs of his people. He said, 'I build on this rock.' Peter, heretofore Simon, was the cornerstone on which the visible edifice was built, Christ ever remaining the true and ever-enduring cornerstone. The visible cornerstone has only such power as that given to it by the invisible cornerstone. Peter as the visible cornerstone was the consequent ruler of the church. To him Christ said, 'confirm thy brethren,' and thy faith fail not, to thee I give the keys of the kingdom of heaven, feed my lambs, feed my sheep. And so, when Christ withdrew his visible presence, Peter became the present and visible ruler of the church.

"After some years spent in the Orient, Peter brought his seat to the center of the civilized world, Rome. Near the Roman forum, traveled by its legions, planted his chair, that spiritual authority of the new world, that visible presence of the Roman empire and go far beyond its borders. The evidences of the existence of Peter's chair in Rome are admitted by historians to be clear facts of history. In spite of the objections brought by prejudice, there Peter governed the church for twenty-five years, and when he passed away, each successive bishop ruled. Clement at an early date was called upon by the Grecian city of Corinth to settle the differences there. Gaul invoked the pope's authority—everywhere we find the authority of the bishop of Rome in that time as extensive as that of the present day.

"This great fundamental fact is brought before us in the simple occasion of Leo XIII. completing his twenty-five years of reign—the origin of Leo's authority is Peter, the origin of Peter's is Christ, man-God who said, 'On this rock I will build my church, and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it.' What a promise that was! Christ coming upon earth in human appearance and in the obscure Roman province of Palestine establishing his society and entrusting it to a few fishermen gathered by him, and to these few fishermen saying, 'Go, teach ye all nations, and behold I am with you all days, even to the consummation of the world.' What a promise to that little society born so humbly! Endurance through ages! We know history, we know the ravages of time. What do they matter before us? Kings and empires rising today to the skies tomorrow are sowing the earth with their broken columns. Men and institutions coming and going. What is the record of the centuries? It is nineteen hundred years since that promise was made to these fishermen. What is there on earth today of things contemporary? Names, monuments, inscriptions, sepulchres, dust. Travel through Rome and they will show you where were the places of the mighty Caesars, but all seen in a vision of things gone; all that is heard is the echo of things no longer existing.

"And so we give celebrations because of the truth they represent. To us Leo XIII. is a great teacher. There is not one truth needed for society that he has not proclaimed. His encyclicals present a code of the highest justice. He has been ranked with the greatest of statesmen, with Gladstone and Bismarck, and no statesmanship has been of such value to the nations. He is the last of the greatest men of the last half of the nineteenth century and let us be glad that he is our chief. His grandeur is our grandeur. And in the presence of this great man of faith in the church, in the great truths which have come down to us through nineteen centuries, let us with new resolve cling to the Rock of Ages, let us cling to Christ, not only by every act and deed, it is much to be in the church, but it is not enough. We must be pure in lives, putting always the eternal before the temporal, living here in accordance with the teachings of the church that we live it triumphant in heaven."

"And what is that church established and preserved in this way and why was it established in that way through the ages? Why did not Christ announce his doctrine and counsel the organization of societies suitable to the different ages? The supreme mark of truth is unity and the supreme mark of God's wish is oneness of purpose. A beautiful column reflects the mind of one architect. Planned by many architects it would mean confusion. This is particularly true of revealed truths. They are beyond our power of investigation. They must be the same ever, independent of time and place. If mathematical truths are always the same so much the more so must be divine truths from God. It becomes the plaything of storms and billows. Therefore, wherever it is attempted to preserve Christianity outside of unity of government what have we? Controversy, discord, doubt, new organizations rising and falling, one with as much right as the other. What is under our eyes, but the chaos of movement and teachings. It cannot be otherwise. In the presence of this chaos, coming from lack of unity of government, I ask could it be that that divine architect would have built his ship and put no pilot at the helm. Did he erect his society before high heaven and then leave it to the whims of men and the winds of heaven without establishing in it a government, whatever might be its form, but a government? He did establish that government. He established that government in the jurisdiction of Peter and his successors down through the ages is found unity of government. Leo XIII. holds away is represented in this temple; it is found in the heart of every man in the hands of the sea, it speaks the language of every people and everywhere you go is the same credo, the same profession of faith, not an iota of difference. Whether in the East, in the West, in Africa, Asia, Oceania, or America, there is the same altar, the same immaculate sacrifice, the same offering of the heart, on everything, one faith rings in harmony through all these people. Leo XIII. is recognized as the divinely established ruler. In Christendom today there are upwards of 350,000,000 Catholics, hundreds of thousands of priests and a thousand bishops. How could all these be there without unity? Because while each bishop governs his own flock, Leo XIII. is the center of unity. One thousand and fifty million men are in the same boat, and all are rowing in the same direction. A sublime evidence of unity. And so we can stand by it. He said on this rock I build my church and to thee I give the keys of the kingdom of heaven, feed my lambs, feed my sheep, and why he gave this hierarchy to the church.

"Perhaps we are to ask where is the authority of the country, and so when we ask for the standard bearer of the church we ask, where is Peter? This Jerome asked 100 years ago in Antioch when three disputing bishops were met. Which one has letters from the Roman pontiff? said the Pope. 'The papacy' is our standard bearer. Everywhere is history are the names of the Roman pontiffs. Who were in the Catacombs? The bishops of Rome. Ask every country whence came its authority. England will answer through Augustine, commissioned by the Roman pontiff. Germany will say, through Boniface, commissioned by the Roman pontiff. Ireland will say, through Patrick, commissioned by the Roman pontiff. In the middle ages when barbarous invasions were demolishing all that was sacred what voice thundered through Europe declaring that the marriage relation must be recognized as sacred? The voice of a bishop of Rome. The church gave civilization and then Peter said, 'How could it do this if it was the voice merely of a man?' And so we give celebrations because of the truth they represent. To us Leo XIII. is a great teacher. There is not one truth needed for society that he has not proclaimed. His encyclicals present a code of the highest justice. He has been ranked with the greatest of statesmen, with Gladstone and Bismarck, and no statesmanship has been of such value to the nations. He is the last of the greatest men of the last half of the nineteenth century and let us be glad that he is our chief. His grandeur is our grandeur. And in the presence of this great man of faith in the church, in the great truths which have come down to us through nineteen centuries, let us with new resolve cling to the Rock of Ages, let us cling to Christ, not only by every act and deed, it is much to be in the church, but it is not enough. We must be pure in lives, putting always the eternal before the temporal, living here in accordance with the teachings of the church that we live it triumphant in heaven."

Hamilton W. Mabie. Of Hamilton W. Mabie, who is to lecture at the First M. E. church Wednesday evening in the Star Lecture course, the Cleveland Plain Dealer says: "It is seldom that Clevelanders have the opportunity to listen to anything so fine as the address of Hamilton W. Mabie. The Outlook, before the Alpha Delta Phi members and their friends at Association hall on Wednesday night. While the hall was not by any means full, Mr. Mabie can feel a satisfaction in knowing that he addressed the most intelligent people of the city, and that those who heard him were more than delighted with his oration. All who failed to hear Mr. Hamilton W. Mabie's address missed one of the golden opportunities of the year. Nothing finer has ever been heard in this city on the ever-interesting subject of literature."

TO ASK FOR PARDON

Albert Green, Convicted of Perjury, Will Apply For One.

Court Suspends Sentence Pending Action of the Board.

Albert Green, the convicted perjurer, will appeal to the state board of pardons for a pardon.

Green was indicted and convicted during the January term of district court, the charge against him being perjury in connection with his taking out a marriage license in this county. When he took out his license, Green made an affidavit that neither he nor the woman had been married within six months of the date of application for the license, also that the woman lived in St. Louis county.

At the trial it was shown that Green's former wife had secured a divorce from him last fall and that he had been refused a license in Carlton county, where the clerk of the court knew of the circumstances.

The case came up before Judge Engsign this morning on the application of the defendant, Green, for a suspension of sentence to enable him to make application to the Minnesota state board of pardons for a pardon for the offense of which he stands convicted.

The court in granting the application did so with the express understanding that sentence was suspended for the sole purpose of permitting Green to get his application before the pardon board, the suspension being in effect until April 16.

The court, in suspending sentence, remarked that because of the peculiarities of the case and a possible doubt whether the defendant understood the affidavit read to him by the deputy clerk of district court, he should have time and the opportunity to present his case to the board of pardons before sentence is pronounced.

Green's sole defense at the trial was that he did not understand the affidavit that he made to get a marriage license, and was not aware that he was breaking the law.

Senate Methods Are to Be Adopted In the House
Which Will Further Reduce the Minority's Rights
In the Discussion of Pending Measures.

Washington, March 2.—The Republican managers in the house have devised another rule to still further reduce the minority's power to filibuster and this morning it was favorably reported by the committee on rules. It adopts senate amendments, thus cutting off several roll calls and by a further provision cuts out a demand for the previous question or conference reports, thus eliminating a roll call on each report. The rule is as follows:

"Resolved, that immediately upon the adoption of this order, or at any time thereafter, the speaker may lay before the house the bill (H. R. 12, 189) to regulate the immigration of aliens into the United States, now on the speaker's table, and the senate amendments thereto, and the speaker shall at once take the question shall at once be taken without debate or intervening motion following the question.

OFFICIALS CONFER

Street Railway and City Officers Hold a Session.

Discusses New Street Railway Franchise and Other Matters.

A very important conference was held this afternoon between city officers and President C. G. Goodrich of the Duluth Superior Traction company.

The meeting occurred in the office of City Attorney Mitchell, and the subjects of improved rolling stock, extensions and the proposed New Duluth franchise were discussed.

The city is anxious that a 5-cent fare shall obtain out to the new public park at Seventy-first avenue west, and also that connections will be made between the Duluth-Superior Traction company's lines and the proposed new line up the St. Louis river.

If the two lines are to connect under present conditions with the western terminus of the Duluth-Superior traction line at Sixty-third avenue, it would be necessary to grant the New Duluth franchise with an eastern terminus at that point, which would mean a 10-cent fare to the new Fairmount park.

President Goodrich indicated this afternoon that his company might make the extension to Seventy-first avenue, connecting with the proposed new line, providing the city would make certain minor concessions on other points in dispute.

The question of rolling stock was discussed somewhat, but not extensively. It is the desire of the city officers that double truck street cars be put on all main lines, especially the West Duluth and East End branch. The street railway officials claim that with $25,000 worth of track and road bed improvements about to begin, the corporation cannot afford to build or buy any more double truck cars immediately.

WARM TIME IN HOUSE

Speaker Attempts to Prevent Filibustering By Minority.

Republicans Are Denounced For Doing Business On Sunday.

Washington, March 2.—When the house reconvened this afternoon the pending question was the adoption of the conference report on the Alaskan homestead bill.

Mr. Richardson, minority leader, in pursuance of the filibuster program, attempted to make the point that a quorum must be ascertained to be present before business could be transacted, but the speaker declined to entertain the point, and upon the demand of Mr. Payne, the majority leader, a roll call was ordered to settle the pending question.

The report was agreed to, 207 to 3. Mr. Grosvenor, from the committee on rules, then presented the special rule to put the immigration bill into conference by a direct vote, and then cut off the previous question on conference reports.

Mr. Grosvenor briefly examined the rule, and then yielded twenty minutes to Mr. Richardson (Tenn.), who in turn gave five minutes to Mr. Underwood (Ala.).

The latter declared that the rule proposed to force a vote upon conference reports on appropriation bills, carrying millions, after five minutes' debate on a side.

He taunted the other side for their inability to do business with deliberation. He also said that it was unfair that the immigration bill, which has been passed by the senate, should be thrown into conference without giving the house an opportunity to act.

Mr. Williams (Miss.) protested against the course of the Republican press in attributing the action of the minority to the intent to reverse the rule, and then yielded twenty minutes to Mr. Richardson (Tenn.).

He said the country should know that the situation was broader than that. The Democratic party was not acting in retaliation; it was teaching the majority that its rights must be respected. If reasonable time had been given to discuss and present the contested election case, he said, the minority would not have been under the necessity of putting its present position before the house.

Every parliamentary privilege, he said, would be employed to drive home the Democratic protest, and if, in the Fifty-eighth congress, an attempt was made to deprive a Democrat, elected by 6000 majority, of his seat, the same tactics would be employed.

Mr. Grosvenor, in closing the debate on the rule, remarked facetiously that when the Lord said "Six days," shall you labor and do all thy work," perhaps He did not intend to include on earth of the Democratic party. (Republican applause.)

Still, he added, He might have intended to include on earth of the Democratic party. (Republican applause.)

coupled three hours' time. The committee amendments were agreed to. An amendment was agreed to appropriating $100,000 for the construction of the omnibus public building bill. An amendment was agreed to providing that claims for rebates on tobacco shipped shall not be paid unless presented prior to April 1, 1903.

The amount appropriated for the payment of the claims was increased to $1,200,000.

At 3:45 p. m. the general deficiency bill passed the senate and the Aldrich financial bill was taken up.

Mr. Tillman criticized the appropriation of $100,000 for printing for the department of commerce and labor, saying it was out of all proportion. He likewise criticized the appropriation of $30,000 for special agents, remarking that it was inadequate.

Mr. Hale explained that Secretary Cortelyou had said that at the outset of his department he would need more printing than he would need hereafter.

Regarding special agents, Mr. Hale said that additional provision had been made elsewhere for their compensation and expenses, if necessary. He doubted if the department is conducted on a careful and conservative basis.

Mr. Hale could set a force at work between now and December large enough to use up the appropriation of $30,000.

"And honest enough," interjected Mr. Tillman.

Mr. Hale said the committee did not want to be misquoted by this department, which, he said, is largely in the public mind and has important and serious duties to perform.

CANADA IS MAKING

No Objections to Alaskan Treaty But to the Judges.

Holds That Lodge and Turner Are Not Impartial Jurists.

Ottawa, Ont., March 2.—The communications that have been passing between the Canadian and imperial governments on the Alaskan boundary commission will not see the light until after parliament meets, it was then found that the Canadian side will then be found to be in the right, while the imperial impression took no steps of any kind against the treaty.

The government having called the attention of the public to the public utterances of Senators Lodge and Turner, which in its opinion rendered them incapable of acting as impartial jurists, the government has decided to ask the court to set aside the decision of the commission. It is now open to either the Canadian or the imperial side to ask the court to set aside the decision of the commission. It is now open to either the Canadian or the imperial side to ask the court to set aside the decision of the commission.

The government having called the attention of the public to the public utterances of Senators Lodge and Turner, which in its opinion rendered them incapable of acting as impartial jurists, the government has decided to ask the court to set aside the decision of the commission.

Two Canadian judges and one British judge were to sit on the commission. The Canadian side was to be represented by Senators Lodge and Turner, and the British side by Lord Bessborough and Lord Dufferin. The commission was to meet in Ottawa, Ontario, and was to have a hearing on the Alaskan boundary question.

When it became known the principle of selection of the judges was not to be followed, strong pressure was brought to bear on the government to recommend as commissioners two Canadian judges and one British judge. The government has decided to ask the court to set aside the decision of the commission.

As an illustration of the temper in which the question of the Alaskan boundary was being handled, it may be noted that the government has decided to ask the court to set aside the decision of the commission.

CENTER OF THE UNIVERSE

Remarkable Theory Is Developed By an English Astronomer.

Earth the Physical Center of the Stellar Universe.

London, March 2.—It is not too much to say that the attention of the whole thinking world will be attracted to a remarkable article in the March fortnightly by Dr. Alfred Russell Wallace, entitled "Man's Place in the Universe."

The eminent writer has assembled all the latest astronomical and other scientific discoveries and all knowledge bearing on the subject. He deduces therefrom the marvelous theory: First, that the earth or solar system is the physical center of the stellar universe. Second, that the supreme end and purpose of this vast universe was the production and development of a living soul in the perishable body of man. It is impossible, he says, to see the view to more than to indicate the chief features of Wallace's great contribution to modern thought. He first reminds us that to the early astronomers the earth was the center of the visible universe, the sun, moon and planets, and stars all revolving about it in eccentric and complex orbits. Thereafter, as the progress of knowledge showed us the utter insignificance of our solar system, we have been driven to the other extreme.

The tendency of all recent astronomical research has been to give us wider views of the vastness, variety and marvelous complexity of the stellar universe, and to proportionately reduce the importance of our little speck of earth to almost the vanishing point. Modern skeptics, in light of this knowledge, point out the extreme absurdity of supposing that the Creator of all this unimaginable vastness of sun and systems should have any special interest in a single speck of earth, a degraded or imperfectly developed inhabitant of one of the smaller planets attached to a satellite of the sun.

Dr. Wallace then advances evidence from a great body of new facts and observations within the last quarter of a century that the sun's position in the material universe is special and probably unique. He first asks: Are the stars infinite in number? He points out that with every increase in the power of telescopes until recent years there has been a proportionate increase in the number of stars visible. There are about 200,000 stars between the first and ninth magnitude, the number at each lesser magnitude being about three times that of the next higher. Now, if this rate of increase continued down to the seventeenth magnitude there would be about 1,400,000 visible in the best of modern telescopes.

Telescopic observation and photographic charts show nothing approaching the number of stars that exist. As telescopic instruments reach further and further into space, the number of stars increases in the number of stars, thus indicating an approach to the outer limits of the stellar universe.

This conclusion is further enforced by the fact that the numerous dark patches in the heavens, where hardly any stars are visible, and which are not dissimilar to those upon earth, have been observed to contain stars. They have never been observed to contain stars, and therefore could such life have been originated and been developed on these planets?

The writers on this subject, he says, usually have been content to say, "The conditions of the stellar universe are such that life could not exist there." combining these two conclusions, has stated definitely that our sun is that distant star at the center of the whole visible universe, and therefore in all probability in the center of the whole material universe.

This conclusion is no doubt a startling one, and all kinds of objections will be made against it, yet it is not actually at all a great inductive leap to modern science that has been arrived at so gradually, so legitimately, by means of so vast a mass of precise measurement and observation and by such wholly unprejudiced workers.

It may not be proved with minute accuracy, as regards the actual mathematical center, that is not of the least importance. But that it is substantially correct there seems to be no good reason to doubt. It is the result of modern science that has been arrived at so gradually, so legitimately, by means of so vast a mass of precise measurement and observation and by such wholly unprejudiced workers.

CLOSE OF A YEAR

Sunday School Association to Meet Tuesday Evening.

Officers to Be Chosen—The Program in Full.

The Duluth Sunday School association, last July, became one of the most popular organizations of the city among the church organizations. It has grown from an attendance of fifteen at the first meeting to nearly 200 at the last, which was held in the First Baptist church. All the leading Sunday schools of the city have had representatives at its monthly meetings, as it has met in various places.

The object of the association is the mutual improvement of the Sunday schools of the city. Its method of work is to have a monthly meeting, at which the Sunday school workers are invited and given opportunity to discuss the topics on a well arranged program. One prominent feature of these meetings has been the supper which is served free to all the officers and teachers of Sunday schools in attendance, so they can go direct from the store or office and meet all the other workers in a pleasant social gathering before the regular meeting of the evening.

The next meeting of the association will be held in the First Methodist church, tomorrow evening. This will be the annual meeting of the association at which new officers will be elected and other important business will be taken up. The program is as follows: 6:15 p. m.—Meeting of officers. (All superintendents are urged earnestly to be present.) 6:30 p. m.—Social session. 6:30 p. m.—Supper. (No charge.) 7:15 p. m.—Reading of the minutes. 7:30 p. m.—Song service. Led by Paul Gilbert. 7:50 p. m.—"The Boy Problem." Personal experience of Dr. S. P. Long. 8:15 p. m.—Discussion. 8:30 p. m.—Hymn. By the congregation. 8:45 p. m.—Our progress. T. S. Thompson. 8:55 p. m.—Solo. Paul Gilbert. 9:00 p. m.—Reading of minutes of preceding meetings and report of treasurer. 9:15 p. m.—Election of officers. 9:30 p. m.—Suggestions for the coming year. 9:45 p. m.—Adjournment.

Rheumatic Pains Relieved.

The prompt relief from the severe pains of sciatica and rheumatism, which is afforded by Chamberlain's Pain Balm, is alone worth many times its cost. Mr. Willard C. Vail, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., writes: "At Riverside, Cal., I found at a drug store some of your balm and I bought two bottles of the same. If it is sold at this place please inform me. If not, please send me at once as I am troubled with rheumatism and neuralgia of the nerves and Chamberlain's Pain Balm gives relief quicker than any liniment I have ever used."

HEATWOLE IS IN FAVOR

With President Who Gave Van Sant the Marble Heart.

Washington, March 2.—Representative Joel Heatwole saw President Roosevelt again Saturday by appointment, and presumably talked to him about Minnesota politics. Again Heatwole was re-elected. It is quite certain that Heatwole did not contradict anything told by Governor Van Sant, for the very good reason that Van Sant did not secure a private interview with Roosevelt and did not say a word to him about political conditions. In fact, the president kept the governor at arm's length while here and indulged in no talk with him more important than allusions to the weather. When it came to talking about merger, which Van Sant thought he would like to do, President Roosevelt suggested merrily: "See the attorney general. Knox is a crackpot. I'll give you a note to him." Whereupon he wrote a few words of introduction on a card there are stacks of and passed him up the line. Knox showed Van the new "urrry-up-law" and told him it was to be put in force, and that ended that.

President Roosevelt has made it quite evident that he does not intend to mix up with Van Sant or any other politician of that type. He is cultivating friendly and intimate relations with Heatwole, who is credited with having the party organization of Minnesota well in hand and who is notoriously unfriendly to Van Sant. Evidently Heatwole's star is in the ascendant. If recent signs amount to anything, they mean that Heatwole is to be intrusted with the task of delivering the Minnesota delegation to Roosevelt in the next Republican national convention.

MANY WILL COME

Immigration From Foreign Countries This Year to Be Large.

Majority of the Tickets to Duluth Are Bought Here.

E. A. Lindgren, who in his position as immigration agent of the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic railroad is constantly in touch with the immigration movement, says that this spring is likely to prove a record-breaker in the movement of settlers from the European countries to Duluth and its vicinity.

"A peculiar feature about this immigration movement," he said, "is that the greater part of the tickets for the settlers coming from the European countries to Duluth are purchased here. There are two reasons for this. There is a slight difference in the price of the tickets. A ticket from Sweden, Denmark or Norway to Duluth can be purchased for several dollars less in Duluth than it can in those countries."

"The second reason is that in a great many cases the intending settler has relatives or friends in this country who have induced him to come here. The man whose wife, or the woman whose husband, has been brought back to health and strength by a pure food is not apt to forget. 'It sometimes amuses me,' writes a lady of Battle Lake, Minn., 'that no matter what I send to the store for or what may be forgotten my husband never forgets to supply us with Grape-Nuts promptly. Indeed I may say it is the one thing he never forgets.'

About a year ago when I began using the food I was so run down and miserable that it was all I could possibly do to struggle through my day's household duties. Through catarrhal trouble I had almost entirely lost the sense of taste and loss of appetite allowed. 'I could scarcely force myself to eat food sufficient to furnish me with strength to keep me up.' Just before this my husband secured my household duties. In a very short time after I commenced the use of Grape-Nuts I began to get stronger and the improvement in my health was so marked that my health is now better than for 20 years past. I do all of my own housework and for two months during last summer I had five roomers which, of course, increased my work to a great extent. I am never without Grape-Nuts now, and can never say enough in their praise. But as much as I think of the food my husband thinks more. Name furnished by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich."

CHILD'S FAITH REWARDED.

A Swedish Girl's Desire for Guitar Is Satisfied.

Stockholm, March 2.—Postal officials at Ost Gothland found in the mails a letter addressed in a childish hand to "Our Lord in Heaven," and returned it to the office here, where it was opened. It proved to be a touching prayer of a little girl 5 years old asking God to give her a guitar. When the matter became known the little girl's appeal was answered, several kind-hearted persons subscribing money to purchase the desired instrument.

ONE LARGE SALE

Only One of Any Importance Made During Last Week.

Buyers Somewhat Puzzled Over the Lake Situation.

Only one lumber sale of any importance was reported in the local market during the past week. The Richardson & Avery Lumber company sold to interior points 3,000,000 feet of No. 2 and better dry stock. The price is not stated but is understood to have been very satisfactory to the seller.

Buyers are here but are not very active. It is claimed that there is a puzzling feature to the prospective spring market in Lake Superior lumber for the reason that no charters have yet been made and the shippers have shown no disposition to hurry the matter any. It is also rumored that the Edward Hines Lumber company is almost in a position to corner the Lake Superior market for the coming season, having as it does the control of so large a lumber fleet, that it can force the carrying rate to still advance.

The situation is unchanged so far as the winter saving of the local mills is concerned, unless it be that the repair work at the mills which will start up in about six weeks on their regular 1903 cut is much nearer completion.

Logging conditions are unchanged. Although freezing and thawing has put the ice roads in splendid shape and the work is being rushed forward, the season is not so good as it was last year. Wages are the highest for years but the operators realize that the weather conditions will not last long and they must have the men. It is expected that good logging conditions will hold out until after March 20, possibly until the end of the month. Three of the mills at Cloquet are in operation, and repairs are well under way on the summer sawing mills of that place.

At Iron River, Wis., the Alexander-Edgar Lumber company has about 600 men employed at the mill and in the woods also on new railroad construction. The big mill is being run very fast and the shore comes the report that the Pigeon River Lumber company at Port Arthur is doubling its capacity by the addition of a double cutting band saw, giving the mill a daily output of about 200,000 feet of lumber. The company is also operating along the Pigeon river. The company will bring a large drive down the Pigeon river.

About 7,000 acres of spruce lands have been picked up by the Fox River Paper company in towns 28-10 and 11. Besides the pulpwood on the lands the company will have considerable timber and work suitable for ties and poles. The paper company is said to be purchasing other lands in the same locality.

Curtin & Robb are this winter cutting on a contract to supply about 700,000 feet of pine timber for the P. & N. G. mines of the Minnesota Iron company. His amount of timber is expected to be 200,000 feet. The company is also cutting to supply the mines for the season, including that already on hand. The contractors have about 100 men working near Skibo getting out the logs and making the shipments.

The Arthur Lumber company's logging road, the Mesaba Southern line, will have delivered at the St. Louis mill about 20,000 feet of logs. The company has 20 men at work in the woods. William O'Brien is logging about 20,000 feet this winter for delivery at the Cloquet mills. He has 30 men employed.

Houghton's strong battery on which they relied as their strongest department was unable to cope with the Duluth men, largely because Murphy was unable to control the sphere. Hubert pitched a good game after a little ragged work in the first inning, and his support was of the best all through the game. The fast base running of the local men was one of the brilliant features of the game. The two teams have now broken even on honors, as Duluth was defeated when it played on the Houghton diamond and Houghton got the same medicine when it came here.

The Houghton players exhibited the best of sporting spirit and won much favor with the Duluth crowds. After the game which followed Saturday evening's game, the Duluth men gave the visitors a little supper at the Metropole cafe in return for one which the Michigan men gave the Duluth boys on their copper country trip.

RESULT OF LIQUOR.

Frenzied State of Well-Known Superior Man.

Lawrence Brennan, street commissioner of the city of West Superior, created a sensation across the bay yesterday by a gun play that has landed him in custody. Brennan lives near Eighteenth street and Banks avenue and while sitting with his family in the dining room he suddenly drew a 32-caliber revolver and fired three shots through the floor, the family fleeing to places of safety.

Sergeant Louis Osborn, of the police force, who went to take him in custody, and when he found the street commissioner was greeted with these words: "Louie, I have been waiting for you. I would shoot. It is claimed that Brennan's frenzy is the result of an overindulgence in liquor, and his wife did not want him released from custody last evening for fear he would kill his son."

A Story of the Flood

There was a cloud burst and the grocery store basement was partly flooded.

The grocerman sent the boy down to see if any damage had been done to the stock stored there.

15 minutes passed and the boy failed to return; 30 minutes and still no boy. Then the grocerman investigated.

He found the boy there all right, seated well above high water mark; a package of Uneeda Biscuit in his hand; his mouth full of the contents.

"What in the name of common sense have you been doing down here all this time?" inquired the grocerman.

The boy looked up with a good natured grin; gulped once or twice; finally gained control of his speech and replied: "Geel! I ain't found a spoiled package of Uneeda Biscuit yet. I've opened and tried all of this big pile here, and this is the last package. They're just as good and fresh as ever!"

MORAL.—A hungry boy will "spoil" more good, fresh Uneeda Biscuit than a cloud burst.

VALUABLE PELTS

Trappers Said to Be Securing Exceptional Number This Year.

Grand Marais Indians Have Reaped a Big Harvest.

Old trappers that have been in the woods of Northern Minnesota for ten and fifteen years, say the business this year is exceptionally remunerative.

They are not taking as many pelts as formerly, but what they get are very valuable and high grade.

Last week three Grand Marais Indians sold pelts of silver gray and black fox that they secured in one month's hunting for over $200.

A very fine black fox was seen recently along the lake front at Beaver Bay. Several trappers were out in the morning, but none took effect. As the pelt of this fox might sell from anywhere from $20 to $30 a trapper is quite good deal of trapping excitement in that vicinity.

Reports that many deer are being slaughtered by wolves seem to have been exaggerated. "The snow in the woods at present is five or six feet deep on the level and the crust is not heavy enough to support a small dog, let alone a wolf."

Last Thursday six wolves were seen chasing an old buck up in Lake county and the deer had the best of it in leaping through this deep snow. The pack of wolves kept floundering around and one large fellow in trying to climb around the back disappeared altogether for a few moments.

Trappers say that the wolves have not been especially numerous this winter, and it is only within the last week or two that they have taken to chasing deer.

These woodsmen say that there has not been so much snow since the winter of 1887-88 and are hoping that no more snow falls this year, as the blaze marks on trees also indicates the depth of the snow. In running the lines the surveyor usually makes the blaze mark about the height of his shoulder.

Logging operators are anxious for cold weather rather than more snow. Several days last week were so warm that the logging roads got soft and seriously interfered with the hauling.

RELIGIONS COMPARED.

Paris Papers Prefer Roosevelt to the Kaiser.

Paris, March 2.—President Roosevelt's address in connection with the celebration of the 200th anniversary of John Wesley's birth already is quoted and commented upon by the Paris papers, which draw parallels between President Roosevelt's appeal to elite intellects to come forth from their cloistered seclusion and take part in the hurly-burly of humanity and the raw facts of actual life and the doctrinal and sectarian article entitled "Babel and Bible, Order and Disorder, Revolution and Tradition," written by Emperor William and published in Grenzboten.

The French papers point out that the Roosevelt study of the Bible, and the religious religion calls on men to work, act and fight and rely on their own strong arms and brains; while with Kaiser William the principles of divine right and the hand of God are paramount.

Although he has but four more days to live, Henderson still displays the nerve which has characterized his bearing ever since his outburst when he received sentence. His appetite remains unimpaired, sleep unbroken, and he is approaching death like a man who seems to have no fear.

GAS MEN STRIKE. Chicago, March 2.—A result of the discharge of thirty-eight employees who became members of new unions formed in the meter department and among the statement takers, all the union workmen employed by the People's Gas Light & Coke company were ordered on strike today. The company employs 300 men, only a small percent of whom are union workers. About 20 men are affected by today's strike.

NOVEL DEFENSE

Saves a Man On Trial for Murder.

Chicago, March 2.—Doubt whether a dying man said "Jack Cushing" in English or "checks tushing" in low German resulted in the acquittal Saturday of Jack Cushing, who was tried for killing Charles Heipel, a saloonkeeper, at Thirty-seventh and Morgan streets.

The novel point was raised by Attorney Robert E. Cantwell, when the state was sure of conviction. Heipel was found in his saloon with three bullet wounds in his body. Then Augusta Nicot was summoned and rushed to the dying man's side.

"Who shot you?" was her query, according to the prosecution, and he murmured and he answered in low German: "Where is your money?" was really what she said, according to Attorney Cantwell, and he answered in low German: "Checks tushing."

The two policemen who had been near the dying man told different stories. Patrolman Egan said that an inquiry had been made as to the name of the man who shot the victim. Patrolman O'Connor, of the Thirty-fifth street station, told a different story until he was stopped by Judge Neely.

"You are not telling the truth," Judge Neely said. "You are trying to force conviction. You ought to be removed from the police force."

THE CIVIC DUTIES

Dr. Cleland Talks to Ministers On "The City Administration."

Discussion of City Government In General—Citizens' Responsibilities.

"The City Administration" was considered by the Duluth Ministerial association this morning.

Dr. T. H. Cleland pastor of the First Presbyterian church, led the discussion with one of the most interesting papers ever presented along the line of municipal reform.

The discussion did not apply strictly to Duluth, but was sufficiently comprehensive to cover local affairs and municipal affairs in general. In part Dr. Cleland said:

"The plague spot and plague problem for America is city administration. The population is composed of heterogeneous elements. In American cities from five to ten per cent of the population is foreign born. Many of these are first-class citizens, but we must admit that many of our immigrants prefer to live in squalor, do not own their own homes and have a low sense of civic responsibility.

"We were once a homogeneous people, but today we suffer from political disintegration, unable to assimilate certain detrimental foreign elements. The city is a place of shelter for the vicious classes. It is a place of refuge for the vice, the gambling, the grogery and the harlot finding hiding places where they can ply their vocations with the least liability of detection.

"The professional politicians and demagogues find in the congested centers, where vast sums of money are distributed, a theater for the developing of their peculiar grifts.

"In cities the commercial spirit is predominant and consuming. Many men of large interests entertain the fallacious notion that, as the immoral pay for vicious indulgences, the toleration of these evils stimulates traffic and makes money. Then, too, many of our most prominent men are so absorbed by the pressure of private affairs or are lacking in courage and civic devotion that they do not give the right attention to their civic responsibilities and do not attend to the problems that affect the welfare of the city. They also seem to dread the ugly task of engaging in conflict with a class that hesitates at nothing to make money, even degrading to wreck the public-spirited citizen.

"They take it for granted that a certain amount of robbery is incident to government, and that evils will always prevail, and so they submit to the robbery, and retire to their homes content if they may purchase some immunity in the quiet of their own firesides and family circle.

"A difficulty is met in adapting state legislation to a municipality, and having a standard of legislation that is so far ahead of municipal sentiment as to become a dead letter. Where this is the case the highest minded and the honest unwittingly work together—honest in heart, but blind in vision. The grogery is found in cordial support of the same stringent legislation, though for entirely opposite reasons. The professional vice indulger, the adoption of a statute which public sentiment will not enforce.

"Legislation, therefore, should not be in advance of public sentiment. It should take the position that a Christian cannot cast a ballot for a public officer or a platform before his personal ideal, is virtually to deprive one's self of citizenship. Citizenship is a distributive responsibility. A man may lament that his neighbors are not his standard, but it is his duty to lead them upward.

"This points to the imperative duty of playing every means of educating the public conscience and instilling citizens to social responsibility.

"The average executive first feels the public pulse and then formulates his policy. It is the exceptional public officer that looks at his oath, and with the law at his back, defies public sentiment. The public gets just what such public policy as they have asked for with their ballots.

"We have great confidence in our public school system for the training of an upright, intelligent and virtuous citizenship. The schools are the sheet anchor of public virtue.

"The church-going part of a community has an influence beyond its members. It has the larger part of the commercial interests of a city in its possession. Its moral standing gives it weight. If this influence was united, awake and aggressive, it could cure the great bulk of the evils that belong to municipal life.

"But there are men on our church communion rolls whose standard is that their influence is on the side of a loose administration.

"The minister has much to do in bringing about better municipal conditions. In his daily intercourse with men he should be creating a better citizenship.

"The world is growing better, but it will not be redeemed in a day. Long centuries have intervened since the birth of Bethlehem and the present stage of civilization. The wheels are flying swift, the sun stands higher. The city comes down from heaven! will not arrive until we have more of Christ in men."

PAINTERS STRIKE.

About One Thousand Quit Work at Pittsburg.

Pittsburg, March 2.—In accordance with action taken at last night's meeting of the Pittsburg division of the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers of America, about 1,000 painters struck today for an increase in wages from $2.50 to $3.00 per day. Work was suspended in many buildings in course of erection, but on the large structures there will be no stoppage, the contractors having signed the scale.

NEW FOURTH PARTY. New South Wales members of parliament who voted against the government on the army debate last week made no secret of their intention to pursue a vigorous policy upon independent lines on military, financial and social questions, according to a cable to the Tribune from London. Winston Churchill is virtually the leader of this fourth party, the correspondent adds.

LAKE ORE RATE

Owners of Boats Anxiously Awaiting the Announcement of It.

Labor Question May Cut Considerable Figure This Year.

The one rate on the lakes for the coming season of navigation is interesting to many men, and owners of boats in the ore trade aside from those of the steel corporation are waiting anxiously the announcement by the corporation.

The question of labor will enter into the settlement this year it is said, and there may be serious trouble.

One outside shipping man said this morning that the labor situation was dangerous and that the demands being made upon transportation companies for concessions of various kinds might be centered on the ore traffic.

The estimated output from all ranges for the coming year is about 20,000,000 tons of ore, and the demand being made upon transportation companies for concessions of various kinds might be centered on the ore traffic.

It is understood among ore carrier men that A. E. Weiler of the Pittsburgh Steamship company, which does the hauling for the steel corporation as far as it is able, has already flatly refused on a basis of 20 cents a ton as the lowest possible price.

The men who have heard this are inclined to believe that there is something up when even that concession is made, though they don't know what it is. The ore carriers are coming closer together this year than ever before.

"I do not think there will be anything agreed upon or disagreed over for the next three weeks. I have heard nothing, at least."

OPENING OF LANDS

Reason For Delay In the Chippewa Reservation Case.

Forester Has Not Reported and Indian Allotments Not Made.

Secretary A. L. Preston, of the Commercial club, received from Congressman Page Morris today the correspondence that passed between himself and Secretary of the Interior E. A. Hitchcock, in which is acknowledged the letter of various Duluth people and business firms regarding the delay in the opening to sale and settlement of lands in the Chippewa reservation, Minnesota, under the act of June 27, 1902.

The enclosure also contains a duplicate of the letter written under date of Feb. 20, from W. A. Richards, commissioner of the general land office, to Secretary Hitchcock, purporting to explain the delay in the sale and settlement of the lands in the reservation. Richards explains as follows:

"In reply I have to state that on July 20, 1902, the acting secretary of the interior approved of the schedule of agricultural lands in sections 16 and 36, of certain townships in the Iced Lake reservation, and the four ceded townships of the White Earth reservation, aggregating 2,165.67 acres, and schedules of the pine lands and agricultural lands in the reservation of the Chippewas of the Mississippi, except as to five fractional townships not examined. Case Lake reservation, except as to the islands in the lake, which are reserved; two fractional townships of the Winnibigoshish and all of the White Oak reservation, aggregating 106,634.40 acres of agricultural lands and 181,410.42 acres of pine lands.

"In accordance with departmental instructions of July 30, 1902, the forester of the agricultural department was, on Aug. 2 and 23, 1902, furnished with copies covering all of the said schedules, in order that the forester may select the 200,000 acres of forest lands and ten sections of agricultural lands, as provided by section 5 of the act of Jan. 14, 1889 (25 Stat., 642), as amended by the act of June 27, 1902 (32 Stat., 469).

"This office has not been informed that the forester has made such selections.

"Section 5 of the said act of June 27, 1902, provides for the completion of the allotments to the Indians before the opening to settlement of the agricultural lands.

"This office has not been advised of the completion of the Indian allotments.

"Therefore the timber on the said lands has not been offered for sale, and the agricultural lands have not been opened to settlement."

MOVE TO DISFRANCHISE
Galway Was Lost In House of Commons.

London, March 2.—A motion to disfranchise Galway in consequence of its action in electing Col. Arthur L. Lynch, recently convicted of high treason, was defeated in the house of commons today by 18 to 48 votes. The attorney general moved the issue of a writ of election for member of parliament in place of Col. Lynch. Sir George Bartley, Conservative, proposed an amendment that a writ be issued simply because he was a traitor and read an alleged message from John Redmond asking the voters to elect Col. Lynch and haul down the blood stained flag of 1848. Mr. Redmond warmly denied sending any such message and explained that he was in America at the time.

Sir George Bartley then withdrew his statement. The amendment was defeated and the issue of a writ was agreed to.

FOUR THOUSAND
Employees Now on a Strike In Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, March 2.—Two strikes, involving 2,000 hands, were inaugurated here today. Four branches of the United Garment Workers of America, including garment operators, tailors, pressers and buttonhole workers, struck for better conditions, shorter hours and recognition of the union. The carriage and wagon workers and painters quit work because of the refusal of the employers to grant a new wage scale of $2.50 for a nine-hour day and a ten per cent increase in piece work. More than 1,000 men are idle.

CARBOLIC ACID
Used By Nebraska Woman In Attempted Murder.

Columbus, Neb., March 2.—Mrs. Sorlin Anderson, wife of a farmer living fifteen miles north of here, attempted to take the life of her husband and their 15-year-old daughter by throwing carbolic acid in their faces, and then swallowed the contents of the bottle of the drug. Mrs. Anderson is dead, but her husband and child will recover. Domestic trouble is said to have been the cause.

ALDRICH BILL
Likely Not to Reach a Vote at This Session.

Washington, March 2.—An effort was made today to secure an agreement to vote on the Aldrich bill, but several Democratic senators refused to consider the proposition, and it was stated by some members of the minority that there would be sufficient debate on the measure to prevent a vote during this session.

THE WINTER MONTHS

Their Mean Temperature No Different From the Average.

Long Distance From Being the Coldest On Record.

H. W. Richardson, of the local weather bureau, has compiled some interesting statistics concerning the three winter months just passed. The winter of 1902-1903 was an excellent example of the Duluth winter weather, the mean temperature being the same as that of the mean average temperature of the three winter months for the past thirty-three years.

The mean temperature for December was 16.4, for January, 22.5, for February, 14.4. The mean average for the three months was 14.4 degrees or the same as the mean temperature for the month of February. The mean temperature for the past thirty-three winters as shown by the weather bureau statistics is also 14.4 degrees, making the past winter neither colder nor warmer than the average for the past thirty-three years.

Although the winter months have passed much cold weather is yet due. The spring months are several degrees colder than the corresponding autumn months. The average temperature for March is several degrees colder than that of November. April is colder than October and May than September.

BILL TO END EVILS OF THE PASS SYSTEM

Provides For Passes For State Officers.
Bill to Settle the Sheriff
Complications.

FROM A STAFF CORRESPONDENT

St. Paul, March 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—Free transportation on all railroads in the state for state officers, legislators and employees is provided by a bill introduced in the house this morning by Mr. Mork, of Mille Lacs. And what is more to the point, the railroads are required to give it up free. This includes the members of the legislature, judges and state officers. The object of the bill, of course, is to do away with all likelihood that the giving of passes will be followed by a sense of obligation in the minds of the recipients toward the giver. By making a law requiring the roads to give up transportation whether they want to or not, the author of the bill figures that the evils of the pass system in legislatures will be done away with. The bill provides that the railroads must come down each year with actual passes on all lines in the state to the officers and employees included in a list that the state auditor is required to furnish in January of each year. If the holder of the pass transfers it to another, and he uses it, it is a misdemeanor; and if any state employee having a pass turns in an expense account for mileage he commits a felony. If the roads do not obey this law the attorney general is to compel them to do so in a civil action.

The biennial county option bill appeared in the house today, introduced by Nelson, of Hurler county, and it applies to all counties that do not contain a city of 10,000 or over, and it provides that where petitions containing the names of one-tenth of the voters are presented to the county auditor, the county must hold an election at which the voters shall decide whether or not saloons are to be licensed in the county holding the election.

A bill introduced by Mr. Dowling, of Eveleth, is designed to straighten out the complications over the boarding of prisoners at the St. Louis county jail, and also the housing of the sheriff. It provides that St. Louis county must give its sheriff and his family a residence adjacent to the jail, and that the sheriff, or his deputy, must live in it. The county must also maintain a kitchen, where the sheriff can have food for the prisoners prepared. Outsiders are strictly cut out of the business of boarding prisoners, because the bill requires that the county board must contract with the sheriff to board them, at a price to be fixed by the board, which must not be less than actual cost. The bill appears to have the sanction of the Iulith delegation.

NEW GROSS EARNINGS BILL INTRODUCE IN THE HOUSE

By Wilson of Hennepin County, Increasing the Rate on Railroad Earnings to Four Per Cent—The Wolf Bounty Bills.

FROM A STAFF CORRESPONDENT

St. Paul, March 3.—(Special to The Herald.)—The senate has a fat, stale and almost unprofitable session yesterday afternoon. There were so many about that the senate followed the example of the house in the morning and passed the calendar by, and so many of the authors of bills on the large general orders were absent that progress was reported on nearly all of them.

In fact, this condition has existed much of the time for the past week. It is only in the middle of the week, when there are no committees off junketing at state institutions, that a real day's work can be done. Pretty soon all of the junkets will be out of the way, and then, very likely, the legislature will settle down to that spell of real hard work that has been looked forward to so long.

The principal thing about yesterday afternoon's session of the senate was a new gross earnings bill, introduced by Senator Wilson, of Hennepin county, which increases the rate on railroads from 3 to 4 per cent. It does not provide for an amendment to the constitution, but it does provide for submitting the increase to a vote of the people. It requires that all railroads shall make a return of all their earnings, within and without the state, each year, and that they shall pay a tax of 4 per cent on the gross earnings within the state in lieu of all other taxes and assessments. The gross earnings in this state of any interstate road are to be ascertained by multiplying its average gross receipts

FIVE MEN BLOWN TO PIECES BY EXPLOSION IN CEMENT WORKS

at Easton, Pa., Scattering Death and Serious Injury to Many of the Workmen.

Easton, Pa., March 3.—So far as can be ascertained at this time five men were killed by yesterday's explosion at the Edison cement works at New Village, N. J. The dead are: JAMES MEYERS, New Village; DANIEL SMITH, New Village; NATHAN HOPKINS, Washington, N. J.; EDWARD PHILLIPS, Phillipsburg, N. J.; KINNEY.

Nothing but bits of flesh have been found of Kinney. The most seriously injured, all of whom are burned, are: B. E. Darling, New Village, chief engineer; William Stantz, Stevensville, N. J., right superintendent, may die; Harry Rose, Phillipsburg, N. J., day foreman; R. L. Goodwille, New York, chief electrician; George Bowman, timekeeper; Clinton S. Race, Easton; Alexander Wolf, Stevensville; Harry Wilkine, Broadway, N. J.

The explosion occurred in one of the large coal bins and was caused by the ignition of a quantity of gas. The day force had discovered a slight fire about 5 o'clock, but the men thought they had extinguished it. Foreman Rose went to the bin just before quitting time and as he opened a door a terrific explosion occurred. The bin was blown to pieces and the workmen who were near it were injured.

W. J. BRYAN THREATENS TO BOLT

New York, March 3.—William J. Bryan has informed his intimate friends in this city, says the Tribune, that if the gold and platiocratic Democrats triumph in the next national Democratic convention, he will lead his followers from the hall and nominate an independent Democratic ticket, with a platform that will enlist the support of the radicals. "The friends of Mr.

Bryan," said one of the Nebraska's coadjutors "are keeping the fires of Democracy burning on the altar of defeat. It is a sacrifice of principle. Now don't make any mistake. Not all the Democrats who voted the regular ticket in 1896, and again in 1900, were in favor of all the things in the platform, but the platform was nine-tenths right, and should have had the support of every Democrat.

BODY OF KNAPP'S THIRD WIFE FOUND IN THE OHIO RIVER

Remains of the Woman Picked Up at New Albany, Ind., Are Fully Identified by Relatives.

Louisville, March 3.—A telephone message just received from New Albany, Ind., says Edward King, of Cincinnati, and Charles Goddard, of Hamilton, Ohio, brother-in-law and brother of Hannah Goddard Knapp, have positively identified the body found floating in the Ohio river late yesterday afternoon as that of Hannah Goddard Knapp, wife of Alfred Knapp, now under arrest in Hamilton.

The statement was made that the jewelry found on the person was the same woman before she became the wife of Knapp, and that there is not the slightest doubt of her identity.

Careful work of the embalmers during the morning did much to restore the appearance of the body. The remains will be sent to Hamilton this afternoon.

Cincinnati, March 3.—Mrs. Edward F. King, sister of Alfred A. Knapp, has reported that her life has been repeatedly threatened by another woman interested in the Knapp defense, and today she asked for protection, which was accorded her. Mrs. King said:

"If I meet the woman I guess it will be all up with me. She hates me because my husband and I were the first to start the investigation of what 'Al' did in connection with the disappearance of Hannah Goddard. I am terribly afraid that she will carry out her threats to kill me. She knows that I opposed Al's marriage. If she were to come here with a pistol and confront me and my baby, I would have no way of protecting myself. I thought of this and thought of what I could do, and I have asked the policemen to protect me. I know that the woman is very vindictive."

New Albany, Ind., March 3.—Although Edward F. King this morning failed to positively identify the body of the woman found in the river here as that of his sister, and a wife of Alfred Knapp, the impression is strong that the body is that of one of Knapp's victims. The matter of identification is extremely difficult. The body is green from long exposure to the water, there is not a hair on the head and the body is nude, save for a stocking on each leg.

It is believed the body is that of Hannah Goddard Knapp and that it was put in a rough box and thrown into the Miami river at Hamilton, O., Dec. 22, floated on down past Louisville, where it rose to the surface and was discovered.

The identification of the body was almost made certain last night by a minute description telegraphed by the authorities of Hamilton. In her ears were found gold wire earrings and on the third finger of the left hand was an embossed ring with three little birds and an owl. On her legs were black stockings and on the right leg just above the ankle was a dark bruise. In every particular the body of the frontier was found to tally with the minute description of his wife given by Knapp in his confession.

After being removed to an undertaking establishment here the body was embalmed, and to a great extent recovered its natural color.

Mr. King, examining minutely the jewelry found in the ears, also the bruise above the knee. It is believed that before the day is over he will declare the body to be that of Hannah Goddard Knapp.

Hamilton, Ohio, March 3.—Alfred Knapp, who asked how he escaped in so many cases until he choked his wife, Hannah, said today:

"That's what I'd like to know. They would not know how I did it. I was not for my people."

"Was it your getting married so soon after Hannah's death to Anna Gamble in Indianapolis that gave you away?" he asked.

"I married Hannah twenty days after I killed Jennie. Did that catch me? No, it was not my getting married. That would not have made any difference. My sister told."

"May was my favorite sister, too. They ought to have shielded me instead of coming here to the Hamilton police. If you brother was in trouble would not you shield him instead of giving him away? I would not treat any brother or sister as mine that way. I would not care what they had done. I would never tell and you can bet on that. But they did, and that is the reason I am here. I ain't the police that got me; it's my sister Mary and her husband, Ed King. Why the detectives in Cincinnati suspected me after Jennie was found, and I fixed one of them so he quit following me and I raised a racket with Chief Deitsch, too, about it. Witte, with another detective was following me two weeks when one day on Central avenue near Laurel street they were right, behind me. I had a heavy cane and I let them get right up to me. Then I turned quick and hit Witte right over the ear. He went down and stayed there. The other detective came after me, but I ran home. Then I put a revolver in my pocket and went right up to see Chief Deitsch and I told him that I would kill Witte if he did not quit following me and that I knew all the detectives and that I would kill any of them he set after me. They did not follow me any more. I would have killed Witte that day if I had had a revolver."

DULUTH BOYS BROKE JAIL BY DIGGING HOLE THROUGH WALL

ington, Was Searching For Them Another Pris-

Tacoma, Wash., March 3.—When Deputy David Morrell was murdered in Thurston county jail at Olympia Sunday night by a prisoner, Chris Benson, a larcenist, Sheriff Mills absent searching for Roy McClelland and Chester

French, runaway boys from Duluth, who broke jail on Saturday morning by digging a hole through the wall with a case knife. The boys were serving sixty days for larceny. The hole they made was too small for Benson and the other prisoners.

A Most Notable Ceremony Occurs at St. Peters. Estimated That 75,000 People Were Present.

Rome, March 3.—From sunrise today all Rome was on the alert and showing most unusual animation and interest in the celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the coronation of Pope Leo XIII. This movement was especially noticeable at the large hotels, which were illuminated as though for a ball. An idea of the number of people congregating at the vatican could be formed of the fact that it was utterly impossible to get a carriage if the vehicle had not been ordered yesterday, especially as it was raining, and by the prices charged for those secured in advance. The scene on the piazza of St. Peter's was magnificent. There were assembled many hundreds of Italian troops in various modern uniforms, making a striking contrast with the mediaeval costumes of the Swiss papal guard on duty at the bronze doors of the cathedral.

The crowds which gathered before the first cordon of troops were impatient as they stood dripping under the persistent rain. There was a great clashing of umbrellas and a general feeling of discomfort among the waiting sightseers, who included very many women in varied attire, comprising foreigners of all nationalities and Italians from all parts of the country, the uniformity of the crowd being pleasantly broken by groups of sisters in the different gowns of their orders. Catholic students and picturesquely attired friars.

When, finally, the doors of St. Peter's were opened an almost indescribable struggle occurred in which all present forgot the rules of holiness and strove hard with push of elbows and feet to reach the interior of the sacred edifice, while on all sides were heard cries of fear and imprecations not very well suited to the spot where a notable religious ceremony was about to begin.

Once inside the cathedral the ladies who wore lace gowns found them to be in a much mutilated condition, and some of the women were carried away in a fainting condition. The tribunes were soon crowded to overflowing, and all the best standing places were taken.

A period of comparative calm succeeded this great rush, and the attention of the people was attracted to the gilded throne near the high altar and to the immense pillars of the basilica hung with red silken draperies. Some of the tribunes on each side of the altar were filled with men and women blazing with decorations. In a group of royal personages were the Crown Prince of Saxony, Duke Robert of Parma, the grand duchess of Mecklenburg, the prince of Lichtenstein, and Prince Maximilian of Savoy. In a special tribune was the pope's family, the diplomatic corps and the members of the Order of Malta, all in full uniform.

Special interest was shown in the innovation introduced in the uniforms of the different detachments of the papal guards. The Swiss guard wore red velvet knee breeches, red silk stockings, black shoes with red rosettes, burnished steel cuirasses from all parts of gold, and steel collars, in addition to large white linen collars, starched stiff, falling over their shoulders. The silver-mounted arms of the Swiss guard were also inlaid with gold, and they wore steel helmets with red ostrich plumes, similar to the helmets of the sixteenth century. The noble guard wore their new uniforms of bright red.

After an hour of very fatiguing waiting a majestic procession began to appear. It was composed of the great dignitaries of the church, the forty-five cardinals present, gorgeous in their red robes, alone making a most imposing, characteristic and picturesque group. At 11 o'clock precisely the great bell of St. Peter's rang out a signal, which was followed by the clanging of the bells of about 500 churches in Rome as they sounded the announcement that the pope was on his way to the basilica. The life of the ancient city seemed to pause for a moment, hats were raised and the sign of the cross was made. Shortly after, inside St. Peter's, silver trumpets blared out their message and the pontiff appeared. The people held their breath for a moment, and then all the pent-up enthusiasm burst forth in a tremendous roar of welcome.

From his elevation on the new sedan gestatoria carried by twelve men in costumes of red brocade flanked by the famous Flabelliferi (spreading feather fans) and surrounded by a white and gold canopy, the pope appeared to be more than a human being. He seemed to be a white spirit, this procession being added to by the pontiff's white robes and white mitre, delicate features, face white as alabaster, and his thin hand moving slowly in benediction. As the sweet-toned, well-trained voices of the sistine choir sang "Tu Es Petrus," thousands of voices shouted "Long live Pope Leo," handkerchiefs fluttered in the air, the banners of the various societies represented were waved and many of those present, overcome with emotion, sobbed loudly, while others fainted from excess of feeling or fatigue.

Meanwhile the pope proceeded slowly on what seemed a carpet of heads, absorbing the entire attention of the vast throng.

When the pope arrived at the throne the ceremony proceeded rapidly. Leaving the sedan gestatoria, the pontiff knelt and prayed, and then, after assistance, donned the fald and the new triple crown. At the celebration of the mass began. At the moment of the elevation of the host, a profound silence fell on the crowd, the guards presented arms, the people knelt where it was possible for them to do so, and sounds of silver trumpets, giving the idea of heavenly music.

The pope then administered the papal benediction and retired to a room for restoratives, prepared every time he goes to St. Peter's. Addressing Dr. Lagonelli, his private physician, the pontiff said:

"You see that after all your warnings the ceremony did me good. What touching loyalty."

It was calculated that there were about 75,000 people present. There were about 1000 American priests, and the body of the church. The trans-Atlantic visitors included Mr. Kennedy, rector of the American college at Rome, with eighty-five American students; Mr. Seton, of St. Joseph's church, Jersey City; Mr. O'Connell, the new rector of the Catholic archdiocese at Washington; Mr. Farrelly, of Nashville, Tenn.; the Very Rev. John A. Zahm, provincial of the congregation of the Holy Cross of the United States; the Very Rev. Pius Rudolf Mayer, general of the Carmelite order; the Rev. William Kieran, rector of St. Patrick's church, Philadelphia; the Very Rev. family of Lancaster, Pa.; Miss Troth, Mrs. McLaughlin and Miss Holmes, of Philadelphia; Gen. and Mrs. Cleveland, of New York; Mr. Brown, of New York; and Professor Troy of Harvard.

DR. AMES SAYS HE IS WILLING TO FACE CHARGES BUT NOT ABLE

Insists That Allegations Are All False; Are Due to Politics and Cannot Be Proved—Mrs. Ames Says That Her Husband Is Being Persecuted.

Hancock, N. H., March 3.—Former Mayor Albert A. Ames, of Minneapolis, who is here awaiting the result of extradition proceedings, said in the course of an interview:

"I am perfectly willing to go back and face the charges, but I really do not feel able. I know that I am not strong enough to stand the journey and the physicians advise against it. I am perfectly innocent. I know they cannot prove any of these charges, which are due to politics and you know what that means."

"It is persecution," interrupted Mrs. Ames, indignantly. "They simply want to injure the doctor. They want to get him out of the way."

Dr. Ames, according to his wife's statement, to which he nodded approval, has been ill since Nov. 20, 1901. The date is significant from the fact that the charge of accepting a bribe on which the papers for his extradition have been granted, is based on an incident said to have taken place on Nov. 15, 1901, or five days previous to his first illness.

"I want to say just here," said Mrs. Ames in a most positive manner, that Dr. Ames is not and never has been a fugitive from justice. There has never been a time, except when we were traveling, that those interested in Minneapolis did not know where he was.

"They have had him arrested on a new indictment found Feb. 4, and what have they got to back it up? Nothing, but the evidence of a woman, who says she paid him $25, through Mr. Brown, the mayor's private secretary."

DOMINION LINER IS FAST ON ROCKS

Queenstown, March 3.—The Dominion liner Merion, from Boston for Liverpool, went aground near Roque Point last Sunday, and is still fast. The weather has moderated, but three tugs which made another attempt today to tow the vessel failed to do so, and more powerful tugs have been ordered to the scene from Liverpool. The officers of the Merion believe there is every probability of the ship being saved, though it is feared the rock has pierced her bottom forward. All the passengers have been removed and have proceeded to Liverpool by the way of Dublin.

BILL TO END EVILS OF THE PASS SYSTEM

Provides For Passes For State Officers.
Bill to Settle the Sheriff
Complications.

FROM A STAFF CORRESPONDENT

St. Paul, March 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Free transportation on all railroads in the state for state officers, legislators and employees is provided by a bill introduced in the house this morning by Mr. Mark, of Milwaukee. And what is more to the point, the railroads are required to give it up free. This includes the members of the legislature, judges and state officers. The object of the bill, of course, is to do away with all likelihood that the giving of passes will be followed by a sense of obligation in the minds of the recipients toward the givers. By making a law requiring the roads to give up transportation whether they want to or not, the author of the bill believes that the evil of the pass system in legislatures will be done away with. The bill provides that the railroads must come down each year with annual passes on all lines in the state to the officers and employees included in a list that the state auditor is required to furnish to the roads each year. If the holder of the pass travels to another, and he uses it, it is a misdemeanor, and if any state employee having a pass travels in an expense account for mileage he commits a felony. If the roads do not obey this law the attorney general is to compel them to do so in a civil action.

The bill also provides that the railroads must come down each year with annual passes on all lines in the state to the officers and employees included in a list that the state auditor is required to furnish to the roads each year. If the holder of the pass travels to another, and he uses it, it is a misdemeanor, and if any state employee having a pass travels in an expense account for mileage he commits a felony. NEW GROSS EARNINGS BILL INTRODUCED IN THE HOUSE

on Railroad Earnings to Four Per Cent—The Wolf County Bills.

FROM A STAFF CORRESPONDENT

St. Paul, March 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The senate has a flat, stale and almost unprofitable session yesterday afternoon. There were so many absent that the senate followed the example of the house in the morning and passed the calendar by, and so many of the authors of bills on the large general order were absent that progress was reported on nearly all of them.

real hard work that has been looked forward to so long. The principal thing about yesterday afternoon's session of the senate was a new gross earnings bill, introduced by William Wilson, of Hennepin county, and Charles Goddard, of Hamilton, Ohio, brother-in-law and brother of Hannah Goddard Knapp, have positively identified the body found floating in the Ohio river last night as that of Hannah Goddard Knapp, wife of Alfred Knapp, now resident in Hamilton, Ohio. A statement was made that the jewelry found on the person was the same known to have been worn by the young woman before she became the wife of Knapp, and that there is not the slightest doubt of her identity.

FIVE MEN BLOWN TO PIECES BY EXPLOSION IN CEMENT WORKS

at Easton, Pa., Scattering Death and Serious Injury to Many of the Workmen.

Easton, Pa., March 2.—So far as can be ascertained at this time five men were killed by yesterday's explosion at the Edison cement works at New Village, N. J. The dead are: JAMES MEYERS, New Village; DANIEL SMITH, New Village; NATHAN HOPKINS, Washington, N. J.; EDWARD PHILLIPS, Phillipsburg, N. J.; KINNEY.

foreman; R. L. Goodwell, New York, chief electrician; George Bowman, timekeeper; Clinton S. Rare, Easton; Alexander Wolf, Stewartsville; Harry Wilkison, Broadway, N. J.

Nothing but bits of flesh have been found of Kinney. The most seriously injured, all of whom are burned, are: E. E. Durling, New Village, chief engineer; William Smith, Stewartsville, N. J., night superintendent, may die; Harry Rose, Phillipsburg, N. J., day

The explosion occurred in one of the large coal bins and was caused by the ignition of a quantity of gas. The day force had discovered a slight fire about 5 o'clock, but the men thought they had extinguished it. Foreman Rose went to the bin just before quitting time and as he opened a door a terrific explosion occurred. The bin was blown to pieces and the workmen who were near it were injured.

W. J. BRYAN THREATENS TO BOLT

New York, March 2.—William J. Bryan has informed his intimate friends in this city, says the Tribune, that if the gold and plutocratic Democrats triumph in the next national Democratic convention, he will lead his followers from the hall and conduct an independent Democratic ticket, with a platform that will enlist the support of the radicals. "The friends of Mr.

Bryan," said one of the Nebraska's coadjutors, "are keeping the fires of true democracy burning on the altar of Democracy. There is something very noble about it. It is a sacrifice of principles. Now don't make any mistake. Not all the Democrats who voted the regular ticket in 1896, and again in 1900, were in favor of all the things in the platform, but the platform was theirs right, and should have had the support of every Democrat.

POPE LEO BEING CARRIED THROUGH THE VATICAN.

Ind., Are Fully Identified By Relatives.

Louisville, March 2.—A telephone message just received from New Albany, Ind., says Edward King, of Cincinnati, and Charles Goddard, of Hamilton, Ohio, brother-in-law and brother of Hannah Goddard Knapp, have positively identified the body found floating in the Ohio river last night as that of Hannah Goddard Knapp, wife of Alfred Knapp, now resident in Hamilton, Ohio. A statement was made that the jewelry found on the person was the same known to have been worn by the young woman before she became the wife of Knapp, and that there is not the slightest doubt of her identity.

Careful work of the embalmers during the morning did much to restore the appearance of the body. The remains will be sent to Hamilton this afternoon.

Cincinnati, March 2.—Mrs. Edward F. King, sister of Alfred A. Knapp, has reported that her life has been repeatedly threatened by another woman interested in the Knapp defense, and today she asked for protection, which was accorded her. Mrs. King said: "If I meet the woman I guess it will be all up with me. She hates me because my husband and I were the first to start the investigation of what 'Al' did in connection with the disappearance of Hannah Goddard. I am terribly afraid that she will carry out her threats to kill me. She knows that I opposed Al's marriage. If she were to come here with a pistol and confront me and my baby, I would have no way of protecting myself. I thought of this and thought of what I could do, and I have asked the policemen to protect me. I know that the woman is very vindictive."

New Albany, Ind., March 2.—Although Edward F. King this morning failed to positively identify the body of the woman found in the river here as that of his wife's sister, a wife of Alfred Knapp, the impression is strong that the body is that of one of Knapp's victims. The matter of identification is extremely difficult. The body is green from long exposure to the water, there is not a hair on the head and the body is nude, save for a stocking on each leg.

It is believed the body is that of Hannah Goddard Knapp and that it was put of rough box and thrown into the river at Hamilton, Ohio, Dec. 22, floated down past Louisville, where it rose to the surface and was discovered.

DEPARTURE OF PRINCESS LOUISE

New York, March 2.—The departure of Princess Louise for Landau was of well imagined, says a Herald dispatch from Geneva, that nothing was known of her voyage until daughter and mother met at Landau.

Before quitting Lamartine the princess presented many souvenirs to her attendants and also gave a handsome present to Mr. Martin. She wrote touching letters of adieu to Mr. Gilson, saying it was better they should part and break off all relations, concluding: "It is for the sake of my children."

PORTAGE LAKE MEETS ITS MATCH

Toughton, Mich., March 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—Portage Lake met its match last night when it lined up against the Bankers of Pittsburgh in the most stubbornly-fought hockey contest seen here. The score at the end of six minutes' play was 2 to 2. The tie was not played off last night. The winner of tonight's game is to be declared the victor in both matches. At least three of the Bankers were men who played here with the Victorians and Pittsburgh Athletic club. As a matter of fact, the team is composed of picked men from four Pittsburgh teams.

FISHERMEN SAVED; NETS LOST

Milwaukee, March 2.—A Journal special from Marinette, Wis., says: A telephone from Door county received today gives assurance that all the fishermen who were cut drift on the ice flows Sunday have escaped in safety, but that $200 worth of nets were lost. The men were taken off the drift ice by rescue boats from Marinette, Wis., and the ice had open water between the men and safety. The fishermen say they did not suffer greatly, as the weather was mild and their fishing shanties were well supplied with food.

THREATS MADE

Against the Head of the Georgia Society.

New York, March 2.—James Edward Graybill, president of the Georgia Society of New York, was rather amused than annoyed by an anonymous letter in which he was threatened because of utterances recently attributed to him. The whole incident has grown out of the discussion of the status of the negro in the South. The letter to Mr. Graybill was as follows: "As president of the Georgia society, don't you think you had better go back South, where you belong, as northern people are getting tired of your Southern rebels shooting off your mouths here about our president. Look out for your head or it will get hit, or you will get it put in the sand the same as you put the poor black man's." According to the postmark of the letter, it was mailed at station C, in this city, Feb. 20. It was typewritten on half a sheet of not paper.

"Personally, I attach no importance to it," said Mr. Graybill. "No man should feel annoyed over an anonymous letter. I know I don't, but I cannot help thinking and saying that if a northern man made a speech in the South, attacking the Southern question or any prominent man and received such a letter as this, a billiard ball would have been made over it."

COOK ENDS LIFE

Walter Parsons Cuts His Throat In Denver Lodging House.

Has Been Giving Signs of Weak Mind For Some Time.

Another suicide. Bowery cook, ended his life this morning by cutting his throat with a razor.

The suicide occurred in the Denver lodging house, at 20 West Superior street. Mr. Parsons had been unbalanced mentally for at least twenty-four hours, and he imagined that enemies were shadowing him with a view to great bodily torture.

Last evening he talked constantly of these imaginary enemies and refused to go to bed, saying that he felt safer in sitting up where he had a chance to protect himself from any attack that might be made.

Shortly after 4 o'clock this morning the night clerk at the lodging house was summoned to Mr. Parsons' room, and noticed that the man was bleeding freely from a wound in the throat that seemed to extend from ear to ear.

Mr. Parsons was fast losing consciousness. He called for a glass of water. Physicians were summoned, but by the time they arrived the man was in an unconscious condition, and shortly afterward he died.

The home of Mr. Parsons is in Salt Lake City. He came here on December 16, registering at the Denver lodging house, and had lodged there frequently since.

For a time he was employed as second cook in a larder camp, but recently he was cook in the famous Bowery Ditching house. He was not a hard drinker and as far as can be ascertained made but few acquaintances during his stay here.

All he had in his possession at the time of death was a ten-cent piece, and it is thought that financial troubles may have had more to do with unbalancing his mind than liquor.

The body was taken to Stewart's undertaking rooms, where it will be cared for pending further investigation as to the suicide, and an effort to locate friends.

SENTENCED FOR SIXTEEN YEARS

John Gustafson of Superior Gets That Punishment For Murder.

John Gustafson, who shot and killed Alexander Miska, in a Third street saloon in West Superior several months ago, as a result of a drunken quarrel, was this morning sentenced to 16 years in the Wisconsin state prison at Waupun, by Judge Smith, of the superior court.

Gustafson was tried on the charge of murder in the first degree, but the jury, after being out a long time, finally pronounced on a verdict of murder in the second degree, and recommended that Gustafson be given the limit, which is 16 years.

The court investigated the matter and found that Gustafson had always been a respectable, reputable, and was drunk when he committed the deed. It is said that Gustafson can, by good behavior, cut his imprisonment down to nine years and three months, so that he will be about 36 years of age when released.

THIS MONTH'S WORK.

Weigher Noble Sampson Reports to the Council.

In a report which he submitted to the council last evening Noble Sampson, scaler of weights and measures, reported that during the month of February he was called on to weigh 8 loads of coal, where the buyer had suspicions that they were being given short weight. But that out of the number only one load was found short of the required weight of 100 lbs. This load was found short by 170 pounds of snow and dirt. Mr. Sampson stated that he advised the buyer that there would be little likelihood of redress through the courts. The scaler of weights and measures, called on in February to measure several loads of wood, and found but one short. He said that he was called on to measure a quantity of fuel, when notified of the short measure.

NATURE TELLS YOU

As Many a Duluth Reader Knows Too Well.

When the kidneys are sick Nature tells you about it. The urine is nature's calendar. Infrequent or too frequent action. Any urinary trouble tells of kidney ills.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure all kidney ills. Duluth people testify to this: Mr. J. H. Tomlin, of 249 First street, west, conductor on the Duluth street railway, says: "For two years I suffered severely from kidney complaint. Towards the last I got so bad that very frequently I was obliged to lay off for days at a time and my back and loins were so painful that I could not work. The kidney secretions were very frequent, distressing and annoying. I could not find a comfortable position to rest in at night. My back was constantly aching and in the morning rose thoroughly worn out. The jar of the car, to which I attributed the trouble, at times affected me so that I could hardly stand it. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills highly recommended, I procured a box at W. A. Abbott's drug store and began to use them. I commenced to improve right away and in a short time I felt as well as ever from that time until now, several months ago. I have worked steadily without a single symptom of my old trouble." For sale by all dealers. Price, 50 cents. Foster-Milburn company, Buffalo, N. Y. Sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name, Doan's, and take no substitute.

Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Cure

Costs Nothing if It Fails.

Any honest person who suffers from Rheumatism is welcome to this offer. I am a specialist in Rheumatism, and have treated more cases than any other physician. I think. For 16 years I made 200 experiments with different drugs, testing all known remedies while searching the world for something better. Nine years ago I found a costly chemical in Germany which, with my previous discoveries, gave me a certain cure.

I don't mean that it can turn bony joints into flesh again; but it can cure each disease at any stage completely and forever. I have done it fully 100,000 times.

I know this so well in all my trials, my remedy on trial. Simply write me a postal for my book on Rheumatism, and I will mail you an order on your druggist for six bottles of Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Cure. Take it for a month, and if it fails, I will pay the druggist myself—and I mean that exactly. If you say the results are not what I claim, I don't expect a penny from you.

I have no samples. Any mere sample that can affect chronic Rheumatism must be dangerous to the verge of danger. I use no such drugs, and it is folly to take them. You must get the disease out of the blood.

My remedy does that even in the most difficult, obstinate cases. It has cured the oldest cases that I ever met. And my experience in all my 200 tests never found another remedy that would cure one chronic case in ten.

Write me and I will send you the order. Try my remedy for a month, as it can't harm you anyway. If it fails it is free.

Address Dr. Shoop, Box 655, Racine, Wis.

Mild cases, not chronic, are often cured by one or two bottles. At all druggists.

BILL TO END EVILS OF THE PASS SYSTEM

3 to 4 per cent, and making it in lieu of all other taxation.

Mr. Armstrong, of Hennepin, introduced a bill requiring all hotels and lodging houses that do not have two fire escapes to provide egress on each floor around the ground, and one for fire escapes in each outside room.

Hotels not complying with this provision are subject to fines of $25 to $100, or imprisonment for thirty to ninety days for the proprietor, and they cannot have a lien on the baggage of their guests for their board, and cannot sue to collect the board in any case.

Mr. Tighe, of Ramsey county, introduced a bill repealing all of the standing appropriations for state institutions. This would require every institution to come before the legislature at every session and show up what it needed.

Mr. Rosenwald introduced a bill requiring peddlers in townships outside of city or village limits to pay $2 a day, $20 a month, or $100 a year for licenses.

Dr. Forbes presided as chaplain again this morning after an absence of several days.

The house killed the Denning bill giving cemetery associations the right of eminent domain, and the Haugen bill requiring a five-eighths majority for village bonds. A number of bills were passed, among them being the Lewis bill cutting down the mileage for bringing prisoners from the ranges to Duluth. Other bills that were passed were as follows.

By Sheve, requiring all vegetables to be sold by weight instead of measure.

Wilson, providing that the recording of instruments relating to timber and minerals shall be sufficient notice of the contents thereof.

Clague, providing for appointment of agents to seek fugitives from justice in other states.

By the municipal legislation committee, giving deputy county auditors authority to administer oaths and certify them under the seal of the county auditor.

In committee of the whole the bill fixing a penalty of $100 or ninety days for injuring electric or telephone poles, wires, etc., was recommended to pass.

The senate had very little session. Senator Collier introduced an amendment to the constitution relating to special legislation, which prohibits special legislation on certain defined subjects, and permits on other.

The amendment would put the law back where it was in 1892, when amendments were prohibited in all forms of special legislation. The object of the bill as stated by its author is to give cities a chance to secure legislation affecting them only and injuring no other communities.

Senator Barker introduced a bill providing that road taxes levied on property within the limits of cities and villages, shall be paid into the city and village treasury instead of going to the county, to be expended under the direction of the council or other governing body.

This would make an important change in methods in St. Louis county, as it would give Duluth nearly half of the amount now levied for road taxes.

Senator Ferris introduced a bill legalizing all road tax levies made during 1902. The game and game laws committee recommended the new game and fish code to pass.

Captain Lewis' bill giving the Duluth school district the right to provide consolation for pupils at public expense was recommended to pass by the senate.

The McGill bill creating the state arts society, was also recommended to pass. So was the bill requiring gasoline and kerosene to be sold only in bright red glass.

INCREASE FOR SUPERIOR

Will Get Total of $300,000 For New Federal Building.

Washington, March 2.—(Special to The Herald.)—The conferees on the public buildings bill this morning reached an agreement and the bill will pass today and go to the president.

The senate conferees receded and permitted the retention of all paragraphs providing money for sites for new buildings in various parts of the country.

The house conferees agreed to all increases on existing work. The item giving Superior, Wis., $75,000 additional, which was stricken out by the house, was replaced in conference. This will give the Superior people $300,000 for their new postoffice. Crookston, Minn., gets an increase of $200, making the limit of cost $600. Albert Lea gets $300 for its public building.

STRIKE OF INSPECTORS

Of Gas Company Successfully Inaugurated In Chicago.

Chicago, March 2.—The strike of inspectors in the employ of the People's Gas-light and Coke company, which was endorsed Sunday by the Chicago Federation of Labor, and ordered yesterday, was actively inaugurated today, nineteen inspectors sent out by the company having left their work at the request of the members of the Gas Inspectors' union, who had been discharged. The company executives showed move by ordering the inspectors not to report at the office today, but go directly to work from their homes. In spite of the warning twenty men reported at the office. Police protection was asked for and under protection of the officers, the squad boarded a street car to make their daily rounds. Several members of the union also boarded the cars and soon prevailed upon all but one of the men to join in the strike.

"CAN'T I HAVE MY PAPA?"
Child's Plea Touches Gov. Mc-Bride's Heart.

Olympia, Wash., March 3.—John O'Day, who is serving a three years' sentence in the state penitentiary at Walla Walla for the crime of robbery, has been granted a full pardon by Gov. Mc-Bride. The pardon was granted by the governor solely upon the application of his wife and a letter of recommendation as to the character of O'Day from the governor of Wyoming.

by the governor was private, it is said he was influenced to a great extent by the appearance of the child, who said to him, "Dear Governor, can't I have my papa?" and the governor, who in his eyes, replied, "Yes, little one, in a few days."

Mrs. O'Day appeared before the governor with her four children, and the sight of the destitute group was overwhelming. The child, who was named O'Day, made the appeal entirely upon the ground that she and her children were destitute and needed the care and protection of the husband and father. It was shown that O'Day had always been a hard-working and honest man up to the time he committed the robbery of which he was convicted.

The story of the robbery is certainly touching as told by Mrs. O'Day. The husband had been unable to secure a position of any kind. His family were destitute and starving, and had been ordered out of the house they were occupying. After the robbery O'Day brought home all of the money secured and gave it to his wife, and it was the first money they had had for several weeks.

CONFEREES REPORT

On Sundry Civil Appropriation Bill Shows Many Changes.

Bill Carries Twenty-Two Millions More Than Last.

Washington, March 3.—The report of the conferees on the sundry civil appropriation bill, which was presented to the senate today, shows that of the increases made by the senate, the house conceded $2,423,000 and the senate receded from items amounting in the aggregate to $4,202,325. The principal items of recession were those making appropriations for the proposed new postoffice building in New York for the extension of the immigration station at Ellis island and for the payment of the claim of ex-Queen Lillooek. As the bill becomes it carries a total appropriation of $2,272,550, an increase of $2,105,550 over the amount carried by last session's act. The appropriation of $100,000 for the proposed monetary conference was retained, as also that of $100,000 to pay the expenses of the Alaskan boundary commission, but the senate receded from its amendment for the revival of the old high commission for the settlement of differences with Canada.

The house provision for the enlargement of the capitol went out, but the provision for a building to be used as offices and committee rooms for the house of representatives was retained. The senate amendment looking to the construction of a similar building for the senate was dropped.

The senate provision for the beginning of the construction of the new department of agriculture building remains in the bill as does the provision authorizing the beginning of the construction of a new building for the National museum. MR. MABIE IS ILL.
Cannot Be Here Wednesday Evening to Lecture.

The Star Lecture course is having no end of hard luck, and its manager, E. R. Briggs, is on the verge of nervous prostration. A few weeks ago Jacob Tills disappointed the management by failing through sickness to come when he was billed to, but fortunately a lecturer who was coming later was induced to take the place of Mr. Tills. Now comes Hamilton W. Mabie with a spell of illness, just enough to make it impossible for him to get here by Wednesday evening. He wires: "R. R. Briggs, Duluth. Detained by illness as about to start. Physician forbids travel before Wednesday. Grantly disappointed. H. W. MABIE."

The time when Mr. Mabie will appear has not been settled upon as yet.

LAST HOPE GONE

Henderson's Case Will Not Be Appealed to Supreme Court.

Hanging Will Take Place Friday—Resigned to His Fate.

The last hope of Charles E. L. Henderson for a stay of execution of his death sentence pending an appeal to the supreme court was doomed today by news from the East that his relatives have been unable to raise the funds with which to cover the necessary expense attached to such proceedings.

Alexander Marshall, Henderson's attorney since he received sentence, said today that he had done everything in his power for his client, but the failure of his relatives to meet the expenses precluded the idea of any further action looking toward a stay of the execution, which will take place Friday this week, there being no Governor Van Sant.

Mrs. Lapsley, one of Henderson's sisters, is in the city, and the other, Mrs. Josephine Heard, is said to have been at her home in the East, where she has some property on which it was expected to realize the money needed to carry the case to the supreme court, but negotiations have fallen through, and with them falls Henderson's last hope to escape, for a time at least, the death penalty.

It would still be possible to obtain the stay of execution up to Thursday afternoon or evening, but Mr. Marshall says there is practically no possibility of that action now being taken.

The arrangements for the execution have been going on steadily all the week, and the sheriff is assured that everything will be in readiness to carry out the sentence of the court. The scaffold, which has been built in sections in one of the local carpenter shops, is about completed, the rope has been procured, stretched and tested, and there remains but the short work of building the inclosure in the jail yard and erecting the scaffold. This will probably be done Thursday afternoon or evening, as no great length of time will be required. The scaffold will be about 12 feet square and about 12 feet high, and the inclosure will be twice the height of the scaffold.

Mrs. Lapsley, Henderson's sister, who remained in the city until the execution yesterday, said that she and the other sister, Mrs. Heard, either arrived today, or will before Friday. It was reported yesterday that Mr. Heard was on the way to Washington, D. C., but Duluth people returning from the East yesterday said seeing her in St. Paul.

Henderson's body, as soon as he is pronounced dead, will become the property of his relatives, and arrangements have been practically completed to ship the remains East for burial, on the Omaha road, Friday afternoon. Sheriff Hatcher says that Henderson is fully resigned to his fate, and declares that he is ready to meet it when the time comes.

Looking For Counterfeiters.

The secret service is endeavoring to locate the headquarters of a gang of counterfeiters who have been circulating spurious half-dollars and quarters in some of our Eastern cities. There are also many unscrupulous dealers who put up an imitation article and offer it in place of the original Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, claiming it is just as good, don't accept it. The genuine is sold only in bottles, securely sealed, with their private stamp over the neck. There is no medicine in the world that can take its place as a sure cure for nausea, sick headache, heartburn, indigestion, dyspepsia, constipation, biliousness, and many prominent physicians always prescribe it in the above cases. STRUCK BY A STREET CAR

General Mix-Up of Prominent People Occurred at Toledo.

Toledo, O., March 3.—David Robinson and James Robinson, respectively president and cashier of the Ohio Savings Bank and Trust company; Willard Robinson, president of the David Robinson, Jr. & Sons' bank; Horace Suydam, secretary of the Vagon Works, and W. F. Webb, coachman for the Robinsons, were badly injured in a street car accident here last night. A car going along on a street car track struck the Robinson carriage against a carriage which was being driven by a man and his relatives. A resultant runaway caused all the occupants to sustain more or less injuries, but those of the first four mentioned are the most serious.

THEY WANT BOATS

North Shore People Petition For Resumption of Lake Traffic.

Capt. Singer Expects to Start Boats on the Run Soon.

Petitions have been sent Capt. W. H. Singer for the resumption of traffic on the water route to Two Harbors, and the captain said today that it might be possible that the boats would be placed back on the run in a couple of weeks.

"Petitions have come from several of the north shore towns, and it is likely we will put the boats back," said Capt. Singer. "It may be a little dangerous, but with proper signals on shore, it will be possible to start in at this time. We ran up to early in February this year. Last year we operated all the season, except one month, but it will be a little longer this year."

Capt. Singer will leave for Chicago tomorrow, where the members of the board of directors of the Lake Michigan and Superior Transportation company will take up several questions for the coming year, among which is the appointment of a city agent here to succeed Capt. Flynn.

Samuel Love, who resigned from the position of city passenger agent of the Omaha railway early this month, it is said, is a candidate for the position. "I am not in a position to make any announcements," said the captain. "At this time, I think, I cannot say anything as to his appointment. We have one or two names under consideration."

Capt. Singer is here getting his home in readiness for occupation, and when he returns from the next trip Mrs. Singer will be with him, and they will take up quarters in their residence upon their return.

Library Board Meeting.

At a meeting of the library board last evening, the request of the Art club to have an exhibition of arts and crafts in the library building was considered and permission granted to hold it about the middle of April. The board also granted a request to hold an exhibition of Indian baskets in the library building during the afternoon of next week. The ladies of the different clubs in the city will serve lunch and everything will be done to make it quite a social event.

GETS A TERMINAL.
San Francisco, March 3.—The Examiner says: Representatives of the San Francisco railroad, terminal and ferry companies have just secured a freight terminal in San Francisco at a cost of $1,000,000, which will provide greater facilities than either the Santa Fe or Southern Pacific controls. The new terminal is located in the Potrero just north of Islais creek, and comprises between sixty and seventy full blocks, containing more than seventy-six acres. The greater part of this property is now submerged by the tides, and it will cost $2,000,000 to improve it.

Help the Poor Immediately, Then Theorize at Leisure.

Probably the last kind of help one can give is to aid the children. Give them the best of your own life, and their lives, teach them to see that the good things of this world are for them as well as for others. Teach them to be generous. Teach them to have a view of life. There should be no children so poor as to be left without the ordinary enjoyments of life. The selfishness of life, therefore, which is the worst of all, is the fear what little I do for children is influenced by selfish motive because it gives me the highest form of life.

"We like to help children," Mr. Schwab said, smiling. "Probably the best way to help them is to let them be themselves. The

"The bill recites that it is the intent of the Legislature to stamp as copyrighted any government publication. A fine not exceeding $100 or imprisonment for not more than thirty days, or both, is fixed as the penalty. It is provided that any person who shall without lawful authority make use for advertising purposes of anything that will tend to indicate that a government publication is printed, sold or distributed by the government, or shall represent that such person has the exclusive right or authority to sell or distribute such publication, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor in the same as in the preceding provision."

A South Carolina friend, who was a warm personal friend of Mr. Good, said the speaker was contending with him and asked how it happened. The South Carolina man explained that no man had ever been renominated in that district, and he would not believe the saying if it were not backed upon earth, could receive a second nomination in the district. "Wa-al," drawled out the speaker, "do you think Christ could ever get the first nomination in this district?"

Galusha, of Tennessee, is always proud of the career of Andrew Jackson and in thunderous tones tells the house so in his frequent speeches. The other day when Galusha took his seat after the speaker had finished his discourse, Joe Blackburn of Kentucky, a humorist famous in American political circles, once "cusses" the Republican party and speculates on the result of the coming election on the turf at Lexington. He is the favorite in every jolly crowd, and even jockeys and bootblacks call him "Joe Blackburn" before he has time to slap him on the back as they wipe their glasses with him and drink to the Sunny South.

The following amusing story was told of him by the late Dan Voorhees, of Indiana: On a certain occasion Blackburn was invited to deliver the annual address at the Maryland Agricultural Ex-the field headquarters of the Church and Home Mrs. Mackay says: "Bishop Worthington sends us a Lenten offering for the long journey from the Hotel Manhattan, New York, in which it is pleasant to know that we are still remembered by our faithful, selfless friends. The Lenten offering is also pleasant to note that the Providence that separates us from our beloved friends is not so long as his hand reaches that he is not suffering from anxiety of mind concerning his far-distant diocese. We should be deeply grateful for the assurance in the Bishop's pastoral."

FUN IN THE HOUSE

Former Auctioneer Reads Bills to Delight of Members.

The Last Legislative Day of Congress Has Begun.

Washington, March 2.—When the house convened at 11 o'clock this morning, the prospect was that it might remain in continuous session until tomorrow noon. Despite the fact that the session last night was prolonged till midnight, there was a fairly large attendance on the floor and the galleries were well filled. As soon as Speaker Henderson called the house to order, Mr. Richardson, the minority leader, attempted to make the point of no quorum, but the speaker recognized Mr. Payne to demand the yeas and nays on the pending question coming near from last night—the adoption of the conference report on the immigration bill.

Mr. Richardson insisted that his point was good, but the speaker overruled him and when the Democratic leader appealed from the decision he declined to entertain the appeal on the ground that it was dilatory. The report was adopted, 167 to 17. The presentation of a conference report on a private pension bill was made the occasion for some good-natured political chaffing. Mr. Myers (Ind.) said if the Republican party was the good friend of the old soldiers it professed to be, the house managers would bring in a rule to admit conference reports on private pension bills en bloc. The report was adopted, 211 to 6.

Mr. Cannon presented the conference report on the sundry civil bill. He pleaded with the minority to dispense with the reading of the report in extenuation, but Mr. Richardson, a very amusing scene followed. The voices of the reading clerks who officiated yesterday, having been reported out by two delegates, and later a vote, and in reading figures, his tones gradually ascended like an auctioneer in the exercise of his profession, knocking down goods to the highest bidder. The members of the house as well as the spectators in the galleries, were convulsed with uncontrollable laughter, which changed suddenly to handclapping.

The new clerk, hearing that some acknowledgment of this demonstration was due, suspended the reading to loud right and left. This grotesque proceeding only increased the merriment and brought down a storm of applause. The confusion became so great that Mr. Richardson (N. Y.) protested against the clerk's action as unseemly, and the chair was obliged to admonish members to preserve order.

IN THE SENATE. Washington, March 2.—At 11 o'clock today the senate convened upon the last legislative day of the Fifty-seventh congress. There will be no adjournment till 12 o'clock tomorrow, when the congress expires by limitation.

A resolution was adopted continuing until the next regular session the standing and select committees in the conference reports on the sundry civil bill was agreed to.

Mr. Bacon (Ga.) declared that the alleged conference report on a bill which with the exception of one single sentence, had never been read in the senate. The bill, he said, is far-reaching in its character and absolutely subversive of the fundamental principles upon which the government is founded.

Repeating Mr. Bacon's statement that the conference report was the senate bill in its entirety, with the exception of the matter pertaining to anti-trusts.

Mr. Bacon criticized the provisions of the bill, saying that it discriminated in the matter of gravity of a crime committed against an officer and an individual.

Mr. Platt (Conn.) interrupted with the statement that while he recognized the right and duty of the government to protect every citizen, there was an additional duty on the part of the government to protect its officers, and that the protection of the government itself.

Mr. Bacon contended that the bill does not furnish a crime against the official.

BRIEF CITY NEWS

Mr. McCumber moved to take up the conference report on the sundry civil bill, and after some discussion about the order of business, Mr. Quay asked unanimous consent that at 2 o'clock a vote be taken on five propositions before the senate, naming the omnibus school bill, the Aldrich bill, the conference report on the bill to protect the president, the Philippine tariff bill and the pure food bill.

Mr. Foraker said he took advantage of the opportunity to say that it would be little short of a public calamity if the senate adjourned without passing some of these measures.

BASEBALL WITHIN THE CITY

Col. Stone of Great Northern Is Here Investigating Chances.

Entrance Into League Depends on Business Interests of City.

Cal E. Stone, assistant general passenger agent of the Great Northern railway, of St. Paul, and President E. H. Kemp, of the proposed Northern League baseball association, from Grand Forks, were in town this morning and afternoon.

They came here to feel the situation in Duluth and Superior and spent the day in talking to business men and persons interested in the game.

At noon Mr. Stone was a guest at the Commercial club, and was accompanied at lunch by F. A. Patrick, whom Mr. Stone is trying to interest in the plans. Neither made a statement of status of affairs.

Mr. Stone says the including of Duluth and Superior in the league largely depends upon the manner in which the business interests of the city accept the idea. He talked to many business men this morning, but was not in a position to say just what his deductions were.

It is safe to say, however, that when the details of the organization are worked out, the league will sail smoothly at the head of the visitors.

A conference was held by the visitors and C. A. Marshall, of the Lyceum theater, after which Mr. Marshall refused to make a statement of his position regarding his position in case franchises are offered here.

Whether a stock company will be formed in Duluth and Superior for the ownership of the clubs has not been decided upon, and the question of franchises to be an open one for some time.

The plan is to have two or three games a week at the head of the lakes with a regular schedule and standings published daily as in the large circuits.

It is likely some expression will be asked from the Commercial club before active steps are taken here.

President Goodrich Says Immediate Additions Must Be Made.

"We will have to make some additional improvements on the power house, and that is one of the things that brought me up here. The plant is too small, and whether or not contracts for the power house are made under the present plan, we will have to immediately improve our power plant."

"Our negotiations with the water power company have not reached the contract stage as yet, though before I leave we will probably arrive at some understanding."

AN OPPORTUNITY

of a life time. How often do you hear people say, "I could have bought this or that at such and such a price," naming a few dollars, for properties now impossible to buy. Some man did it, and today is counting his wealth by tens and perhaps hundreds of thousands.

We can sell you a ten acre tract for $50 cash and $5 a month, without interest, for fifty-four months. We will buy five acres of land near Woodland. There is no better land for market garden purposes in St. Louis county. It is comparatively level and free from rock and has a nice spring brook running through it. We give you immediate possession of the land with permission to go on and improve and use it. You can raise enough on one acre, in one season, to pay for the whole five acres.

We can sell you a ten acre tract for $50 cash and $5 a month on the same terms. Here is a rare opportunity for a small and safe investment. An opportunity to save and invest a few dollars every month which in a short time will provide you with a home, where you can live in ease and comfort. Let us show you this land.

LORD BILL IS KILLED BY THE STATE DEPARTMENT OF THE U. S. HAS ADJOURNED

Sought to Let Down Bars On Amendments.
The Anti-Bucket Shop Bill Was Laid Over.

FROM A STAFF CORRESPONDENT
St. Paul, March 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The senate, this morning, in committee of the whole, killed the proposition to let down the bars on constitutional amendments, recommending the Lord bill for indefinite postponement by a vote of 22 for and 27 against. The bill provided a constitutional amendment that, if it carried, would place the provision back where it used to be before the people adopted an amendment in 1896 that provided that amendments to the constitution could be adopted unless they had a majority of all the votes cast at the election. Before that it took only a majority of those voting on the amendments to carry it, and all amendments submitted carried. Since the change none have carried, and Senator Lord wanted to go back to the old method in order that it might be possible to change the constitution. He said in explanation of his bill that no increase in the gross earnings taxes and no ad-

PASSING OF CANNON BITTERLY ASSAILS "LEGISLATIVE BLACKMAIL" Senators From Walks of Public to Private Life.

Some Have Spent Majority of Life In Congress.
Washington, March 4.—The session of the senate today was interesting, not alone by the official proceedings on the floor of the chamber, incident to the last day of a congress, but by many occurrences which were purely social in their character, due to the fact that the day marked the close of many careers in the senate.
Of the thirty senators whose terms expired when the presiding officer's gavel fell at noon, thirteen failed to secure re-election either through defeat or through their own refusal to enter the contests in their various states. Included in the number, whose official presence in the chamber will no longer be noted, are six Republicans and seven Democrats, but of the Republicans two, Senator Jones, of Nevada, and Senator Wellington, of Maryland, have in recent years each supported for a time the national candidates of the opposing party. Two other senators, Deboe, of Kentucky, and Pritchard, of North Carolina, are Southern Republicans, and both are succeeded by Democrats. The remaining two Republicans are Senators Mason, of Illinois, and Simon, of Oregon. Of the seven retiring Democrats, Senators Harris of Kansas, Turner of Washington, and Heitfeld of Idaho, were elected as Republicans, Senator McLaughlin, of South Carolina, was elected as a Democrat, and while still classed as such, has acted in the senate during the last session of the term. The other three senators, Vest, Jones, of Arkansas, and Rawlins, have from first to last been in the Democratic ranks and Jones and Vest have risen to places of conspicuous leadership in their party.
In Senator Jones, of Nevada, the senate loses one of the two men who have served in that body for thirty consecutive years, the other being Senator Allison. Mr. Jones has not yet entered the senate, Gen. Logan, Carl Schurz, Allen G. Thurman, Oliver P. Morton, Thomas F. Bayard and John Ingalls were leading figures. Senators were leaving figures.

Washington, March 4.—The conference report on the general deficiency, the last of the appropriation bills, was presented in the house at 3 o'clock this morning by Mr. Cannon. The veteran chairman of the house committee on appropriations, late as the hour was, in a five-minute speech protested against the "legislative blackmail" by which the house conferees had been compelled to yield to the dictation of a single senator and accept the appropriation of $45,000 to pay an alleged claim of South Carolina against the government, aroused the members of the house to a pitch of genuine enthusiasm which had not been witnessed in the lower house during this congress. Mr. Cannon said:
"Gentlemen know that under the practice of the house and under the rules of the senate the great majority of bills contain nothing but appropriations in pursuance of existing laws or through their own refusal to enter the contests in their various states. Included in the number, whose official presence in the chamber will no longer be noted, are six Republicans and seven Democrats, but of the Republicans two, Senator Jones, of Nevada, and Senator Wellington, of Maryland, have in recent years each supported for a time the national candidates of the opposing party. Expired By Limitation Promptly at 12 O'Clock.
Senate Continued Discussion to Last Minute.

Touching Scenes In House as End Drew Near.
Washington, March 4.—The senate was called to order at 10 o'clock today for the last sitting of the Fifty-seventh congress, but business did not begin until some time later. The delay was due to the absence of a quorum and to the fact that Mr. Lockrell insisted upon the presence of the necessary number before taking up the work of the day.
President Pro Tem Frye was, as usual, on the dais in accordance to the seat of the presiding officer, but only about a dozen senators faced him. The countenances of most of them bore evidence of the two prolonged sessions of Monday and Tuesday, but the indications of fatigue soon vanished and business proceeded as smoothly as it could have done if the senate had adjourned at 6 o'clock yesterday instead of 2 o'clock this morning. It was noticeable, too, that the senators who have been most busily and most continuously occupied in the closing days of the session were among the first to respond to their names.
The attendance in the galleries was also comparatively small. The crowd increased gradually, however, so that by the time a quorum was secured on the floor the audience was respectable in dimensions and apparently sufficiently widespread to give due attention to the proceedings.
Mr. Allison, chairman of the committee on appropriations, made a statement regarding the amount of money appropriated by the present congress, as compared with the appropriations of the Fifty-sixth congress. The total appropriation for the present congress, he stated, was $1,554,108,518, as compared with $1,440,489,438 for the Fifty-sixth congress.
It was a curious but necessary thing, he said, to make this comparison more in detail than by a mere statement of aggregates. The first and most important item included in this statement for the present congress is an appropriation of $50,000,000 for the Panama canal, which he said, accounts for the one-half of the increase. There is also, he said, an aggregate appropriation for the postoffice department of $15,401,849 for the next fiscal year, as compared with $138,000,000 for the current year, making a difference of more than $500,000,000 in excess of the appropriations for the last congress for the postal business. Then, too, he said, the rural free delivery service required

OLD SOLDIERS AT THE HOME CANNOT GET PENSION MONEY House Defeats Bill to Give Them All Their Pension Money—The Anti-Vaccination Bill May Be Passed By the House.

FROM A STAFF CORRESPONDENT
St. Paul, March 4.—(Special to The Herald.)—The old soldiers who live at the Minnesota soldiers' home will have to get along on $4 a month for spending money, for the house yesterday afternoon refused to pass a bill giving them all of their pension money.
The bill, which was introduced by W. L. Nolan, of Hennepin county, was a special order in the house for yesterday afternoon, and it resulted in considerable debate for and against, mostly against. There are eight veterans of the civil war in the house, and only two of them voted for the bill, while several of the others made speeches against it. The pension money is now taken for the use of the home, and only $4 a month out it goes to the veterans. The principal point made by the opponents of the bill was that it would take the pension money away from the veterans and give it to the home, which would make paupers out of them, and that it the home would lose the money, it would curtail its opportunities for aiding veterans who cannot now get it because the home is full.

Another objection that was raised was that the veterans might take their pensions and spend them in riotous living, where $4 a month would not go very far along that line. This objection was met by an amendment offered by the author of the bill and adopted, to the effect that the act should not apply to inmates of the home who are habitual drunkards. In spite of this amendment, however, the bill was beaten by a vote of 29 yeas and 53 nays. Capt. Randall, of Duluth, opposed the bill and made a talk against it. Dr. Budd, of Two Harbors, who is a veteran also, voted for the bill.

FIFTY-SEVENTH CONGRESS HAS ADJOURNED

have not hesitated to take the responsibility of killing it, and the country can judge.

When he concluded there was loud applause in the galleries.

Acting on a resolution, President Pro Tem Frye appointed Messrs. Allison and Jones (Ark.), a committee to meet a similar committee from the house and notify the president that congress was ready to adjourn.

Mr. Mason (Ill.) took the floor and discussed the attached bill and the Panama canal treaty.

Mr. Bailey (Texas), said it was apparent that Mr. Mason's object was to talk the Senate into a vote on the bill, and he would relieve him of the necessity of making this kind of a victory.

He then made the rules of the senate be amended so that the bill should be taken up on the Democratic side.

There was no more on the Democratic side than on the Democratic side. It goes with the rules of the senate, and he added much laughter like the rules, the senate would be as much as possible.

Mr. Patterson (Cal.) charged that Mr. Bailey himself had defeated the resolution of the Philippine commission with respect to a treaty.

When Mr. Mason was speaking, Secretary Hay, Root, Hitchcock, Wilson and Cortlandt, Attorney General Knox and Postmaster General Payne entered the chamber and occupied the front seats.

Mr. Allison reported that the special committee had waited on the president, who said that he had no objection to the bill, and said: "It is in order, and I would like to say that I congratulate the two houses of congress upon the admirable work performed during this session."

As Mr. Mason had just been arranging the senate for its failure to pass necessary legislation, the speaker went around the senate which broke out into laughter in which everybody joined.

At 1:55, five minutes before adjournment, Mr. Bailey was recognized and said that as strong as the temptation was to reply to Mr. Mason, he preferred to have a vote on his bill.

Instantly Mr. Mason was up. He remarked that he had left out the most important part of his remarks, which caused loud laughter.

Mr. Bailey made the point that having spoken once on the measure, he could not again take the floor. He was overruled by the chair.

"Then," said Mr. Bailey, "I will at least force him to speak this session out."

Mr. Mason could force me to no more pleasant duty. Like his master from Texas, nothing pleases me more than to hear the sound of my own voice.

IN THE HOUSE.

Affecting Scenes at the Close of Session.

Washington, March 4.—The dokeys were cleared for the final adjournment at noon when the house reconvened at 10 o'clock this morning. The storm which culminated at 4 o'clock this morning, when Mr. Cannon delivered his scathing arraignment of the methods of the senate during the consideration of the conference report on the general deficiency appropriation bill, had passed, and everything promised a serene and peaceful ending. Although members had had little more than time to go home for baths, fresh linen and breakfast in the interim since the adjournment, shortly before daylight, they were back in their places for the closing ceremonies. The leaders on both sides were among the earliest arrivals, and when the seats at the galleries were filled they stood in long lines outside waiting patiently for a chance of admittance. The veteran arrivals, as is usual, the speaker, Mr. Cannon, with a red carnation in his buttonhole, came into the hall with his arm around Mr. Dulles, just as Speaker Henderson, whose long career in congress was to end in two short hours, ascended the rostrum. The speaker, despite the strain of the last few hours, looked smiling and serene as he faced the house, gavel in hand.

Mr. Richardson, the minority leader, who has been conducting the long filibuster, was on his feet smiling back at the speaker.

The Democratic minority were determined to make good their threat to the end of the session. As soon as the speaker's gavel fell he announced blandly that no quorum was present, and thereupon Mr. Payne, the majority leader, moved a call of the house.

The calling of the roll, which seemed to visitors in the galleries to have been going on continuously for the past week, began. The buzz of conversation in the galleries, checked momentarily by the bang of the speaker's gavel, was resumed. Members on the floor talked and laughed and the cracked voice of the reading clerk arose hoarsely above the din. The speaker several times was compelled to admonish the house to preserve order.

As the roll call was concluded a remarkable scene occurred. Speaker Henderson yielded the gavel to Mr. Cannon, the coming speaker. As the latter took the chair the members broke into a burst of applause, in which the galleries joined. It was quite as much a compliment to the retiring speaker as to Mr. Cannon. The speaker retired to his room in the rear of the hall, and Mr. Cannon then announced a motion for a call of the house, defeated, 17 to 124. Amid intense silence Mr. Payne, the majority leader, then arose and offered the following resolution of thanks to the retiring speaker:

"Resolved, that the thanks of the house be presented to the Hon. David B. Henderson, speaker of the house of representatives, for the able, impartial and dignified manner in which he has presided over its deliberations and performed the arduous and important duties of his office during the present term of congress."

As the reading was concluded Mr. Cochrane (Conn., Mo.) was on his feet demanding recognition, but the chair ruled that Mr. Payne was entitled to the floor. The majority leader faced the minority as he announced that he considered it a high honor and privilege to be permitted to offer this resolution, pointing out that it was the first time that such a resolution had come from the majority side. He cited the instances of Clay, Polk, Banks and the late Speaker Reed.

When Mr. Payne demanded the previous question and Speaker Pro Tem Cannon put the question, there was a second of oppressive silence. All eyes on the Democratic side. From the rear row Mr. Cochrane (Conn., Mo.) arose quickly and in a loud voice cried "Division," and then the "ayes and nays."

The gentleman from Missouri demands the ayes and nays, announced Mr. Cochrane, and when the speaker ordered the ayes and nays will rise and stand until they are counted.

Mr. Cochrane was already on his feet, Mr. Burleson (Tex.) at his side, joined him and with some seeming hesitation a score of other Democrats also rose to their feet. Mr. Richardson, Mr. Underwood, Mr. Williams (Miss.), De Armond and other prominent men on the minority side remained seated.

The sound of many feet on the floor, and the sound of many voices, were given by the members of the majority side, who were shouting that no foreigner would get through the district alive.

According to a dispatch from South China, the tribes are said to have thrown in their lot with the rebels in the first hour of the revolution. The first hour of the revolution would have been given in Canton on the night preceding the Chinese new year, had it not been for a European blockade.

A great wave of applause swept over the galleries as the announcement was made. Now the question came on the adoption of the resolution. Mr. Cochrane demanded a record vote. This time the only seventeen Democrats joined in the demand and the announcement that the resolution was adopted was hailed with redoubled applause.

When the applause subsided, the speaker pro tem laid before the house the president's veto of the bill to grant to N. F. Thompson the right to construct a dam at Muscle Shoals, Alabama, and to use the water power of the Tennessee river. Mr. Payne moved to refer the message to the committee on interstate commerce, pending which Mr. Livingston (Ga.), the ranking minority member of the appropriations committee, asked and obtained unanimous consent for himself and Mr. Cannon to print in the Congressional Record statements concerning the appropriations of this congress. This was the first unanimous consent granted since last Thursday.

Mr. Payne then yielded three minutes to Mr. Richardson (Ala.), the author of the vetoed bill, who made an urgent appeal to pass the measure over the president's veto.

Mr. Burton, chairman of the rivers and harbors committee, opposed Mr. Richardson's motion.

Mr. Payne demanded the previous question on his motion, and Mr. Richardson demanded the ayes and nays, supported by the whole Democratic side.

The previous question was ordered, 154 to 80, and at 11:30 the last roll call, the eightieth roll call of this legislative day of Thursday, Feb. 26, began on the motion to send the message to the committee on interstate commerce.

During the passage of the roll call the message from the senate announcing the passage of a resolution for appointment of a committee to wait on the president and inform him that congress was ready to adjourn was received.

Mr. Payne immediately asked unanimous consent that the chair appoint a committee of three to join the senate committee on this motion. There was no objection, and the chair appointed Messrs. Payne, Grosvener and Richardson (Tenn.). Mr. Payne's motion was carried, 202 to 99.

At this moment—six minutes to 12—Speaker Henderson re-entered the hall and ascended the rostrum amid a great demonstration on the Republican side and the galleries.

The applause grew into cheers, and the vast majority of Democrats rose with the Republicans to their feet to join in the demonstration. Then it ceased for a moment as Mr. Payne, of the committee, announced that the committee had waited on the president, and he had conveyed his congratulations whether it was proper for him to do so or not.

Mr. Cannon, still standing at the side of the rostrum, in a clear voice read the resolutions adopted by the house. Speaker Henderson was visibly affected as he faced the packed galleries and the members of the house for his valedictory. For half a minute he paused to control his emotions before beginning. Then, in a voice that trembled at first, but grew gradually stronger as he proceeded, until his words rang out, he delivered what was perhaps the most touching human farewell address ever delivered from the speaker's chair.

Towards the close he laid down the gavel and reached out his arm to his colleagues as he spoke of the love and affection with which he would treasure the friendships and memories of his career in the house. When he concluded the cheers from floor and galleries echoed and re-echoed through the hall.

The members, with a very few exceptions on the Democratic side, were on their feet. Suddenly there blossomed out on the Republican side, as if by magic, a forest of American flags. Waving them aloft, the members sang "America," the galleries rising en masse to join in the chorus. It was a stirring scene. As the notes of the hymn died away the speaker, who seemingly had forgotten to make the final announcement, turned as if to leave the chair, when he was reminded by the clerk at his side. He turned and in a clear voice declared the house adjourned sine die. Then the demonstration of applause was renewed. In the midst of it Mr. Kyle (Ohio), in his sweet tenor voice, began singing "Sweet Land of Liberty." The house took it up as the members surged forward to bid the speaker farewell. He had descended from the rostrum and, standing at the side, he was greeted by a crowd of friends and admirers who received from him some pleasant word and a cordial handshake.

A dozen Republicans gathered on the marble steps behind him, and the song changed to "For he's a jolly good fellow," and later to "God be with you till we meet again." This hymn so touched the speaker that he turned to Mr. Tawney (Minn.), while the procession was still passing, and asked him to later write out the words and send them to him. Before all the members had passed the visitors from the galleries began surging onto the floor, also eager to grasp his hand. For over half an hour the reception was continued and finally broke up with the singing of the doxology. Many ladies had trust bouquets of flowers into his hands, and when ex-speaker Henderson finally retired to his room his arms were filled with violets, roses and other choice flowers.

The new plant will employ 200 men and will have a killing capacity of 100 hogs, 1500 cattle and 1000 sheep daily.

REBELS IN CANTON. Canton, China, March 4.—Further news regarding the rebel movement organized by Kung Su and North China by Tung Fu Hsing, having for its object the massacre of foreigners and the placing of a new emperor on the throne, is received by the steamer Empress of India, which arrived here at 10 o'clock this morning.

In all only twenty-one correspondents to the scene and they have reported that the rebel leader, Kung Su, and other foreign officials. The correspondent saw the rebels in the city of Kung Su and North China by Tung Fu Hsing, having for its object the massacre of foreigners and the placing of a new emperor on the throne, is received by the steamer Empress of India, which arrived here at 10 o'clock this morning.

The sound of many feet on the floor, and the sound of many voices, were given by the members of the majority side, who were shouting that no foreigner would get through the district alive.

According to a dispatch from South China, the tribes are said to have thrown in their lot with the rebels in the first hour of the revolution. The first hour of the revolution would have been given in Canton on the night preceding the Chinese new year, had it not been for a European blockade.

A great wave of applause swept over the galleries as the announcement was made. Now the question came on the adoption of the resolution. Mr. Cochrane demanded a record vote. This time the only seventeen Democrats joined in the demand and the announcement that the resolution was adopted was hailed with redoubled applause.

When the applause subsided, the speaker pro tem laid before the house the president's veto of the bill to grant to N. F. Thompson the right to construct a dam at Muscle Shoals, Alabama, and to use the water power of the Tennessee river. Mr. Payne moved to refer the message to the committee on interstate commerce, pending which Mr. Livingston (Ga.), the ranking minority member of the appropriations committee, asked and obtained unanimous consent for himself and Mr. Cannon to print in the Congressional Record statements concerning the appropriations of this congress. This was the first unanimous consent granted since last Thursday.

Mr. Payne then yielded three minutes to Mr. Richardson (Ala.), the author of the vetoed bill, who made an urgent appeal to pass the measure over the president's veto.

Mr. Burton, chairman of the rivers and harbors committee, opposed Mr. Richardson's motion.

Mr. Payne demanded the previous question on his motion, and Mr. Richardson demanded the ayes and nays, supported by the whole Democratic side.

The previous question was ordered, 154 to 80, and at 11:30 the last roll call, the eightieth roll call of this legislative day of Thursday, Feb. 26, began on the motion to send the message to the committee on interstate commerce.

During the passage of the roll call the message from the senate announcing the passage of a resolution for appointment of a committee to wait on the president and inform him that congress was ready to adjourn was received.

LUMBERMEN NOT SELLING

Those Owning Lands Near Highland Not Anxious to Negotiate.

The interest in the new Highland iron range has taken another turn.

Local men have been endeavoring to get land held by the large logging companies in the vicinity of Highland, and have received refusals that were given in such a way as to indicate that extensive explorations are contemplated by the big lumbering concerns—when they get through logging.

As soon as the show goes off eight drills will be put to work at and near Highland. Two of these drills will be installed on the King property.

A man that has made considerable out of his iron discoveries in Northern Minnesota said today that he had just completed an examination of the Highland indications and found them better than the indications on the Mesabi years ago.

He also said that there was undoubtedly a body of high grade ore in that vicinity, but whether or not this body was of sufficient extent to pay only a thorough exploration with diamond drills could tell.

There is a report current that the Alger-Smith company will do a little test-pitting near Highland during the coming season, but this report cannot be confirmed.

Some Improvement Made to the Lyceum Stock.

Two pieces of scenic art have been completed and put in place in the Lyceum theater, which are considered exceptionally well executed.

The grand drapery, which is hung just below the top rail, and inside the curtain in the proscenium, is one of the new ones, and the top rail set, the pieces which occupy the place of honor in the wings nearest the audience, the other.

The work was done by W. T. Davis, of the Twin Cities scenic studio, assisted by Mitchell Croker, lately with Mrs. Fiske's company at the Manhattan theater, New York.

The artists are engaged on more work and in the course of a short time the theater will have a scenic equipment that is second to none in the Twin Cities houses in point of equipment.

ANNA HELD COMING

Will Play Four Performances In Duluth
Next Week.

Special Train Will Bring the Company Direct From Helena.

Anna Held will give five performances of "The Little Duchess" at the head of the lakes next week.

Manager Charles A. Marshall, of the Lyceum theater closed the terms of the engagement at 11 o'clock this morning with Miss Held's husband and manager,
L. Ziegfeld, who is on the Pacific coast.

Anna Held and her company will appear for the first time in this territory with one performance at Superior, the 15th and four here, the 12th, 13th and 14th with one matinee.

The three days' engagement of Miss Held in Duluth constitutes one of the theatrical events of the season. It follows the lead taken in the long engagement of the "Kling Daddo" company, namely, to show the managers of road companies that Duluth will stand longer engagements and make it worth while financially for the best to come.

Manager Marshall secured the acquisition of Manager Ziegfeld this morning after a week of negotiation over the telegraph lines between here and the coast, and considers the strike a lucky one for Duluth. If Anna Held and her company leave Duluth with a good record for the city, it will mean that there can be secured here the best of the companies on the road for three or four months.

Miss Held and company will come from Helena, Mont. She travels in a special car with her pet dog and a retinue of servants and husband, and the company and equipment will travel in the sleeper each and two baggage cars, which makes up the special train of five coaches that she is making the tour of the country by.

"The Little Duchess" was considered the most popular of the Broadway attractions at musical comedy, when it was run in London and it was through the piece that the "Fencing Girl" picture became the rage and so popular a stage play.

The original cast, which includes Joseph Herbert, Franz Herl, George Mar-ton, and James Wilson, and Lucien Drew, "Billie" Norton, Louise Royce and others were in the Broadway production. The aggregation of female beauty which is carried in the new exchange is the leading of Miss Held herself, and unlike most attractions of the road, she has a claim to be called a

City Passenger Agent McFadden of the Northern Pacific said this noon that the details of the head of the special train from Helena had been arranged, and that the trip was promised, equal to and last production, and taken by the one made by David Warfield some weeks ago.

Mr. McFadden said that the trip was made in the way of business he never dreamed of finding in this country.
The city of Duluth is one of the best of the best musical comedies on the road and when it comes here and has a long production, and taken by the

It took a week or two to secure the engagement, as time had to be manipulated, and other attractions which were booked in for the time next week had to be switched and taken by the

HIS FINAL MEAL

Victor Dash Will Give Henderson Anything
He Orders.

Morbidly Curious Will Have No Chance to See Anything.

Charles E. L. Henderson's last meal, which will be served to him tomorrow night by V. A. Dash, who has the contract for feeding the prisoners in the county jail, may be just as sumptuous as the condemned man desires.

It is said to be customary for wardons and jailers to give a prisoner condemned to death anything which he desires to order for his last meal on earth.

Dash said this morning that he should follow this custom as nearly as possible and would have the turnkey ask Henderson what he desired for his last meal, that he will be given anything in the edible line that he desires, providing it is possible to get it in this city.

Henderson asked Sheriff Eutcher yesterday if his sisters might be permitted to see him executed. This is said to be a very unusual request, for the reason that relatives of a person condemned to death do not, as a rule, desire to witness the end. It is probably that Henderson's sisters have any desire to witness his execution, even were they given permission to do so.

One of Henderson's sisters, Mrs.
Lapsley, says that her sister, Mrs.
Heard, was not in St. Paul Monday.
The execution will be witnessed only by the sheriff and his deputies, a representative of the governor, and possibly the condemned man's attorney, and a physician.

The scaffold is ready for erection.
The plans were made by James Shumpeter, who yesterday afternoon presented his bill of $25 to the sheriff. The bill will be created after tonight tomorrow and will be removed immediately after the execution.

The big lumbermen are coming into Duluth in numbers to be present at the approach of logging season.

This morning there arrived John O-Brien, of the O'Brien Lumber company of Chicago; Joseph Miksak, of the Miksak

Fond du Lac, whose interests are in wood for match-making purposes, and S. S.

RETAIL CLERKS STORES

Retail Clerks Consider Request to Open Them In Spring.

Merchants Will Be Asked To Pay For Extra Time.

The Retail Clerks' union has practically agreed to the request of the clothing and shoe merchants that stores be kept open evenings for the benefit of the woodsmen trade.

The clerks say they will temporarily abandon the early closing agreement and keep open evenings until 9 o'clock during the spring rush from the woods, if the merchants will agree to pay them for the extra time on a pro rata salary basis.

This conclusion was reached at a meeting of the union last evening that was called by the clerks to discuss the organization. The consensus of opinion among the clerks present was that the stores should not be opened, but they desired a practical demonstration of their assertion that early closing made business instead of decreasing it, as one of their members said.

"We do not want our employers to lose money, but it is the impression among the clerks that the stores on or east of Third avenue west will not get much of the woodsmen trade, even if they are kept open until 9 o'clock.

"At our meeting last night some of the members of the union were in favor of keeping open in response to the request of the merchants, providing the clerks were paid for the extra time

BUSY DAYS AHEAD

The Work of Getting Logs Out Must Be Accomplished.

Now comes the busiest days for the Northern white pine loggers. Within the next month or six weeks the winter operations for 1902 and 1903 will have been practically completed. The operators who are behind in their work must bend every energy to catch up with their contracts during this month or, it is claimed by the old experienced loggers, they will not be able to do so this season.

All over the white pine districts of Minnesota and Wisconsin thousands and thousands of logs have been cut in the woods, and while a large proportion of them have already been hauled along the shores of the driving streams and of the small lakes, or have been started on their long railway haul to the mills, there are still millions of feet of timber to be skidded out of the woods before the spring break-up or, more so than for years past, because of the heavy fall of snow over the Northwest, which, when it melts off, will raise the water in the rivers. This condition is said to be certain to aid in largely increasing the log supply of the various mills in the Duluth area during the coming spring and summer sailing season.

In view of the present conditions which make it advisable to push the logging operations along as fast as possible, the contractors are making strenuous efforts to get and keep many men at their camps and the demand for labor in the woods is something enormous with wages at the very top notch. The class of woodsmen who go into the woods to make and save money may blame themselves this spring if they do not have a good bank account. One instance of the demand for men and the shortage of labor is illustrated in the logging operations of the Edward Hines Lumber company, which is cutting several millions of feet of pine in Northern Wisconsin this season. The company now employs about 200 men in the pine woods of Douglas county, Wis., alone, and is advertising for more. Near Maple, Wis., a few miles out of West Superior, the company has about 1200 men at work and the new camps west of Hawthorne, on the Omaha have between 700 and 800 men. In the latter camp the Hines company has recently started its operations, having secured that strip of timber north of Amnicon and Lyman lakes, a station called Hines Spur, has been put in where the logging road connects with the Omaha road north of Hawthorne. A trainload of thirty-five cars of logs is being sent out every day, thus averaging 40,000 feet daily or 2,500,000 feet per week. The logs are being shipped to Hayward, Wis., where the Hines Lumber company, this past winter, bought a sawmill plant.

NEW CRANE IN USE.

Second One Installed at the Shipyards.

The new engine crane is now in operation at the shipyards and will be used principally on the tracks nearest Howard's pocket, carrying steel frames and plates that will be used in the construction of the two boats which are being built on the extemporized berth north of the punch sheds.

This is the second engine crane to be installed, the first having been necessitated by the fact there are four instead of the customary two boats under construction.

The work on all four new vessels is said to be well underway, most of the frames have been placed and the work of putting on plates will soon start. The repair work on the big fleet lying in and near the shipyard gives employment to a small army of men.

Sent to Fergus Falls.

Jacob Gustafson, a woodsman who was brought to Duluth from the vicinity of Chisholm, was yesterday examined before the judge of probate and pronounced insane. He will be sent to Fergus Falls. Gustafson seemed to answer questions intelligently until it came to his head, when he declared that somebody had changed heads with him, that his head was a good one, but the one he now carries on his shoulders is a bad one. Gustafson has spells that he imagines that he owns the earth.

CARES FOR MONEY

More Than He Does For His Daughter.

Chicago, March 4.—Clifton Ross, hero of a horse-tough ducking some time ago at the hands of a South Side girl's father, has again brought himself into prominence by eloping with a pretty West Side girl of 17 years, the daughter of Albert L. Chouinard. Mr. Chouinard reported the matter yesterday to the West Lake street police station, and asked detectives to aid him in finding the runaway pair. It is not so much the absence of his daughter Henrietta that concerns the anxious father as the fact that soon after discovering her flight he learned someone had taken $350 from under the carpet in his bedroom.

DECIDES LONG DRAWN OUT SUIT

Judge Cant Rules In Case Involving Vermilion Range Lands.

The long drawn out lawsuit of H. D. Scott against S. M. Hay, the Knox Lumber company and S. F. Bell was terminated in district court of this county yesterday by the formal overruling by Judge Cant of the motion for a new trial. An appeal to the supreme court from the order overruling the motion was immediately taken by the plaintiff.

The record in this case is a very voluminous one, the main issues, being as follows:

S. M. Hay had a mortgage on the lands in controversy which, embrace over 400 acres, located on the Vermilion range and in the extreme northern part of this county and said to have a high speculative value. Soon after the mortgage was given, Hay is said to have satisfied it in full and to have received any money that was due him. Mr. Scott purchased the property from Parlan Semple, the mortgage and owner, but by inadvertence he failed to have his deed recorded until 1890. In the meantime, the satisfaction of the mortgage instituted proceedings and secured a foreclosure judgment without plaintiff's knowledge. This judgment and sale thereunder, would not, it is alleged, vest a complete title in Hay as the purchaser, so that he procured purchasers for the timber on the land and obtained proceeds without giving credit to Mr. Semple for the reason that there was no indebtedness owing him.

It is further claimed that a remnant of the property was, however, sold under foreclosure judgment and bid in by Mr. Hay, the mortgagee, but he failed to put on record his certificate of purchase until about a year afterward, although the law requires the sale to be recorded within 20 days of the confirmation of the same. Through this failure to record, it was claimed by the plaintiff that the foreclosure sale was void.

The contention in the case was that the deed from Semple to the Knox Lumber company and F. S. Bell were procured through fraud and with the knowledge of plaintiff's unrecorded deed, also that Mr. Semple was at the time of Zenith Athletics Against Wisconsin University Basketball Team.

Freimuths to Meet Hubs at Indoor Ball Thursday.

Friday night's basketball game between the Zenith Athletics and the university of Wisconsin team is attracting considerable attention among Duluth basketball enthusiasts. It will be one of the best, if not the best game, which will be played here this season. Wisconsin alumni and their friends are taking a great deal of interest in the contest and there promises to be some warm rooting between the supporters of the Duluth team and those who want to see the Cardinals win.

The Wisconsin team never visited Duluth before. This game is somewhat of an experiment. If it is successful financially, other strong teams from a distance will probably be brought here by the ambitious Duluth team.

Saturday evening the team will go to Superior and there will meet the team of the normal school. It was impossible for the Duluth team to meet the Minnesota team as they had wished because of the fact that Minnesota is playing out of town. The normal school will have met both teams and the comparative scores of the games will make a comparison between Duluth and Minnesota possible.

The lineup of the teams Friday will be:

Duluth	Wisconsin
Freimuths	Forward
Hubs	Forward
	Potter
	Deighton Center
	Schofield
	Ed. Smith Guard

FREIMUTHS VS. HUBS.

Will Play Ball at the Armory Thursday Evening.

Thursday evening, at the Armory, the Freimuth team will line up against the Hub aggregation. This will be the third game of the Hub team and will give them another chance to get out of the last place in the league, which they have held since they entered.

The Freimuths have one of the strongest teams in the league, and if the Hubs are able to win from them they will have to play lively. Capt. Cummings' men have been putting in some good looks at practice of late and they will probably make an excellent showing.

Most of the Hub men are high school students and as soon as the weather is warm enough to allow practice, they will begin on their work for the outdoor season, which will probably open about the last of April.

A LARGE MONTH.

Land Office Receipts in February Run High.

During last month the largest business ever done by the land office in the month of February was handled by Register Cullin and Receiver Smith and their force of clerks. The total receipts amounted to $38,813.38, or nearly three times the total for February of last year.

Of this amount $33,911.33 came from the sale of 15,375 acres of public lands, and $27,422 was received from fees and other sources. The land office has been reaching a high mark in business for the last few years. The officials of the land office are very proud of the showing made in February a very creditable one.

COOKS WANT MORE PAY.

Delegates From Union Visit Lake Carriers' Association.

Detroit, Mich., March 4.—The executive committee of the Lake Carriers' association met here yesterday in executive session and received a delegation from the Marine Cooks' union. The cooks asked an increase on first and second class boats to $75 a month, and on third class boats $70, and second class cooks and porters $1 per day and 25 cents extra per day for all from Oct. 1 to close of navigation. Owing to some question as to the credentials of the delegates the matter was laid over. Resolutions of regret were passed on the death of Capt. Brown of Cleveland.

PLACE FOR PURDY.

To Be a Federal Assistant Attorney-General.

Minneapolis, March 4.—Mr. D. Purdy, of this city, is understood to be slated for a fine federal position to assist the prosecution of trust cases now pending. President Roosevelt is about to appoint two additional assistant attorney generals to assist in the cases named and in handling the work of the department of justice, which has rapidly increased since the trust suits were commenced and will continue to increase on account of what the bureau of corporations in the department of justice is expected to do.

There has been considerable talk about the abandonment law that is pending in the house. When legislation on this subject was started this winter the first bills were simply to cure a defect in the old law, which consisted in the fact that some judges held that women could not testify against their husbands, even in such cases as these. The Duluth judges did not hold that way, and the old law, making desertion a felony, worked very satisfactorily there, several convictions being had.

The house judiciary committee substituted a bill for the one that had already been introduced, and the house in committee of the whole yesterday recommended it to pass.

The substitute bill does not describe desertion as either a felony or a misdemeanor, and the only personal punishment that can be administered is for contempt of court. The bill provides that on complaint being made to any justice of the peace or judge of municipal court, he shall issue a warrant and have the accused brought before him. If the accused pays his wife such property as she may agree to receive, satisfaction, and pay all the costs of the prosecution, he is to be discharged, provided he gives a satisfactory bond to continue to support his family. If he does not, he is to be bound over to the district court, where bonds of $100 to $500. If the district court finds that he is guilty he must pay such sums as the court shall determine, and if he refuses to do so the court may send him to the state prison for a term of not more than one year.

Mr. Armstrong, of Minneapolis, yesterday introduced a bill providing that constitutional amendments may be passed by a majority vote of those voting on the amendments, instead of the majority of all the votes cast at the election being required, as now. A similar bill has been introduced in the senate.

The Haugland tax code, which is now in the hands of the house committee on taxes and tax law, is deemed by the committee to be a very good one. The committee took it up yesterday afternoon, and referred it to a sub-committee to report upon it next Tuesday afternoon, when it and all other bills creating a tax commission are to be made a special order of business before the committee on taxation. It is hoped that the committee will be able to report on the bill by the end of the session.

The senate labor committee yesterday agreed to recommend for passage the bill limiting the hours of locomotive engineers and firemen to fourteen. It has already passed the house.

A bill recommended to pass by the house yesterday in committee of the whole will equip the county attorneys of the state with a contingent fund to be drawn upon in prosecution of criminal cases and in conducting investigations before grand juries. County attorneys are often called upon to go for want of such a contingent fund, and without it they are compelled to go through a routine form of operations in conducting grand jury investigations that makes secrecy absolutely impossible.

The Nelson bill requiring dealers in the various imitations of butter to take out licenses, was favorably acted upon by the house in committee of the whole yesterday.

One of the most interesting bills to a great many people was the one bill relating to exemptions from garnishment, execution or attachment, which the house recommended to pass yesterday. It provides that $8 per week out of each person's salary shall be exempt from all process, providing that no greater exemption than $2 shall be allowed any person in a lump sum for work performed during thirty days preceding the issue of process.

STILLMAN B. BINGHAM.

A remarkable case. One of the most remarkable cases causing pneumonia, is that of Mrs. Gertrude E. Penner, Marion, Ind., who was cured by the use of One Cough Cure. She says: "Four bottles of this wonderful remedy cured my cold, cough and restored me to my health and strength. Max Wirth."

No train in America is more brilliantly lighted than the Golden State Limited.

Electric lights are everywhere—in the roofs, on the sides of the cars, in the berths. This last feature is worthy of special note, for it not only enables one to undress in comfort, but also, in case one wishes, to read in bed. The berth lights are conveniently placed and can be turned on and off at pleasure.

The Golden State Limited leaves Kansas City daily via the El Paso-Rock Island route and Southern Pacific Company. Only a little more than two days to Los Angeles. Thru cars to Santa Barbara and San Francisco. Compartment and standard sleepers, dining, library, and observation cars. Lowest altitudes of any line across the continent. Daily connections from St. Paul and Minneapolis. Tickets and full information at any railroad ticket office, or by addressing:

It is understood by a few, however, that he is as much interested in pictures as ever. Both his town and country houses contain many high-priced canvasses, most of which are of real merit, and many of which were selected by himself. May it be possible that some day in the future William Rockefeller's name will be known as that of a great art collector and art patron? DECLINE IN WHEAT Market Holds Steady Most of Morning and Then Slumps.

Flax Has Short Advance But Loses All and More.

Duluth Board of Trade, March 4.—The wheat market was rather weak at the opening this morning and ruled dull after recovering the loss, with prices restricted to a narrow range. The opening weakness was due to lower cables, and an advance in the Northwest receipts was a bearish factor. The market held steady near the closing time, when it fell off and closed slightly lower than yesterday. The Chicago market closed unchanged to 1/4 cent lower, par 1 1/2 to 1 3/4 lower. Antwerp and Berlin unchanged. Primary receipts of wheat were 48,000 bushels, last year 46,000 bushels. Shipments, 200,000 bushels, last year 180,000 bushels. Clearances of wheat and flour were 275,000 bushels. Receipts of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis, 35 cars, and at Chicago 25, a total of 320 cars, against 245 last week and 250 last year.

Corn in the Liverpool market closed 1/4 cent lower. May corn in Chicago closed 1/4 cent lower, and at Duluth 1/4 cent lower. Primary receipts of corn were 74,000 bushels, last year 70,000 bushels. Shipments, 200,000 bushels, last year 180,000 bushels. Clearances of corn were 275,000 bushels. Receipts of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis, 35 cars, and at Chicago 25, a total of 320 cars, against 245 last week and 250 last year.

Wheat trading was very slow in the Duluth market. May opened 1/4 cent off at 77 1/2, sold up to 77 3/4 at 9:30 and sold after that at 77 1/2 and 77 3/4. It closed at 77 1/2, with prices until nearly 1 o'clock, falling off to 77 1/4 at 1:30, and then to 77 1/2 at 2:30. Chicago declined 1/4 cent and Minneapolis was slightly lower.

Cash prices were unchanged. No. 1 northern bringing May price, No. 2 2 1/2 under and No. 3 3 1/2 under. Sales were 200 cars.

May flax was fairly active and started with a decline of 1/4 cent, then recovered 1/4 cent up to 1 1/4. It failed to hold that level and toward the close was weak, closing at 1 1/4, a decline of 1/4 cent. It dropped 1/4 cent.

There was a decline of 1/4 cent in the price of oats to arrive and on track.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat—No. 1 northern, 77 1/2; No. 2 northern, 75 1/2; No. 3 northern, 73 1/2; No. 4 northern, 71 1/2; No. 5 northern, 69 1/2; No. 6 northern, 67 1/2; No. 7 northern, 65 1/2; No. 8 northern, 63 1/2; No. 9 northern, 61 1/2; No. 10 northern, 59 1/2; No. 11 northern, 57 1/2; No. 12 northern, 55 1/2; No. 13 northern, 53 1/2; No. 14 northern, 51 1/2; No. 15 northern, 49 1/2; No. 16 northern, 47 1/2; No. 17 northern, 45 1/2; No. 18 northern, 43 1/2; No. 19 northern, 41 1/2; No. 20 northern, 39 1/2; No. 21 northern, 37 1/2; No. 22 northern, 35 1/2; No. 23 northern, 33 1/2; No. 24 northern, 31 1/2; No. 25 northern, 29 1/2; No. 26 northern, 27 1/2; No. 27 northern, 25 1/2; No. 28 northern, 23 1/2; No. 29 northern, 21 1/2; No. 30 northern, 19 1/2; No. 31 northern, 17 1/2; No. 32 northern, 15 1/2; No. 33 northern, 13 1/2; No. 34 northern, 11 1/2; No. 35 northern, 9 1/2; No. 36 northern, 7 1/2; No. 37 northern, 5 1/2; No. 38 northern, 3 1/2; No. 39 northern, 1 1/2; No. 40 northern, 1/2.

MEASURE TO CODIFY THE ELECTION LAWS

House Bill to Extend Torrens Law Passed.
State Art Society Favored by the Senate.

FROM A STAFF CORRESPONDENT

St. Paul, March 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—A commission to revise and codify the election laws of the state is proposed in a bill introduced in the house this morning by Mr. Gilgling, of Hennepin. The commission is to have three members, to be appointed by the governor, the lieutenant governor and the speaker of the house within fifteen days after the passage of the bill. The commission is to report the result of its work to the next legislature in the shape of a bill or bills which shall contain a complete system of nomination and election of all public officers by direct vote of the people. The report must be made to the governor before Nov. 1, 1903, the commission is to be paid $300 each for its work, and the total expense is not to exceed $2,000, which is appropriated by the bill.

Other house bills were as follows: By Capt. Randall, appropriating $2500 to continue the work of preserving the records of the civil war in the office of the adjutant general; by Mr. Fulton, giving the state board of veterinary examiners $7 a day and 4 cents mileage out of the fees received; by Mr. Jacobson, providing that doctors who have had four years' experience in positions where prescriptions have been compounded may have certificates as registered pharmacists without examination.

The railroad committee's trust-buster, which was a special order for 11 o'clock today, was continued to next Tuesday at 2 p. m.

The house passed Mr. Cole's bill, which prevents the submission of more than one county division proposition at a time. It does not do this, but in order for a proposition to carry, it must have a majority of all the votes cast on all divisions at the election at which it is submitted.

The Lohman bill, extending the Torrens law over all lands, was passed. It was the Torrens bill prohibiting the consolidation of the capital stock of corporations and compelling corporations to incorporate. This bill is along the lines of the Torrens bill, and is designed to cover such cases as that of the Northern Securities company.

The Wilson bill, which permits the service of subpoenas upon witnesses residing out of the state, was passed, and so was the Torrens bill, which was a special order for 11 o'clock today, was continued to next Tuesday at 2 p. m.

MORLEY BILL IS DEFEATED IN HOUSE BY NARROW MARGIN Resurrected By Still Closer Vote and Laid On Table —It Would Take Normal School From the Hands of the Board of Control.

FROM A STAFF CORRESPONDENT

St. Paul, March 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Morley board of control bill was killed in the house yesterday afternoon by a narrow margin, and then it was resurrected again by a still narrower margin.

Then it was laid on the table, from whence it can be called at any time by its friends when they think it stands a show of passage.

The bill is not dead yet, by any means. Whether it will pass in its present form or not is somewhat doubtful, but the chances are that before the session is over, at least the state university and the normal schools will be rescued from the hands of the board of control.

The bill yesterday was opposed by those who think the board of control has saved money, and that it therefore ought to be continued in charge of all the state institutions; by those who think it is a bad thing and want to see it killed altogether, and who therefore want to keep the educational institutions in so that their friends may help kill it when the proper time comes; and last, but not least, by those who want to see the university and the normal schools taken out, but who think the Owatonna and Fairbault schools ought to stay in.

The senate this afternoon will consider the matter on special orders, and it will have up two bills, one taking out all of the educational institutions, and another taking out only the university and the normal schools. Undoubtedly the action of the senate will have an important bearing on the action of the house, and probably yesterday's action of the house may work to the advantage of the bill taking out the university and normal schools out.

Friends of these institutions are just now a little at sea as to whether they can gain most by cutting out the Owatonna and Fairbault schools from the bill, or by standing pat on the bill, or by standing pat on the bill.

WABASH MEN MAY STRIKE INDIVIDUALLY

No Sign of Weakening
In Henderson's Calm
State of Mind.
Gallows Will Be Set Up In a Few Hours' Time.

This is Charles E. L. Henderson's last day of life. Before the rising sun tomorrow morning shall have dispelled the darkness of the early morning hours, Henderson's life will have paid the penalty for the murder of his mistress, Ida McCormack.

In spite of the knowledge that his end is rapidly approaching, Henderson is bearing up under the strain with the same coolness that he has shown all along, and the jail officials express confidence that his nerve will stand by him to the very last.

He will be accompanied to the gallows by Rev. John Callahan, who has acted as his spiritual adviser and who has promised to stay by him until the trap is sprung and Henderson is launched to his death.

The gallows will be erected on the spot selected by the sheriff after sundown today. The separate portions of the structure are in readiness, and all that remains is to fit them together and give the working parts a test before the execution. This is not expected to take more than five or six hours, as several workmen will be employed to put it in place.

The gallows was not constructed from the plans presented by Mr. Sampson, as was stated a few days ago. He presented a plan to the sheriff, but it was found too impracticable and the plans adopted were drawn up by George Stevens.

The structure, while built along simple lines, will be very strong. It is built principally of pine, the cross arms at the top to which the rope will be attached being of oak, as are the various wooden parts used in holding the gallows together and other parts likely to be subjected to strain.

The gallows will be exactly 13 feet 11 inches high, and the platform, which will stand at an elevation of seven feet from the base of the structure, will be 12 feet square. A short flight of stairs will lead from the base to the platform.

The condemned man will stand after the house has been adjourned, and the gallows will be set up. The gallows will be set up in the afternoon, and the gallows will be set up in the afternoon.

POLICE WEAVE NET AROUND MURDERER Buffalo Sleuths Are Confident They Know Burdick Assassin.

Buffalo, March 5.—There were no developments throughout the night in the Burdick murder case. The officials claim to be absolutely certain that the murder was committed by a woman; that they know the woman, and that they can make an arrest the moment their chain of evidence is sufficient to secure a conviction.

A house in the Elwood district is being watched day and night. The police decline to say who they are watching the house. Last night for the first time the detectives were withdrawn from the New York Central and other stations. This move is regarded as strong evidence that the police believe they know where the murderer is and that there is no danger of escape. An important fact which the police have known all along but not made public, is that on the morning when the body of Burdick was discovered the top drawer in a table at the head of the couch where the body lay was open. Little significance was attached to the fact at the time, for the reason that it was known almost at the outset that robbery was not the motive for the crime. But, associated with facts and circumstances uncovered since then, it looms up, the police believe, as a most important clue. When the police reached the Burdick house on the morning of the murder, the top drawer in the table was open. The police noticed it. Later in the day, when their investigations reached that point, they questioned the occupants of the Burdick house closely concerning that open drawer. They were informed positively that nothing had been disturbed; that the drawer was open when the body was found.

In the drawer were some letters, a few papers and odds and ends. The letters and papers were disarranged and on the floor of the den were several papers, indicating that they had been dragged out of the open drawer and left where they fell. Now the police say the certain letters were taken from this drawer. They are confident that they are on the right track.

What is more, they claim to have in their possession at the present time a last and strong card, which they have not yet played.

DYING MAN CONFESSES MURDER COMMITTED THREE YEARS AGO Band of Chicago Thieves Who Were In the Habit of Drugging Victims Gave George Howard Too Much Chloral and He Died.

Chicago, March 5.—Murder was committed by a band of thieves who drugged and robbed strangers nightly in West Madison street saloons, and which has been known to the police by John Lyons, one of the band, Lyons was said to be dying of consumption, says his conscience gave him no rest and that he will find peace only in death. George Howard, a printer, was the victim, and on the statements made by Lyons charges of murder have been placed against Joseph Moore and James Bray, who are under arrest in St. Louis.

So many are the robberies that Lyons is said to be unable to recall the times or places, and so accustomed were the men to dealing out chloral to their intended victims that the danger of fatal results was lost to them until Howard failed to recover and the possibility of their career. Howard was drugged in a saloon in West Madison street. After he fell in a stupor the trio carried him to the Wilkin street front of the place, where they robbed him of $17 and fled. He was picked up by the police and died in the patrol wagon.

Lyons was serving out a fine in the Bridewell when his falling health quickened his conscience and he made a confession on the strength of which the search for Moore and Bray was commenced.

James Vail, son of the older woman, was the only one of the family who escaped. He had tried to rescue his mother and sister, but was cut off by the flames and forced to run to the rear fire escapes to save his own life. The ten families in the house, now burning 100 people, became panic-stricken from the fire.

The property loss by the fire was small.

TWO WOMEN MEET DEATH IN FIRE

New York, March 5.—Ellen Call, 55 years old, and Elizabeth Vail, 22 years old, her daughter, met death in a fire in East Seventeenth street today. The older woman was suffocated and the younger jumped from the fourth floor. The property loss by the fire was small.

WOMAN NEARLY ASPHYXIATED IS OF ARISTOCRATIC LINEAGE Mrs. Stanley, Found In Room at Denver With Dead Body of Major Hurd, Proves to Be a Granddaughter of Lord Kercastle of Scotland.

Denver, March 5.—Mrs. Georgia Stanley, who was found in an unconscious condition in the same room in which lay the dead body of Maj. Marshall Hurd yesterday, proves to be a woman of aristocratic lineage. She is a granddaughter of Lord Kercastle of Inverness, Scotland. Her mother was Lady Allen and her father was governor of an English province in India. Lady Allen by a second marriage became the mother of Sir James Grant of Toronto, one of the most eminent physicians of the Dominion of Canada, who was knighted by Queen Victoria. Mrs. Stanley, it is said, was three married. Her first husband and their four children died of the black diphtheria in Quebec. Several years later she married a resident of Washington, D. C., who was in the government service. A year or later he was shot and killed himself in a hotel at Syracuse. She then married Herbert Stanley. Her relatives disapproved of the union, and the Stanleys came to Denver to live. About a year ago Mr. Stanley died of paralysis and left his widow practically penniless and helpless on account of ill health. Maj. Hurd, who at that time was an inmate of the Old Soldiers' home at Monte Vista, Colo., came to Denver and undertook to care for Mrs. Stanley, whose late husband was his friend. The small pension he received from the government was not sufficient to provide the needs of the couple, and assistance was rendered them by charitable persons. It was on the occasion of one of these visits yesterday that the tragedy at the house was discovered. The doctor attending Mrs. Stanley believed that her condition and Maj. Hurd's death was due to breathing the fumes of coal gas, which escaped through a crack in the wall. The suicide theory is discredited. Mrs. Stanley, they believe, has a chance for recovering consciousness at least.

BEAR ATTEMPTS TO MAKE MEAL OF A MICHIGAN HOMESTEADER Charles Demary Came Across Bruin While Unarmed and Ran—The Bear Followed Him and Attacked Him—Was Rescued By a Companion.

Houghton, Mich., March 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—While blazing a trail to his homestead in Elm River, Charles Demary and Charles Buchanan encountered bear and the meeting nearly ended fatally for Demary. Demary was in front when he ran into the bear, the bear followed him and attacked him. He was rescued by a companion.

The bear got him down and started to make a meal of him. Buchanan, in answer to shouts, came up and belabored the bear with an ax until he was turned tail, leaving his victim unconscious with a broken arm and severely lacerated shoulder. Buchanan helped his companion back to camp and summoned physicians. Buchanan afterwards went after the bear with rifle and, following its trail for two miles, came up with the animal and shot it.

HOTEL GUESTS GET A BAD SCARE

New York, March 5.—Two hundred guests in the Sturtevant hotel at Broadway and Twenty-ninth street were greatly excited early today by a blaze in the basement of the building, which filled the halls with smoke. Men, women and children rushed to the side-walk, and one woman who appeared at the second story window with a baby in her arms tried to jump to the street. Firemen stopped her. Two men were arrested and locked up, charged with robbing several rooms from which frightened guests had fled. The property damage was confined to the basement and did not exceed $1000.

HAS ONE CHANCE IN THREE TO LIVE

Philadelphia, March 5.—An operation, which, it is said, was never before attempted in this country, although performed four times successfully in the history of the Jefferson hospital here. It was for the removal of a tumor near the left hip joint and involved the amputation of the entire left leg and a portion of the ilium.

POPE FATIGUED FROM OVERWORK

Rome, March 5.—Dr. Lippold visited the pope today and found him no worse with regard to symptoms of his special illness. The physician has forbidden anyone to see the pontiff, except the latter's nephew, Count Camillo Pretti, who entered the pope's room as Dr. Lippold left it. The fact is that the pope's physical prostration is due to overwork and over-excitement, which, however, leaves his mental faculties perfectly clear, wonderfully so, indeed. Therefore Dr. Lippold thinks that a few days rest will restore the pope to his usual condition. The physician also says that the history of the pope's illness will induce the numerous pilgrims and notable persons, who are now in Rome, to abandon the idea of seeing the pontiff and thus avoid causing the latter further fatigue, which might place him in serious danger.

GIGANT STRIDES

Commeisseurs, the fashionable world, whose palates easily detect superiority in excellence, set the stamp of approval and by general adoption are advancing the popular brand of Moet & Chandon "White Seal" Champagne towards exclusive use at a very rapid pace. The increase in sales for the year 1902 over 1901 was $67,116 bottles, a record never before attained in the history of the champagne trade, marking a gain equal to 564 per cent greater than the combined increase of all the other brands of champagne. Moet & Chandon White Seal is acknowledged as "the acme of perfection."

Are Ready to Quit Work at Mom- ent's Notice.

Fifty Thousand Trainmen May Be Involved.

An Effort to Have Injunction Dis- solved.

St. Louis, March 5.—The Wabash strike situation is resolving itself into a legal battle for the dissolution of the injunction granted two days ago by Judge Adams. Attorneys for the firemen and trainmen are still at work on the affidavits to be filed in court, showing why the injunction should not be made permanent. Whether these will be completed in time to file today, as expected, is a question. Grand Master Moroney of the Brotherhood of Trainmen is of the opinion that the motion and affidavits may not be filed today.

The possibility of the firemen and trainmen of the Wabash striking as individuals, without waiting for word from their leaders is now being discussed. It is stated that the men are ready to go out at a moment's notice. Unless President Ramsey yields it is further declared that the engineers, coal doctors, telegraphers, brakemen and trackmen, to the number of 50,000, may become involved in the struggle.

Rumors of a secession between the men and the leaders to go out even if the dissolution of Judge Adams' injunction is not granted, are abundant, indicating that the firemen are striking without sanction of the grand masters of the order.

At Wabash headquarters everything was reported quiet and the men still at work.

MILTON PURDY IS APPOINTED

St. Paul Man Gets Posi- tion as Assistant At- torney General.

Washington, March 5.—Two important appointments in the department of justice were agreed upon by President Roosevelt and Attorney General Knox today. William A. Day, of the District of Columbia, is made assistant attorney to the attorney general, at a salary of $3000 a year, and Milton D. Purdy of Minnesota, is appointed assistant attorney general. Mr. Day has been for a long time attorney for the interstate commerce commission, and Mr. Purdy is a prominent lawyer of St. Paul. He formerly was assistant United States district attorney of Minnesota. These places were created by recent act of congress.

The appointment was recommended by Attorney General Knox, and was approved by the president. Senators Clapp and Nelson cordially endorse the suggestion and Mr. Purdy's name will go to the senate very soon.

Mr. Purdy arrived here last night in response to Mr. Knox's summons. He will be used in the big anti-trust cases, and will have an opportunity to make a brilliant record.

MARRIED A MAN

Named the Same as That of Man She Loved.

Milan Maiden, Whose Letter Went Astray, Received.

St. Louis, March 5.—When Enrico Pedrell and Mrs. Enrico Pedrell were married a romance in real life, stranger than the most daring fiction, was brought to a fitting climax.

It is a story of two Enrico Pedrells, who had left sunny Italy to seek their fortunes in America.

One of them left a sweetheart in Italy. One of her letters meant for him fell into the hands of the other. He answered it. She thought it was from her lover and the correspondence was carried on, one real lover in the meantime concluding that his sweetheart was false to him.

She came to America and married the other Enrico, still thinking him the lover to whom she had pledged her troth.

After four years of unhappiness there was a divorce and then the marriage of the original lover.

The couple were married Wednesday night at "Dago Hill."

Thursday morning the residents of "Dago Hill" as the locality is known, agreed it was the most wonderful thing that ever had happened.

Eight years ago Enrico Pedrell started for America. He left behind him in Milan a winsome Italian girl, who promised to come to him whenever he should send for her. At that time she thought never entered her head that there might be another Enrico Pedrell in America, and that he might come between them.

Letters were frequent, and at length Pedrell, who had been sending money, a little at a time, made in one of his letters a request for a photograph.

That letter brought no answer. He did not know what to make of it. He wondered what the reason could be. When time rolled by without any response, he assumed a lover's independence and did not write again.

He was in Chicago at that time, but it did not occur to him that his letter might have been delivered to some one else.

of youth, but the girl from Milan thought she had never seen such a wonderful transformation as that of her lover. She was so glad to see him, she soon forgot all about that.

They were married the day she arrived. By and by the other Enrico Pedrell decided he would write to a relative in Italy and find out why his requests for a photograph had never been answered. By return mail he got a letter which advised him to quit joking. The people in Italy knew very well he had married the girl, because newspapers had been sent back containing accounts of the wedding.

The Pedrell became angry. He started an investigation. It required about sixteen months more to make the discovery his sweetheart had married the wrong man.

She had learned of the fact within a fortnight after the wedding, but supposed the other Enrico was dead and intended to make the most of the peculiar situation.

When she learned, however, that the other Pedrell was living, discord arose and at length they separated, and a divorce was obtained.

The man she had originally loved had moved to St. Louis. Tuesday the ceremony took place, and the couple began housekeeping at 5340 Pattison avenue.

SIMPLY BEAT ALL CREATION

Mrs. Tower's Dress Worn at Berlin Court a Wonder.

Berlin, March 5.—Court society can't forget so quite forgive, the superior brilliancy of the court ball costume of Mrs. Charlotte Tower, wife of the United States ambassador.

Mrs. Tower wore a pink moire silk underdress with a fitted train 5 yards long and over it a braided tulle of gold gauze through which the heavily watered silk showed with wonderful effect. Her skirt was garnished with three rows of flounces of Brussels lace, each flounce with a single row of tulle.

The gownwork of the waist was hidden under a bolero of Brussels lace, gold spangled all over, and this, too, had a waist of gold gauze set off by fringes in the precious metal. Golden bees with ruby eyes lined the edge of the low-cut waist, which was, besides, plentifully adorned with large diamonds in all sorts of designs, but chiefly, crescents, American eagles, etc.

Mrs. Tower wore a diamond less pretentious, but of no less value than the empress' and her court train was the admiration of everybody near enough to see it. The train was of white silk, embroidered in real gold threads—four feet long.

The "ambassadors" sat to the right of the throne on a dais, the most youthful and beautiful of all the ladies of the diplomatic corps, sitting to the left of the throne, a good many of them seemed to be attracted in last year's clothes.

But then, they are really of small consequence on an occasion like this, merely a decorative feature in an embassies sense.

AN OPPORTUNITY

of a life time. How often do you hear people say, "I could have bought this or that at such and such a price," naming a few dollars, for properties now immensely valuable. Some man did do it, and today is counting his wealth by tens and perhaps hundreds of thousands.
$50 cash and $5 a month, without interest, for fifty-four months, will buy five acres of land near Woodland. There is no better land for market garden processes in St. Louis county, is comparatively level and free from rocks and has a nice spring brook running through it.
Can be cleared and made ready for cultivation at a very small expense.
We give you immediate possession of the land with permission to go on and improve and use it. You can raise enough on one acre, in one season, to pay for the whole five acres.
We can sell you a ten acre tract for $50 cash, and $10 a month on the same terms.
Here is a rare opportunity for a small and safe investment. An opportunity to have and invest a few dollars every month which in a short time, will provide you with a home, where you can live in ease and comfort. Let us show you this land.

BLACK HILLS COPPER CO.
(LIMITED)

OF JEROME, ARIZONA.

This company owns COPPER HILLS, the center of the VERDE DISTRICT lying just south of the celebrated United Verde, which is a veritable mint, coining money day and night, year in and year out. What the United Verde is doing other neighboring mines will do. The one that is now being taken out of the shafts and ditches of the Black Hills is copper that when fully opened up these mines should produce COPPER, GOLD AND SILVER to equal that now being taken from the United Verde. Fine new machinery just put in on the property, and it is hoped that it may not be long until the smoke of the BLACK HILLS will SMOKE with the smoke of the Iron King smelter, which is now being constructed

Hanged By the Neck at

Made Address of Fourteen Minutes' Length.

Made Address of Fourteen Minutes' Length.

Dangling from a rope but a few feet from the desk over which Judge Cant delivered his death sentence Nov. 19, Charles E. L. Henderson paid the extreme penalty exacted by society for his crime.

The murder of Ida McCormick June 24, 1907, in the hot, dingy district between No. 1, at twenty minutes past 1 o'clock, was the first murder in the city since the guard of twelve men, and on a scaffold erected at the southeast corner of the room he made a final address and prayer, offering no justification for his crime in the former, and asking that the same be done for him in the latter.

The trap was sprung at 1.40 a. m., and the police and coroner were called by County Physician Graham and Coroner Boyer at 1.58. The body was found at 2.30, and the coroner's jury, in a strangulation, and it took eighteen minutes for the process. Henderson was taken to the jail from the scene. Deputy Sheriff Magie adjusted the noose and Sheriff Butchart sprung the

There were present at this first execution in St. Louis county since the '80s the sheriff and Deputies Bates, Randall, Thatcher and Magie, a score of the members of the police department, several sheriffs of the communities of the state and a number of physicians, the undertaker and the Evangelist John Calverton, and a number of special deputies.

The indomitable nerve of Henderson was with him to the springing of the trap. He made an address of fourteen

WOULD SEE THE REMAINS

Morbidly Curious People Try to See Henderson's Body But Fail.

The body of Charles E. L. Henderson will probably be forwarded to Philadelphia for burial within the next few days.

At his request, in fact, upon his own written order, the body was turned over to the undertaking firm of Durkin & Crawford immediately after the hanging.

At the undertaking rooms today many morbidly curious people called to view the remains but went away disappointed. Mr. Crawford says that the body is not lying in state, and only relatives and close friends of the deceased can look upon it until he has further orders.

Among those that sought to get a glimpse of the dead murderer were a number of women and children. They were promptly asked to leave the place, and members of the firm received much commendation for this prompt and decisive action.

Mrs. Lapsley, sister of Henderson, is in charge of the local arrangements for his burial. She saw her brother last evening just before he was taken out to be executed, but has not seen the body since the hanging.

Henderson's casket is a plain, black-cloth affair of his own selection, without ornamentation or inscription. Yesterday the condemned man practically arranged for his own funeral with as much calmness as if it were a very ordinary matter of business.

He especially desired that his face should not be discolored after death, and feared that the hanging would cause an unnatural appearance. In that case he asked that his friends should not see the face.

He died from strangulation and not from a broken neck, and it is claimed that there is a slight discoloration.

AWAITING THE ATTORNEYS

There Is No Change In the Wabash Situation.

St. Louis, March 6.—The Wabash situation presents no new phase this morning everything and everybody waiting on the attorneys representing the firemen and trainmen who are expected to make the next move. They are now carefully considering the lengthy bill of particulars filed by the Wabash in its application for the injunction granted the other day, and it is not known definitely when the answer will be ready to present in court. At Wabash headquarters no change in the situation on the system is reported.

The officers of the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen are preparing a statement of their members, which will be given out for publication tonight, giving a short statement of the case as it now stands and advising them to continue loyal to the company and their organization and pay no attention to the threats of any persons or any rumors which may be put in circulation.

EARTHQUAKES IN SAXONY. Berlin, March 6.—Earthquakes have been felt for two days in the district of Voigtland, Saxony, and in the Erzgebirge (two mountains). Yesterday shocks were slight, but those of today were violent. The people of Gersdorf left their houses and passed the night in the streets. Houses at Unter-Sachsenburg and at Auerbach were severely shaken. The shocks were great excitement throughout the district.

CHARGED WITH MURDER. Chicago, March 6.—John Donnelly, alias Lyons, who confessed to having administered chloral to James Howard with fatal results eight years ago for the purpose of robbing him and Jos. Mohr, whom he implicated in the crime, were formally charged with murder and held without bail pending their hearing, March 16.

SEALSKIN IS SOLD

Much Advertised Garment Disposed of At Customs House.

Bid In For $240 By George M. Brush, Representing the Owner.

"Two hundred and forty dollars," said George M. Brush, "Gone," said Deputy Collector of Customs N. A. Linderberg, and the episode of the sealskin sack concerning which the local authorities have had so much trouble was closed.

On Dec. 13 the sealskin coat which was doomed to some notoriety made its first appearance in Duluth. It was fresh from the store of a noted Winnipeg furrier, and with its rich satin brocade lining and gleaming fur was a coat of which any woman would be proud. But no certificates accompanied it, and there was nothing to show that the much-sought-after animal whose skins composed the coat had not been killed in prohibited waters.

For three long months the coat has been lying in the vault of the customs house wrapped in paper. In the meantime the purchaser and the manufacturer have been endeavoring to satisfy the demands of the customs laws. They failed, and last week the authorities at Washington ordered the coat to be sold at auction to the highest bidder.

Four people were present at the custom house this morning when the time arrived. N. A. Linderberg acted as auctioneer and called for the first bid "Seventy-five dollars," said one of the eager purchasers.

"Eighty."

"One hundred!"

The bids rose by fives and tens until $200 was reached. Here one or two of the bidders dropped out, but between the remaining two the figure steadily rose to $240, at which figure the coat was knocked down to G. M. Brush, of this city, who represented the owner, N. B. Blackford, of St. Paul.

The coat has proved an expensive one to Mr. Blackford. The original cost is said to have been $100. When added to the actual cost of $80, in addition to this, Mr. Blackford has made several trips to Duluth in his endeavor to satisfy the demands of the customs, and it is likely that the total cost of the coat will be over $500.

It was not expected that the garment would bring such a sum at the sale of the year, but all of the bidders were eager, and the auctioneer had little to do after the bids were made and each raised a substantial one.

Special Customs Agent Crain, of St. Paul, was present at the sale. Mr. Blackford expects to recover the loss from the Winnipeg house.

THE TRUTH ABOUT BREAD

From London "Chic".

In a recent issue of Chic, one of the big illustrated weeklies for which London is famous, a writer on scientific foods says: "There was never coined a more delusive phrase than 'Bread the staff of life,' because bread is almost the worst of all foods unless the eater knows all about its properties. It is poison to the man in a hurry."

Here follows a long argument.

"Why not," asked the diet experts, "to for the bread and other cereal foods what the mastication does, so that those whose digestions are enfeebled may be fully nourished, that is, derive every grain of nutriment possible from the food and avoid the discomforts of indigestion, the pains after eating, flatulence, acidity, heartburn and the hosts of evils indicating faulty digestion? Why not prepare a food so perfectly that it can be eaten in a hurry or bolted, it will be readily digested as if it chewed five minutes?"

"To convert the starch in cereals into the form of Grape Sugar, which is most agreeable to the stomach, and which can be immediately taken up by the system as nourishment is what has been done in Grape-Nuts, which, for the reasons I have given, is a far more healthful and nourishing food than the best porridge or bread, and can be eaten with advantage by persons with the most delicate stomachs."

"This food discovery comes from America, but widespread recognition of its value properties is, to my thinking, much hampered by a name which is meaningless, even to the chemist or nutritionist. I am confident that no one standing the meaning of 'Grape-Nuts' when I first saw it, but an examination of this food discovery reveals it as one of the most important dietary advances ever made."

Note: The name is partly derived from Grape Sugar, and the term "Nuts" is suggested by the nutty flavor. The entire word is the registered trade mark.

ROBBERY OF DIAMONDS

Mrs. White Claims Thief Clubbed Her and Took Jewels.

A sensational robbery has been reported to the police.

Mrs. W. L. White, wife of a member of the Ferris stock company playing at the Metropolitan theater, says that she was knocked down, beaten and robbed of $275 worth of jewels and $67 in cash in her apartments last night.

Mr. and Mrs. White have apartments near the theater, and while her husband was appearing in the performance of "Davy Crockett" last evening, she, not having a part in the cast, retired early to get a good night's rest.

About 9 o'clock there was a rap on the door which woke her up. Mrs. White says she was cross and asked who it was. The man said "me," and Mrs. White got up and opened the door, thinking that it was her husband.

She had scarcely opened it when a stranger stepped inside, and as she started to scream, the stranger struck her over the head with what seemed to be a stuffed club.

She was found lying on the floor when her husband returned from the theater, and today she shows marks on her head as proof of the stuffed-club story. The thief, according to Mrs. White, must have taken the diamond rings off her fingers, for she is sure she had them on when she went to the door, and the $67 was taken from a money bag which she wore about her neck.

One of the rings taken was valued at $110 and another at $85 and the third at $80. It is claimed that the thief overlooked a brooch that was in plain view on the dressing table.

Mrs. White was unable to give the police the slightest description of the stranger, and consequently the chances are very strongly in his favor.

WAS OUT TO CARVE

Withers, Colored, Goes After Minnie Ferguson With a Knife.

Announces Intention of Following Example of Henderson.

Mr. "Jew Baby" Withers, a highly cultured colored person, yesterday informed Miss Minnie Ferguson, also cultured and highly colored, that he would most certainly do to her what Charles E. L. Henderson did to John McCormack. He was desperately in earnest, had the knife ready to do the stabbings and sought to kick in the door of Miss Ferguson's home at 28 Washington avenue. He announced that he intended to commit murder in the first, second and third degrees individually, and commit homicide in the third, second and first degrees collectively, after which he would abide by the consequences and face death as fearlessly as Henderson. The police are of the opinion that he had been able to get to Miss Ferguson there would have been another murder similar to that of last June. The "Jew Baby" confirms the opinion, claiming that if Miss Ferguson refuses to love him she shall love no person and shall forfeit her life.

While he was gattering at the door and endeavoring to carry out his threats yesterday afternoon, the intended victim got word to the police. Withers saw the officer approaching and dropped his knife and ran. He was captured this morning by Capt. Rescoe, and it is possible that he may be indicted by the grand jury for attempting to break into a building to commit a crime.

BACK FROM THE EAST. J. J. Moe Returns From a Very Successful Trip.

J. J. Moe, of Johnson & Moe, returned yesterday from a three weeks' trip to the Eastern markets. Mr. Moe states that every indication points to the busiest season in years in all lines. Many of the large woolen and other mills have been compelled to call in their samples for next season's goods, as they have no orders on hand already to tax their capacity to the utmost. Mr. Moe, while away, was fortunate enough to secure some of the biggest values in different merchandise in the history of the store, and bought heavily of these lines. The stocks are arriving daily, and the firm will open the spring season of 1903 with the largest assortment and best values ever before offered.

HANNON IS ARRAIGNED

Stands Mute, A Plea of Not Guilty Being Entered.

Richard Hannon, who was indicted by the grand jury for murder in the second degree, was in district court to plead. He stood mute, and the court ordered a plea of not guilty to be entered. It is likely that the Hannon case will be one of the first criminal actions tried this term. The grand jury is still working, and up to this time has not returned any more indictments today. It is understood that the grand jury is now investigating some cases where gross violations of game laws relating to the killing of moose is charged. Deputy Game Warden Green had about three of such cases to call to the attention of that body.

General Agent W. J. Bryan, of the Wisconsin Central road returned this morning from a trip to Grand Forks and Fargo. President House, of the Iron Range road, and President Cole, of the Minnesota Mining company will return tomorrow morning it is expected.

Remembers His Keepers. Joseph Wyles, Otto Erickson, and Michael Horgan, deputy sheriffs who for some weeks past have assisted in guarding and caring for Charles Henderson, were each presented with a book by Henderson before his death. For a preface, in each, Henderson wrote words expressing his gratitude for kind treatment by the officers and short verses of poetry. Henderson gave Sheriff Butchart his Bible.

MAKES FULL CONFESSION

Ghoul Cantrell Tells the Grand Jury All He Knows.

Noblesville, Ind., March 6.—Rufus Cantrell, the ghoul, came here from Indianapolis today to testify before the grand jury. He was accompanied by his attorney and two detectives. Cantrell was before the jury all the morning and made a full confession of his relations with men of this county, who he says, have been robbing graves in nearly every cemetery in the country for years. He said the bodies were taken down the river as far as Broad Ripple in boats and hauled to the colleges in wagons.

INDIAN KILLED.

Run Over By Train at Deer River.

Deer River, Minn., March 6.—(Special to The Herald)—Joe Ponnag, a Winnebago Indian, was struck by an Eastern Minnesota train this morning and was instantly killed. He was lying drunk on the track.

TALKING OF TRUNK ROAD

Commissioner McInnis Would Build One to Hibbing.

Commissioner Neil McInnis, on behalf of the western range, is after a trunk road from Hibbing to West Duluth. He is taking an active interest in the matter and has requested Representative P. L. Dowling to introduce a bill in the state legislature for such a road. Mr. McInnis claims that the road would pass through a great deal of state land and would also give greatly increased facilities for settlers near the boundary line of St. Louis and Itasca and Carlton counties, besides being an excellent project on which to spend state money.

The project has been broached to the other commissioners of this county and they have taken a trunk road between West Duluth and Hibbing would be a good thing, but rather skeptical as to getting any money from the state in the matter. Commissioner McInnis maintains that the road cannot be had without some effort being made to get it, and he believes the present a good time to make the effort.

The location of such a trunk road would be, as far as possible, along the boundary lines of St. Louis and Carlton and Itasca county in order that the three counties might be interested in the matter of getting state matter for its maintenance.

Some of the members of the county board claim that the road would cost a great deal of money, much more in fact than it could be expected the state would give now, even if the project of having a road is favored.

CRANE BROKE, KILLING ONE. Akron, Ohio, March 6.—William Crockett was instantly killed by a crane when the machine which held it in place broke, allowing a huge crane to fall on the two men. Crockett's neck was broken.

PREMUTHS DEFEAT HUBS.

Poor Work of Field Offset Cummings' Good Pitching.

Cummings pitched a first-class game of baseball last night in the game between the Premuths and the Hubs. The field gave him miserable support and for the third successive time the aggregation clothed in green was defeated. The score was 12 to 2.

The Hub players had been doing some very good work at their afternoon practice and their poor game last evening was a great surprise. Most of them are inclined to blame the lighting of the Army, to which they are not accustomed, for their bad throws and poor catches in the field.

Hulbert, the Premuths' pitcher, was in the game with all of his usual speed. Cummings' work was not so speedy but he continually fanned the Premuth batters by his heavy pitching. Most of the men were able to get to first on three strikes, however.

NO APPROPRIATION

Made By Montana For St. Louis Exposition.

Helena, Mont., March 6.—The eighth legislature came to an end this morning about 3 o'clock without making an appropriation to provide a Montana exhibit at the St. Louis exposition in 1904, the conference of the senate and house on the fair bill failing to reach an agreement. The general appropriation was signed.

A vote of thanks was extended to the members of the press for maintaining "a life-saving station in the office of the secretary of state."

TO DEFEND MRS. PAINE

Husband Secures an Attorney In Case of Complications.

Buffalo, March 6.—W. E. Webster, of Batavia, who was one of the attorneys for Howard Bonham, has been retained by Dr. Seth T. Paine. He does not say specifically that he is retained in view of any complications involving Mrs. Paine in the Bonham murder case, but in an interview he showed that he has been in constant consultation with Dr. Paine and stands ready to act promptly if any act of the Buffalo authorities should threaten the liberty of his client's wife.

Attorney George C. Miller, who drew up Bonham's will and now has the document in his possession, had a talk with the district attorney today. He also talked with Assistant Chief of Detectives Cusack. Mr. Miller wanted to know what was contained in the report on the autopsy. He got the desired information. It was presumed that it was for the purpose of carrying on the affairs of the estate.

CALL ON HIM AGAIN.

Lakeside Citizens See Mayor on Park Board Matter.

A delegation of Lakeside citizens again held a conference with the mayor this morning, urging him to appoint a Lakesider on the board of park commissioners. Both the mayor and members of the delegation announced that the situation was being handled thoroughly and in a perfectly friendly manner.

The mayor did not indicate that the request would either be granted or refused, and the members of the delegation similarly said they were well pleased with the conference, but there was nothing for publication as far as they were concerned. In the delegation were: John B. Greenfield, Frank Cresswell, Calvin S. How, H. C. Curtis, William L. Wagner and W. G. Joerns.

Sent to Red Wing.

Austin Mitchell, the school boy arrested yesterday for entering apartments in the Munger Terrace and stealing, will go to the Red Wing industrial school this morning, and admitting that he stole over $15 on his rowing venture, was given a rather severe though kindly intended lecture by Judge Windom, and then committed to the state industrial school until he is twenty-one years of age or until such time as he has abandoned the criminal career on which he started so boldly.

Setting of Cases.

COUNTY TO AT WIN DULUTH

That Is Attorney Crosby's Opinion of Important Tax Case.

Investigates the Pending Legislation Respecting Infectious Diseases.

Assistant County Attorney W. G. Crosby, who was in St. Paul last week attending to some matters submitted to him by the county board of commissioners of this county, attended a hearing at the state auditor's office in relation to the personal property tax of the County of St. Louis.

The company is a Carlton county corporation doing business in St. Louis county and St. Louis and Carlton counties have both claimed the personal taxes of the company. Mr. Crosby says that in accordance with the provisions of the county auditor's office of this county, that the company is taxable in St. Louis county, but has not yet officially ruled in the matter.

This county attorney's office regards this as a very important case, for it is said to be the first time that the state auditor's office has been asked to rule on the question of the personal property tax of a company doing business in two counties.

RHEUMATISM
Cured By Chamberlain's Pain Balm After the Best Doctor in the Town Had Failed to Give Relief.

Many people think that because their family doctor cannot cure them of rheumatism their cases are incurable. It has not occurred to them that there are remedies prepared especially for that complaint and one that has become famous for its cures. It is a liniment and is called Chamberlain's Pain Balm. One application relieves the pain. Mr. John Blount, of Monon, Ind., writes: "I can truly say that Chamberlain's Pain Balm will cure rheumatism, for I was cured by its use after the best doctor in Monon had failed to give me relief."

Mr. Joseph W. Currens, the postmaster at Monon, attests to the truth of this statement.

In every city there is one paper favored by local advertisers. In Duluth it is The Herald.

RHEUMATISM
Cured By Chamberlain's Pain Balm After the Best Doctor in the Town Had Failed to Give Relief.

Many people think that because their family doctor cannot cure them of rheumatism their cases are incurable. It has not occurred to them that there are remedies prepared especially for that complaint and one that has become famous for its cures. It is a liniment and is called Chamberlain's Pain Balm. One application relieves the pain. Mr. John Blount, of Monon, Ind., writes: "I can truly say that Chamberlain's Pain Balm will cure rheumatism, for I was cured by its use after the best doctor in Monon had failed to give me relief."

Mr. Joseph W. Currens, the postmaster at Monon, attests to the truth of this statement.

ADVANCE PARTY

Of Big English Colony For Battledore District.

Winnipeg, Man., March 6.—The advance party of 15,000 English settlers who are to form a colony twenty-five miles north of Battledore arrived in the city yesterday.

It was headed by George Douglas, who in an interview said that the class of settlers which would form the colony was of the very best, nearly all being successful English farmers and their families.

Accompanying the large party will be three doctors, two clergymen, electrical and mechanical engineers, also all kinds of mechanics, including carpenters, blacksmiths and builders, who will assist in the work of erecting suitable dwellings for the newcomers.

The first of the party, numbering 135, sailed Feb. 27 on the steamship "Tunistan," and are due at Halifax March 6.

The next, in which there will be 250, leaves Liverpool March 25.

The British Canadian Stores syndicate has been formed with the object of furnishing groceries, provisions, clothing, machinery, wagons, horses, cattle, lumber and building materials—in fact, everything requisite for the starting of farming in the Northwest.

A remarkable case. One of the most remarkable cases of a cold, deep-seated on the lungs, causing pneumonia, is that of Mrs. Gertrude R. Fenner, Marion, Ind., who was entirely cured by the use of One Minute Cough Cure. She says: "Four bottles of this wonderful remedy cured me entirely and restored me to my health and strength. Max Wirth."

Interest centers in the selection of delegates supposed to favor the nomination of either Greene Stewart and John M. Harlan, the rival candidates for mayor. Mr. Stewart, who represents the "regular" element of the party, is a prominent merchant and a member of the National Republican central committee. Mr. Harlan is a well-known lawyer and a son of Justice John M. Harlan of the supreme court. He is an "independent" and has been making a whirlwind campaign lately attacking the so-called "Lorimer-Jamieson machine," which has endorsed Stewart's candidacy.

Made By King Edward's Horse, Ambush II.

London, March 6.—King Edward's Ambush II, his majesty's candidate for the grand national steeplechase to be run at Liverpool, March 27, was defeated today in the race for the grand military gold cup at the Sandown park steeplechase meet by the stable companion, Marjoram. The king went to the course in the expectation of seeing his horse, which was a favorite of his, show considerable improvement over his form at Kempton park, when, Jan. 30, he was unplaced in the steeplechase. Ambush II, however, was only able to run third out of four starters.

REPORT IS MADE

Lakeside Citizens Hear
From Committee on Park Board Matter.

Will Not Discontinue Their Efforts to Get Representation.

At Lakeside last evening citizens held a mass meeting for the purpose of still further urging the appointment of C. S. Wilson, of that suburb, as a member of the board of park commissioners to succeed Luther Mendenhall.

The committee that interviewed Mayor Hugo with the request that Mr. Wilson be appointed made its report. This was to the effect that the mayor told them that he had offered the appointment to Mr. Mendenhall and that they were too late; that Mr. Mendenhall is a valuable man on the board, taking such an interest in the development of the parks of the city that the work has become almost a fad with him, and that he did not feel that the city could let him go. The committee told him that Lakeside and Lester Park did not feel that they were getting their share of the money expended upon parks; that more people visited Lester Park than any of the other parks of the city. That, the committee said, surprised the mayor, and he called in Secretary Helm, who said it was not true, and that more people visited Lester Park than any other. That surprised the committee, but the Lakeside and Lester Park committee said that the mayor refused to entertain the idea of appointing anyone else.

Notwithstanding this discouraging report, the Lakesiders are determined to work until the end. They will work upon the lines indicated in The Herald last evening—that Secretary Helm has no right to sit as a member of the board, and that in the event that he has not, a Lakeside resident should be appointed to the place.

The committee having the matter in charge was increased in size and now consists of John B. Greenfield, Frank Crasswell, B. C. Church, B. E. Baker, Calvin F. How and W. E. Magner.

FOUR PERSONS ARE INDICTED

Charles Howard, Big Mitt Man, Charged With Forgery.

The grand jury, late yesterday afternoon, returned true bills against four persons. Charles Howard, the "big mitt" man from Minneapolis, was indicted on the charge of forgery in the second degree. The information against Howard is that he is alleged to have forged a check for $100,000, the victim being induced to enter a poker game with Howard.

The grand jury was also indicted on the charge of forgery in the second degree. He came to Duluth representing himself to be a traveling representative of A. P. Smith & Co. and attempted to pass a forged check on the local office of the company.

No bills were returned against Gust Carlson, who was charged with stealing clothes from the Scandia hotel, and Joseph Kane, who was charged with forgery.

RHEUMATISM

Tortures, Cripples and Deforms.

Rheumatism does not treat all alike. Some suffer torture from the very beginning, the attack being so sudden, sharp and distressing that they are made helpless cripples in a few days, while others feel only occasional twinges of pain in the knees, ankles, elbows and wrists, or the muscles of the legs, arms, back or neck; but this treacherous disease is only traveling by slower stages. The acid poisons are all the while accumulating in the blood, and muscles and joints are filling with corroding, acid matter, and when the disease tightens its grip and strikes with full force, no constitution is strong enough to withstand its fearful blows, and its victims are crippled and deformed, often for life.

THE BLOOD AND
RULED BY ACID.

S. S. S. goes directly into the circulation and attacks the disease itself. The acid poisons that cause the inflammation, soreness and swelling are neutralized and the blood purified and cleansed of all irritating matter, and nothing is left in the circulation to produce other attacks.

S. S. S. is a vegetable remedy does not impair the digestion or general health.

Like alkaline and potash remedies, but builds up and invigorates the entire system, and at the same time makes a thorough and permanent cure of Rheumatism.

Tendency of the Times.

The tendency of medical science is toward preventive measures. The best thought of the world is being given to the subject. It is easier and better to prevent than to cure. It has been fully demonstrated that pneumonia, one of the most dangerous diseases that medical men have to contend with, can be prevented by the use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Pneumonia always results from a cold or from an attack of influenza (grip), and it has been observed that this remedy counteracts any tendency of these diseases toward pneumonia. This has been fully proved in many thousands of cases in which this remedy has been used during the great prevalence of colds and grip in recent years, and can be relied upon with implicit confidence. Pneumonia often results from a slight cold when danger is apprehended until it is suddenly discovered that there is fever and difficulty in breathing and pains in the chest, that the patient has the patient has pneumonia. Be on the safe side and take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as soon as the cold is contracted. It always cures.

EFFECT OF IRRIGATION

Shown By Experiments
and New Jersey.

Washington, March 6.—(Special to The Herald.)—The rise in prices of agricultural lands in the last few years has made it necessary that farmers should get the largest possible return from their lands, and has created a general interest in what will help to that end. One of the aids now being considered is irrigation. In the East it is not as in the West absolutely necessary for the raising of any crops, but, like fertilizing or thorough cultivation, is a means of increasing the returns from land. The Wisconsin experiment station, at Madison, has been carrying on experiments in irrigation for several years. The results of these experiments are shown in the following table:

A series of experiments extending over several years at the Wisconsin experiment station at Madison have marked increase in yields of farm crops. One of the aids now being considered is irrigation. Another series of experiments was begun for testing the effect of irrigation on the yield of crops. The results of these experiments are shown in the following table:

These results show that irrigation is a most profitable and economical method of increasing the yield of crops. It is especially profitable in the case of corn, which is the principal crop of the Middle West generally, and the results given above show that water irrigation is a most profitable and economical method of increasing the yield of crops.

RAG TIME VOTED

Immoral By the West End Mothers in City of Chicago.

Council Warned Against the "Ten, Twenty, Thirty" Tunes.

Chicago, March 6.—Rag time is immoral; its rhythm is pernicious; its words are abominable. If mothers want their boys to be good they must teach them to tune their whistles to the key of "Onward, Christian Soldiers," and spunk them into abandoning "Under the Bamboo Tree" and "Goo Goo Eyes."

This is the opinion of the West End Mothers' council. The mothers met at the residence of Mrs. Edgar Hall, 1357 Fulton street, to take advice from a spinster, Miss May Louise Butler, on proper rearing for children. After discussing the "Ten, Twenty, Thirty" tunes, the mothers decided the old time hymns against the aspersions cast upon them by Oscar Lovell Triggs.

The mothers reached this conclusion: "It is only a step from singing 'Goo Goo Eyes' to making them. Rag time is immoral; teach the children to sing hymns."

And this is their prescription for the rag time malady: "Teach your children hymns. Let them read the lives of Martin Luther and John Wesley and other hymnologists. Get them interested in hymnology."

The denunciation of rag time came after Miss Butler had warned the mothers not to be frightened if their children were a "little bit slinky."

"Rag time is just like measles, mumps and 'whooping' cough," said Miss Butler. "Everybody's got to have it, and you must wink at it a little bit."

"Get the children interested in hymnology; there is no sin in that," said Miss Butler. "The lives of Luther and Wesley are excellent reading and cannot fail to interest any boy. Let them study Luther and Wesley and their hymns. Luther and Wesley will be of particular interest to the boys. They were such rugged, strong men; the kind boys like to read about."

Besides foregoing the pleasures of humming rag time, boys and girls had other rules laid down for their behavior by the council during its session, and so did wives.

"The children and the mother ought to read to the father in the evening after he has come home from work," declared Miss Butler. "Too often the father reads to them. This is not right. The father comes home after a strenuous day and ought to be read to. Be sure not to spoil him, though."

Miss Butler urged that selfishness underlies all sin and that no sin is greater than selfishness. "Yet how many children are there," she asked, "who are unkind to their mothers and to their brothers and sisters?"

Such novels as those written by Bertha M. Clay and the "Duchess" were declared all sin and that no sin is greater than selfishness. "Yet how many children are there," she asked, "who are unkind to their mothers and to their brothers and sisters?"

WOMAN WEEPS OVER THE LOSS of $100 Bill Given to Her By President Lincoln.

Chicago, March 6.—An elderly woman wept as she told in Judge Horton's court a $100 bill, given her by Abraham Lincoln, and in her search for a brother wounded in battle, had been taken from her by her nephew. The woman was Miss Charles R. Heath of Chicago who was using $500 which had been entrusted to her by her nephew.

"I saved that bill when I had not another cent in the world," she said. "I never could have parted with it. President Lincoln gave it to me during the civil war. He was in the city at that time."

"I listened to Washington, D. C. when I was a child. I was then a young girl. They all enlisted. First the youngest was called, then the oldest, and then I learned that the other brother was mortally wounded and in a hospital. I had but little money. I saw Secretary Stanton. I appealed to him to help me get news from my brother. He took me to the president."

"I told my story to Mr. Lincoln and he wept as he heard it. He and I were together for several hours. He rendered the bill to me. I was then a young girl. They all enlisted. First the youngest was called, then the oldest, and then I learned that the other brother was mortally wounded and in a hospital. I had but little money. I saw Secretary Stanton. LONG TRIP IN SLOOP

Lone Voyage of a Handless Navigator, Seeing Things.

Journey Through Canals and In Treacherous Southern Shoals.

New London, Conn., March 6.—For nine months Capt. Howard Blackburn, of Gloucester, Mass., has traveled alone in a sloop, encompassing the eastern half of the United States. He has just returned home to settle down and write a book on the subject of voyaging in a 25-foot vessel alone. The feat is the more remarkable because Capt. Blackburn has no hands. But although handicapped, he can attend to all the duties of a lone mariner, even to writing letters.

The captain, who is now 44 years old, has followed the sea since he was 14. In January, 1883, while he and a companion were on a voyage to the coast of Newfoundland, they were lost from the vessel. His dorymate died, but Blackburn, frostbitten, almost starved and on the verge of madness, rowed to the Newfoundland shore. His hands were frozen to the oars, and it was necessary to amputate all of his fingers and some parts of his feet.

In June, 1889, he sailed alone in the 30-foot sloop Great Western from Gloucester, Mass., to Gloucester, England, arriving there on Aug. 19. In June, 1891, he sailed alone in the 25-foot sloop Great Republic from Gloucester, Mass., for London, arriving on July 18. But his trips across the Atlantic, he says, were child's play to that just completed.

Capt. Blackburn left Gloucester on May 18 last year. He sailed around Cape Cod, through Long Island sound to New York, where he made a brief stop. Then he cruised along the New Jersey coast to Cape May and Atlantic City, returning to New York. He sailed up the Hudson river to the Erie canal, then through to Buffalo. His experiences along the canal were amusing, but tinged with hard work.

For forty-two miles he trudged along the canal bank towing his boat, but finally arranged with a man to hitch on his tow mules, paying $20 for the service. They never made more than nineteen miles a day.

The Great Republic then passed through Lakes Erie, Huron, St. Clair, Michigan, the straits of Mackinaw, and thence to Chicago, where the captain remained two weeks and entertained crowds of visitors to his boat every day. The governor of Wyoming offered to buy the sloop, but there was a hitch over the price, so Capt. Blackburn continued on his way through the old Illinois and Michigan canal. This part of the cruise was slow, the boat having to be dragged most of the way along the soft bottom, where the water was not deep enough to float her.

reached the great Mississippi, and cruised down to Columbia, Ky. From this point the sloop and captain traveled overland by rail to Mobile, Ala. Thence he sailed through the Gulf of Mexico to St. Joseph Bay, Pensacola, Tampa and Key West. At the last point he shaped a course for Miami, but in the Biscayne bay the sloop went ashore in a storm.

Being short of food the captain hoisted distress signals. After two days and nights a lighthouse tender came to his assistance. The Great Republic was abandoned for several days, but was finally floated and sold at Coconut Grove.

A rowboat was presented to the captain by a Gloucester friend wintering in Florida, and in this boat he rowed up the creeks and canals to the Indian river as far as Titusville, where he boarded across to St. Lake on the St. John's river. From there he went to Jacksonville, where he sold the rowboat and took a Clyde line steamer for New York.

Capt. Blackburn says that in comparison to his trips across the ocean, he not only had a great deal more work to do on this excursion, but was subjected to more danger. Up to the time he got into the Mississippi he had lots of hard work, especially in the canals, and many weary waits, but no special danger.

In the Mississippi he was greatly hindered by the Great Republic's draught of four feet, which rendered the sand bars a constant source of worry. Many times he got stuck, and had to work for hours to get free. There was not more than eighteen inches of water, by tying a number of great trees floating in the river together, and then having the force of the current against the trees to pull the boat.

In the Gulf of Mexico he experienced bad weather and heavy seas, which made this sort of navigation extremely hazardous. When his boat was only about six miles from shore, he says that if he had undertaken the trip in a light-draught boat with auxiliary power it would have been a pleasant experience. During the trip he had three attacks of malaria and illness, and hard work greatly reduced his weight.

STATE SCHOOLS TAKEN FROM BOARD OF CONTROL BY SENATE

Under the care of the same board that handled the prisons and madhouses, and he made an eloquent plea for the maintenance of the superb school system that has made this nation so great. The board of control, saying that it was better to have the educational institutions under one management, than to have the different institutions towns or counties, which led to log-rolling of the most disgraceful kind. He quoted a lot of nice things that employees of boards of control in other states had to say about the board of control.

Senator Bower made the speech of the day, eloquent, forceful, direct and effective. He said that the educational institutions were placed in the board of control bill two years ago simply to kill the bill, and Senator Somerville led the fight to put them there for no other purpose. If the senators vote against the bill they go on record as saying that the sole business of state institutions is to save money, and that the chief aim is to run the schools at the lowest possible expense. Senator Schaller said that there were representatives from all of the different state institutions, and he would like to know who was going to represent the poor devil that paid the bills. There was a laugh as some of the senators shouted. The gentleman from Dakota, Mr. Schaller, is from Dakota county. He continued, nevertheless, to express his opposition to the bill. He said the board of control has saved money, therefore it is a good thing, and he was against the amendment because he wanted the State university under the board too, because it is one of the most expensive and extravagant institutions in the state.

Senator Dale, of Lac Qui Parle county, pleaded for a fair trial for the board of control system. Senator Thorpe said he had failed to find any objection to the showing where the board of control had hurt the educational institutions. Senator Peterson showed where it had damaged the Moorhead school.

Senator Peterson, apparently butted down the wrong aisle when he said that the board of control had turned back into the treasury $200 of unused normal school money, for Senator Brower accounted for that. He said that the board had failed to use it to properly protect heating pipes in the St. Cloud school, which was a menace to the lives of the students. Senator Peterson said he could account for the money if he knew where it was. He said the board had held the principal off the sum in order to make a showing. He said the board had used the money on a specified date.

Senator Johnson stated the claim of a saving of $100,000 by the board of control, saying that the saving at the Moorhead school was $100,000. He said the institution to lose many of its employees who went where higher wages were paid, thus causing a saving in salaries. Senator Peterson said he was not sure the saving was in departing papers, and he did not believe it was much of a saving.

When it came to a vote on the Somerville amendment it did not do well. It got nine votes and there were forty-nine against it. Then he offered another amendment taking the normal schools out of the board. It only got eight votes. He said that the amendment was a victory for the board of control. After that events marched triumphantly toward a victorious close of the incident.

The vote on the bill was immediately taken, and there was applause when the count showed that the bill had thirty-nine votes to twenty-five against it. Three more than enough to carry it.

The vote on the bill was immediately taken, and there was applause when the count showed that the bill had thirty-nine votes to twenty-five against it. Three more than enough to carry it.

This is the way the vote stood on the Peachey bill, Senators Maustun and McGowan being absent. Those voting:—Benson, Brower, Back, Calhoun, Culler, Comstock, Cowan, Dart, Dunn, Du Toit, Eberhart, Evans, Ferris, Fitzgibbon, Griesbach, Hardy, Harrington, Hawkins, Horton, Jepson, Johnson, LaRue, Lusk, McNamee, Morgan, Putnam, Schaller, Schell, Schutz, Shell, Somerville, Stone, Sundberg, Thompson, Thorpe, Ward and Woode.

county seat, though there is one expressly exempting him from so doing. When the sheriff is the keeper of a few prisoners, there is some reason for accommodating him in the jail building. The bill in this case applies only to St. Louis county, and is, in my opinion, clearly unnecessary. If it is made compulsory upon the county to give the sheriff such a residence I foresee very unpleasant results. The bill is already getting too small for its uses, and the county before long will find part of the sheriff's residence, or else build an addition. This would be undesirable because it is proposed within a short time to build a courthouse and jail near the city.

The arrangement which is proposed by the bill is one that a county outgrows. It is well known when the sheriff has to live there, the residence becomes a requisite of his office and is much additional pay. It is evident that in a large city most sheriffs would object to having their families under the same roof with hundreds of desperate criminals.

The sheriff is paid $500 net per annum. This is $50 more than the judges of the district court have ever been paid. It is as high as he can get and I may say more. Under the present law he has almost no responsibility. He exercises almost no discretion. His duties are fixed. There is no reason why the sheriff should be singled out and given a salary of $500. I am standing for law which ought to be enforced, and for legislation which is for the benefit of the people. I am prepared to take this stand and to enforce it with such law of time as may be necessary. No legislation of this kind can pass without the most vigorous protest and without those people who are most interested being informed of the real issues. Nobody can suspect me of any political motives. If the present legislature desires to saddle upon St. Louis county a system unheard of elsewhere in the state, I shall give them an opportunity to explain their action. On the other hand I am perfectly willing to move the present sheriff in his desires respecting the residence if we can make such arrangements temporary and county pays only the cost of boarding the prisoners. He ought to stand for his and not try to get a bill passed which by means of collusion with the commissioners can be made a constant source of scandal and expense.

The house committee on crimes and the difference. Possibilities of collusion and fraud exist in such a bill as this that may even make its validity questionable. If there is any other instance in the Minnesota statutes I do not know it. The only fair and reasonable arrangement would be, if the board and he could have no way of tampering with them. The sheriff would remain in authority while an independent employe would see that no more supplies were used than were necessary and that none were diverted to any other purpose than that for which they were intended. If a bill of this kind could be drawn, and if it could remain in the discretion of the county commissioners to furnish the residence, a working scheme could be adopted which would give to the sheriff the residence while it afforded some safeguards for the county.

If the bill as reported is a thoroughly vicious measure, and one introduced not for the benefit of the county, but for the benefit of the individual, I must add also that you should not be deceived by the clamor of a few personal friends of the sheriff. They think the present situation is the result of political differences. I know and care nothing about this phase on the matter. I am standing merely for honest and economical administration. I am standing for law which ought to be enforced, and for legislation which is for the benefit of the people. I am prepared to take this stand and to enforce it with such law of time as may be necessary.

punishments yesterday afternoon agreed to report for passage. Capt. Lewis bill making electrocution instead of hanging the method of disposing of capital punishments in this state. His bill permitting cash bail instead of bonds was also favorably acted upon by the committee.

Capt. Randall's bill requiring conveyances for carrying prisoners, so that they may be shielded from the gaze of the public, was recommended to pass after it had been amended so as to effect only cities over 50,000.

Rosenwald's bill making it a crime for one partner to cheat another was also recommended to pass.

The Cole county division bill, passed by the house yesterday, is likely to prevent any division of St. Louis county if it becomes a law, and that is why Mr. Dowling opposed it. It simply provides for a majority vote on division propositions, instead of a plurality, and where there were only one proposition before the house it would have no effect. But if it were proposed to divide St. Louis county, and several of the range cities had propositions making them the county seat, the one that passed would have to get a majority of all the votes cast on all the propositions, which is hardly a probable result.

While the osteopaths have won out in the judiciary committee, they must run the gauntlet of the committee on public health before their bill gets out of the house. On motion of Dr. Graham, of Duluth, the bill was referred yesterday to that committee.

FOOLED THE COURT

By Sending Bogus Telegrams Announcing His Death.

Greenfield, Ind., March 6.—Dan Shepler Maxwell, of this county, some time ago began divorce proceedings against his wife, who left him, going to the home of her parents, at Fairbury, Ill. The case had been continued once because Shepler said at the time that his child was dead, and he produced a telegram to prove it. The trial developed that the telegram was bogus, and other telegrams and letters, representing Shepler to be dead, were produced. Shepler claims his wife's parents exerted undue influence over her and kept her from him, and that in order to get her back he resorted to all kinds of tricks. The judge sent him to jail for twenty days for contempt, in issuing fraudulent telegrams.

WEDDING CLOTHES

All Prepared When the Bride-Elect Eloped.

Goshen, Ind., March 6.—Charles Frederick Hansch, aged 26, and Miss Louise T. Schwartz, of South Bend, of the same age, eloped to Goshen and were married by Rev. Dr. C. C. Ciesch. They went to Chicago. The groom is a harpist in the Oliver Hotel orchestra at Chicago and teaches music. His bride was secretary in Dr. J. W. Hill's office, where they met. It being a case of love at first sight, her consent was not asked. A South Bend society man for her, and wedding clothes were made. Hansch's appearance spoiled the program. He is a son of William H. Hansch, of Richmond, Ind.

Disturbances of strikers are not nearly as grave as an individual disorder of the system. Overwork, loss of sleep, nervous tension will be followed by utter collapse, unless a reliable remedy is immediately employed. HENDERSON PAYS THE LAW'S EXTREME PENALTY disappeared under the scaffold and reappeared up the stairs at the rear; then two more followed. Sheriff Butchart was on the stairs before the party came in. The first two were C. E. L. Henderson and Deputy Thatcher, the second, Deputy Magle and Rev. John Callahan. Other deputies followed.

There was a moment of awkward silence. Henderson stood in the center of the stairs, with his toes barely on the trap, his shoulders back and his head erect. He looked his head as Mr. Callahan began to speak.

"Let us bow down our heads in prayer," said Mr. Callahan, and Henderson stood in that attitude with his hands hanging at his side till the prayer finished.

Mr. Callahan called upon the Alabamians to give the condemned man strength to meet him, and sought forgiveness for him. He alluded to the crime in a delicate way, said that Henderson would appear before his Maker reconciled to his fellow man and penitent for his wrong doings. He called attention to the sincerity of the man in his repentance, and called upon all to join in a heartfelt hope for his pardon.

At the close of the prayer, which was brief, there was another short and embarrassing silence, which was broken by the firm and steady voice of Henderson. As he looked up after the prayer the lines of pain and care and weariness were evident on his face, but he stood firm. Someone among the spectators said loudly:

"Brave boy, Henderson." The intruder was hushed.

single incandescent light burned dimly and its rays were thrown back at it by the heavy clouds of tobacco smoke. The picture was thrilling. Seven men stood in the well-defined, smoky rays of the light upon the scaffold. At the west end of the room the pale and serious faces of the spectators were visible through the gloom, made more ghastly by the reddish light of the incandescent.

Nearer the scaffold two rows of grim policemen stolidly watched the proceedings and beneath the grewsome platform it was pitch black.

The sitting sheriffs, to the number of four, stood at either side of the scaffold, ready to pick up the condemned man should the rope break to bring him up for another trial. The undertaker looked grimly on and the two physicians silently waited the moment when their turn in the proceedings should come.

Sheriff Butchart stood silently waiting until things should be made ready for the fatal jerk of the lever.

For fifteen seconds there was not a move, and hardly a breath. The spectators longed for the last time on the face of Charles E. L. Henderson, murderer, but still a human being.

The cap was handed to Henderson. He took one long, last look about the room. His eyes, gaunt and encircled, scanned that gathering of white faces with a burning gaze. Then he said good-bye to the world forever, and slipped the black cap over his head.

His hands were bound behind him while Deputy Magle was adjusting the noose. Henderson did not even breathe hard. He stepped to the center of the trap. The noose was put in place.

or comment, no matter what Henderson might do or say.

"This is a serious affair," said the sheriff, "and I trust you will all consider the feelings of one of your fellow men who is coming here with the knowledge that he must die."

The men who put the scaffold together went to work at sundown. The gallows was a large and firm affair. First there was a platform about four feet from the floor, solidly built. The trap was in the center and the mechanism which worked it connected with the lever which was upright at the side of the right hand post, one of the two that supported the cross beam to which the rope was tied.

It was placed in the southeast corner of the room, and at the rear a pair of stairs were built to permit the officers and prisoner to reach the platform, which was about twelve feet square.

One incandescent light was burning. It was about four inches above the top of the platform, so the under part of the scaffold was lit up. Some blankets were on the floor under the trap, upon which it was intended to lay the body.

The drop was about three feet, and the fall was not sufficient to break the neck of the man hanging. The physicians pronounced him dead in eighteen minutes, the technical cause being strangulation.

Afterwards the body was placed in the undertaker's wagon and removed to the Durkin and Crawford undertaking rooms, where it was placed in the coffin Henderson had selected for himself. It will be remembered that Saturday when it will be shipped to Philadelphia.

Henderson had insisted on the undertaker measuring him for the casket, though the undertaker had protested that he could measure one without such preliminaries. The casket selected was a plain black one with silver lining on the outside and white satin lining. There is to be no inscription.

Henderson stipulated with the undertaker that in case his face turned black or his neck was discolored the remainer should not be exhibited for public inspection. In that case he desired a handkerchief placed over it.

He waived himself off but one of the three invitations he was answered by law, and wrote an order for the undertaker's admission to the sheriff as follows:

"Admit this man to my execution. When you are through with me give me my smoking body."

CHARLES E. L. HENDERSON.

HENDERSON'S CRIME. Revolting Deed For Which He Suffered Death Penalty.

The crime for which Charles E. L. Henderson was executed, was the murder of Ida McCormack, committed in this city in June last. He had lived with her for more than a year and she had born a child, which afterward died and of which he was the father. He had always claimed that he loved her, but his condition, he was anxious to marry her, but that she claimed she could not as she had a husband living from whom she was not divorced. When he learned that he resolved that he would be her husband in fact, if not in name.

Henderson and the McCormack woman lived in Chicago before coming to Duluth. He determined finally to leave the city and came to Duluth in the spring of 1932. Here he met William Dawson, who befriended him and the two became warm friends.

Henderson had been here three weeks when Mrs. McCormack wrote him that she would not live in Chicago another day without him. He sent her transportation, but she came on to Duluth, and she came on at once. After her arrival she was introduced among the colored people as his wife.

Among those whom she met Dawson was one of the first and she immediately fell desperately in love with him. Henderson did not suspect the sentiments and thought Dawson's attentions were merely friendly. Some time later, however, the true state of affairs came out and the woman left him after a quarrel.

Henderson besought her to return, but she would not. On the night of June 21 he went to the apartments which she occupied at 119 West First street. He says that it was just to see her and to tell her how good he was before leaving the city. She was not in and he obtained entrance to the room with skeleton key and hid himself in a closet.

Soon after she came into the room with another colored woman and sat down to write a letter. Henderson told her that night as she was sure that Henderson would not trouble them again. She told the other woman that she was writing and told her how much she was in love with Dawson and made remarks comparing him and Henderson. Henderson was not at all to Henderson's credit.

Henderson suddenly sprang from his hiding place and stabbed Mrs. McCormack in the back with a knife. She fell from the room, terrified and shrieking. She jumped out of a window in an adjoining room and landed on the top of a high board fence but never stopped running till she was several blocks away.

Mrs. McCormack tried to follow her fleeing companion, but Henderson followed close behind, slashing and stabbing whenever he had an opportunity. The frantic woman managed to get out of her apartments and ran across the hallway to the flat of W. D. Jones. Mrs. Jones opened the door and told her to get in. She closed the door and Henderson could reach his victim, but was not strong enough to hold the door. The negro chased her and told her to get through three rooms of the Jones apartments and out into the hallway again, where she was again stabbed several times and left to die.

The murderer hurried down to First and thence to Second avenue west, where Officer Robert Gillon met and arrested him on account of the condition of his hands and the suspicious manner in which he threw away a knife.

In police court the murderer sought to conduct his own preliminary examination, but made such a rank failure of it that he was committed to jail to await take charge of his case from that time on.

Henderson has always attributed his revolting crime to love.

He said he worshipped Ida McCormack at first sight, and his affection grew stronger, and he had led himself the pleasures of a good home and many of the necessities of life for her sake, even accepting her when she attempted to kill him.

He never fully explained this alleged attempt upon his life, but spoke of it in the court room when sentence was pronounced, on Nov. 18 last. At that time he said:

"I denied myself many pleasures for her sake. I did everything in my power to make her happy. I was her servant, making her finger nails, gave her physical culture lessons to develop her form, and waited on her as a servant more than a lover. I could not give her up."

"I have a secret which I do not care to bring out, but as I stand here, I have bullet wounds in my breast which she placed there. Until this time I have not mentioned this, preferring to protect her name from newspaper notoriety."

When urged for an explanation of this mysterious talk, one day recently Henderson started to tell of the trouble, but soon changed his mind. During the talkative interval he said he had been celebrating on Monday night, the 19th, while he and Ida McCormack were living in a flat in Chicago.

He had been drinking and tried to get in the back way in order to avoid meeting her at once, Mrs. McCormack, however, was awaiting him at the top of the stairs, and according to Henderson, she pumped three bullets into him. He declined to report the shooting to save her name, whom he termed "scandal," and she repented.

Henderson maintained, even after he was pronounced dead, that he loved her, and did not think, knowing what he did, that he would have her back in life. He declared that he loved Ida McCormack with a consuming passion, and claimed that his love for her unbalanced his mind when he learned of her duplicity and the treachery of his supposed friend. He said that his victim never had any excuse for killing him, that he had done for her all that it was possible for a man to do, and her faithlessness drove him insane.

Just before the death watch was set, Henderson said to a Herald representative:

"I lay my past life and record open as a book, court and jury investigating, for I hold malice toward no man or woman, freely forgiving all as I hope, trust, pray and know I am forgiven by Him who is no respecter of persons or any manner of sin, knowing that God will abundantly deal with the works of charity and integrity and according to His divine and righteous judgment."

"I believe there is but one act in my past life in which I can be properly criticized, and I deplore the same more than any one else, for I have forever lost her whom I most loved, and as my own life and past many endeavors are lost upon the barren desert of regret, this last act, the curtailment of time will soon hide as I descend upon the stage of drama, eclipsing from view the actors who have portrayed their respective parts, good or bad, on the finale."

"I may add this, that he who lays the true foundation of self-sacrificing manhood, who seeks to build his future life is oftentimes cheated and enamored by libertines, debauchers and men of hurtful caprices. Such has been my fate."

EPISODES OF HIS LIFE. Some Interesting Chapters as Told By Himself.

One of the interesting chapters of Charles E. L. Henderson's life—for events show that he had an eventful life previous to his trouble in this city which led to his death on the scaffold—is that regarding the little Cuban girl, Mal-Selina, daughter of a Cuban colonel who served under Gen. Maximilian and was shot and killed by a Spaniard during the Spanish-American war.

This girl is now in the care of the family of James R. Hill, 400 Dearborn street, Chicago, where Henderson's application for a commutation of his death sentence to that of life imprisonment was made to Governor Van Sant.

Henderson saw service during the late war as quartermaster sergeant of Company B, Eight regiment, Illinois National Guard, Capt. Adolph Thomas, of 2505 State street, Chicago, being the commanding officer.

Henderson's story regarding the finding of the little girl, as told some months ago, is corroborated by Ed. E. Gray, the prominent Chicago firm of Bullock, Gray & More, in a letter recently written this paper, and in which he says:

"Having known a man for the past seven or eight years, I am desirous of placing a few facts before the public of Duluth through the agency of your well-known paper."

"At or about the time the Spanish-American war broke out, Henderson was in Chicago, as a waiter. He enlisted in one of the Illinois colored regiments and did service in Cuba. While at Cuba he was promoted to the rank of a number of men belonging to his regiment, who were ordered by their colonel to liberate all prisoners of war. Henderson was in command of a number of men belonging to his regiment, who were ordered by their colonel to liberate all prisoners of war. Henderson was in command of a number of men belonging to his regiment, who were ordered by their colonel to liberate all prisoners of war."

Henderson claimed that as soon as he discovered that the McCormack woman was to become a mother, he resolved to protect her under his own name and take her away from Chicago, where his relatives would give him a place of their shame. He said he had discovered he could not marry the woman even had he been free, for she had been twice married, and she had run away from the second because he ill-treated her. They came on to Duluth, where the baby was born, and died, and where later events led up to Henderson's crime and his arrest, conviction, trial, sentence and death.

Henderson always claimed that no one else ever helped him in the support or education of the adopted Cuban girl, that the only time he was approached on the subject was on the morning of April 7, 1934, when he took his last walk before Governor J. R. Tanner, in the executive mansion in Illinois, and presented her as a living monument to the Elkhart Volunteer in memory of the African American who died in the attack of malaria fever.

Henderson was always very proud of his record as that of his regiment. Shortly before his execution he said, regarding the same:

"Thanks be to Almighty God that I was in the first regiment sent out from this country, the land of the free and the home of the brave, with line and staff officers, and negroes. I did not enter the volunteer service for gain of spoils, loot or plunder, but for the sole purpose of helping to fight the close of the Spanish-American war, and the negroes were made in the United States senate by Senator Benjamin Tillman, of South Carolina, that the negroes were to be kept in the first regiment sent out from this country, the land of the free and the home of the brave, with line and staff officers, and negroes. HENDERSON PAYS THE LAW'S EXTREME PENALTY disappear under the scaffold and reappear up the stairs at the rear; then two more followed. Sheriff Butchart was on the stairs before the party came in. The first two were C. E. L. Henderson and Deputy Thatcher; the second, Deputy Magle and Mrs. John Callahan. Other deputies followed.

There was a moment of awkward silence. Henderson stood in the center of the stairs, with his toes barely on the trap, his shoulders back and his head erect. He bowed his head as Mr. Callahan began to speak.

"Let us bow down our heads in prayer," said Mr. Callahan, and Henderson stood in the center of the stairs, his hands hanging at his side all the while.

Mr. Callahan called upon the Almighty to give the condemned man strength to meet him, and sought forgiveness for him. He alluded to the crime in a delicate way, said that Henderson would appear before his Maker reconciled to his fellow man and repentant for his wrong doings. He called attention to the shyness of Henderson in his repentance, and called upon all to join in a heartfelt hope for his pardon.

At the close of the prayer, which was brief, there was another short and embarrassing silence, which was broken by the firm and strident voice of Henderson. As he looked up after the prayer the lines of pain and care and weariness were evident on his face, but his second firm. Someone among the spectators said loudly:

"Brave boy, Henderson." The intruder was hushed.

single incandescent light burned dimly and its rays were thrown back at it by the heavy clouds of tobacco smoke.

The picture was thrilling. Seven men stood in the well-defined, smoky rays of the light upon the scaffold. At the west end of the room the pale and serious faces of the spectators were visible through the gloom, made more ghastly by the reddish light of the incandescent.

Nearer the scaffold two rows of grim policemen stolidly watched the proceedings and beneath the grewsome platform it was pitch black.

The visiting sheriffs, to the number of four, stood at either side of the scaffold, ready to pick up the condemned man should the rope break or bring him up for another trial. The undertaker looked grimly on and the two physicians silently waited the moment when their turn in the proceedings should come.

Sheriff Butchart stood silently waiting until things should be made ready for the fatal jerk of the lever.

For fifteen seconds there was not a move, and hardly a breath. The spectators looked for the last time on the face of Charles E. L. Henderson, murderer, but still a human being.

The cap was handed Henderson. He stepped to the lever, he stood a moment, he looked back, he looked about the room. His eyes, gaunt and encircled, scanned that gathering of white faces with a burning gaze. Then he said good-bye to the world forever, and slipped the black cap over his head.

His hands were bound behind his back. Henderson did not even breathe hard. He stepped to the center of the trap. The noose was put in place.

or comment, no matter what Henderson might do or say.

"This is a serious affair," said the sheriff, "and I trust you will all consider the feelings of one of your fellow men who is coming here with the knowledge that he must die."

The men who put the scaffold together went to work as usual. The scaffold was a platform about six feet long and four feet wide. It was made of iron and was connected with the lever which stood upright at the side of the right hand post, one of the two that supported the cross beam to which the rope was tied.

It was placed in the southeast corner of the room, and at the rear a pair of stairs were built to permit the officers and prisoner to reach the platform, which was about twelve feet square.

One incandescent light was burning. It was about four inches above the surface of the platform, so the under part of the scaffold was inky black. Some blankets were on the floor under the trap, upon which it was intended to lay the body.

The trap was about three feet, and the fall was not sufficient to break the neck of the man hanged. The physicians pronounced him dead in eighteen minutes, the technical cause being strangulation.

After the execution had been completed, the body was placed in the undertaker's wagon and removed to the Durkin & Crawford undertaking room. The body was placed in the coffin Henderson had selected for himself. It will remain there until Saturday when it will be shipped to Delphi.

Henderson had insisted on the undertaker measuring him for the casket, though the undertaker had protested that he could measure him without such preliminaries. The casket selected was a plain box with black cloth covering on the outside and white satin lining. There is to be no inscription.

After the execution of the condemned man stipulated with the undertaker that in case his face turned black or his neck was broken, he would not be exposed, but be exhibited for public inspection. In that case he desired a handkerchief placed over it.

He availed himself of but one of the two invitations to visit his home, and wrote an order for the undertaker's admission to the sheriff's office.

Adopt this manner in my execution. When you are through with me give him my penance (body).

CHARLES E. L. HENDERSON.

HENDERSON'S CRIME.

Revolting Deed For Which He Suffered Death Penalty.

The crime for which Charles E. L. Henderson was executed, was the murder of Ida McCormack, committed in this city in June last. He had lived with her for more than a year and she had born a child, which afterward died and of which he was the father. He had always claimed, when she was found in her condition, he was anxious to marry her, but that she claimed she could not as she had a husband living from whom she was not divorced. When Henderson and her met William Dawson, who befriended him and the two became warm friends.

Henderson had been here three weeks when Mrs. McCormack wrote him that she would not live in Chicago another day without him. He sent her a telegram, promising to come, and she came on at once. After her arrival she was introduced among the colored people of the city, and was warmly welcomed by them. Among those whom she met Dawson was one of the first and she immediately fell desperately in love with him. Henderson did not suspect their sentiments and thought Dawson's attentions were merely friendly. Some time later, however, the true state of affairs was known and the woman left him after a quarrel.

Henderson besought her to return, but she would have nothing to do with him. On the night of June 21 he went to the apartments which she occupied at 119 West First street.

He was just to see her and bid her good-bye before leaving the city. She was not in and he obtained entrance to the room by means of a skeleton key and hid himself in a closet.

Soon after she came into the room with another colored woman and sat down to write. Henderson waited until she had finished and then he went to her and told her that he was in love with her and that he wanted to marry her. She was writing and told her how much she was in love with Dawson and made remarks comparing him and Henderson in a way that was not at all to Henderson's credit.

Henderson suddenly sprang from his hiding place and rushed toward her. She fled in terror and he followed her. She ran to the door and opened it and he followed her. She ran to the door and opened it and he followed her. She ran to the door and opened it and he followed her.

of the stairs and according to Henderson, she pumped three bullets into him. He declined to report the shooting to save her name from what he termed "scandal," and she repented.

Henderson maintained, even after he was condemned to death for the death of his mistress, that he still loved her memory, and did not think, knowing what he did that he would have her back in life. He declared that he loved Ida McCormack with a consuming passion, and claimed that his love for her unbanned his mind when he learned of her unfaithfulness and the treachery of his supposed friend. He said that his victim never had any excuse for jilting him, that he had done for her all that it was possible for a man to do, and her faithlessness drove him insane.

Just before the death watch was set, Henderson said to a Herald representative:

"I lay my past life and record open as a book, and I can be fearfully criticized, and I deplore the same more than any one else, for I have forever lost her whom my soul loved, and even now my life and past manly endeavors are lost upon the barren desert of regret, this last act, the curtain of time from which I descend upon the stage of drama, eclipsing from view the actors who have portrayed their respective parts, good or bad, on the stage."

"I may add this, that he who lays the true foundation of self-sacrificing manhood, who when to build his future house is oftentimes cheated and snubbed by libertines, debauchers and men of hurtful caprices. Such has been my fate."

EPISODES OF HIS LIFE.

Some Interesting Chapters as Told By Himself.

One of the interesting chapters of Charles E. L. Henderson's life—for events show that he had an eventful life previous to his trouble in this city which led to his death on the scaffold—led to the little Cuban girl, Mal-Selina, born in Havana, daughter of a Cuban colonel who served under Gen. Maximilian and was shot down by the forces of the Spaniards during the Spanish-American war. This girl is now in the care of the family of James R. Hill, 400 Dearborn street, and during Henderson's confinement in the prison at San Luis, he was in the care of the family of James R. CHARLES E. L. HENDERSON.

"How long can I talk?" asked Henderson, clearing his throat.

There was nothing said, but Sheriff Butchart walked back to him and spoke to him in a low tone, putting him on the spot.

"Unlimited time," came a voice.

"I will speak thirty minutes," said Henderson, looking at the sheriff.

"If I speak less than that, keep note of it; if I speak more, let me know."

Henderson took a step forward and planted himself firmly.

"Citizens of Duluth, St. Louis County, Minnesota: I have a few words to say before I go to face the unknown. To those who have come here to gloat over this scene, or who have come from abroad, I hope, your merited curiosity will be satisfied."

Henderson then went on in a rambling way regarding the relation of man to God and his feelings in the matter, and told of his opinions of moral rectitude and unrighteousness. He said that he had been a soldier for the United States and had served faithfully and well in the cause for which he enlisted.

"I have faced death before, I can face it again. I stand before you tonight without a tremor in my body; not a tremor in my voice. I come on this last journey at this time of night into a place of this kind to answer for what I have done. I have no fear, I have no fear."

Henderson continued his address, telling of his reconciliation with his Maker and showing no sign of timidity toward the fate that awaited him.

"I have nothing to say in justification for what I have done," he said. "The deed was done. It was a crime, and the law has been broken. I am made to suffer the extreme penalty of death by hanging, there is not a man in this gathering tonight who does not know that the act was unjustified."

"I was out of my senses when I did it. My faculties were stunned. I did not know what I did. But the justice must be met. I am to die on the scaffold for what I have done. It was not out of hatred that I did it, I bore no malice. I bear no malice."

Henderson proceeded to a tall, his standpoint further, and then offered a prayer of his own. It was such a simple, most humble and pleading, earnest.

"Oh, heavenly Father, bestow Thy blessings down upon the souls of my friends here," indicating the officers, "and assure them I bear no malice."

The spoken man then took up his bouquet of white flowers. He made a short speech first to Sheriff Butchart, then to Deputies Thatcher and Magle, and the others, giving each a flower for his profuse thanks for the treatment they had given him.

"Take this," said, "the purest emblem on God's footstool, and preserve it as a gift from me, who you have been friendly to. I thank you, Mr. Thatcher, for the many kindnesses you have shown me and for the hundreds of people you have introduced me to."

He continued through the solemn proceedings, mainly keeping his sturdy bearing all the time. He continued with the prayer:

"Oh, heavenly Father, may your mercy be shown to an unfortunate man, may your blessings descend on all the people here tonight. May they descend even upon the city of Duluth, with its vice and wickedness. I am at peace with the world and with my God. Praise your blessings on me. Take me, my God."

Henderson stepped back a bit. There was an awful silence in the room. The

Some of the spectators coughed, or sneezed, and the sounds echoed in the awful hush that existed.

The officers moved back, and the sheriff stepped to the lever. He stood a moment, he looked back, he looked about the room. His eyes, gaunt and encircled, scanned that gathering of white faces with a burning gaze. Then he said good-bye to the world forever, and slipped the black cap over his head.

For fifteen seconds there was not a move, and hardly a breath. The spectators looked for the last time on the face of Charles E. L. Henderson, murderer, but still a human being.

The cap was handed Henderson. He stepped to the lever, he stood a moment, he looked back, he looked about the room. His eyes, gaunt and encircled, scanned that gathering of white faces with a burning gaze. Then he said good-bye to the world forever, and slipped the black cap over his head.

PLAYED HOMELY FAVORITE.

The Swaybacked Horse Ran Like a Giraffe.

She was bound and determined to let her $2 on the handsome, flashy-looking horse in the race, says the Washington Star.

"Look how lovely and shiny his coat is, and how black," she exclaimed to her husband when he returned to the grand stand after his visit to the betting ring. "And see how cute and proudly he arches his neck—I've watched them all go around on their heels and you call them—excuse me, please, but he's prettier than any of them, don't you think?"

"My dear," replied the husband, "hand-some is as handsome does in horse racing more than in any other phase of life. There's only one really handsome race horse that knows how to run fast in a straight line. The handsome ones are nearly always bluffers and counterfeits. They won't be. All they're fit for is just to excite the admiration of the poor, foolish women in the grand stand. When it comes to racing they're simply not there."

An arched neck doesn't make a race horse. Neither does a glossy coat. The one that gets the job done is the one that knows how to get up and lurch himself and over the ground."

"But," persisted the man's wife, "just look how that beautiful thing is running around the track. Why, he's fairly running through a furrow. He's almost broken the hearts of four different owners already, and he's got his present owner on the verge of bankruptcy. He's one of those plucky that climb out in the morning before the racing begins and works like a cyclone, and when he gets into a real race he shows an entire streak as broad as a river."

"Well, I've got a feeling that that horse is going to win this race, anyhow," said the man's wife, with the stubbornness of a woman who has learned to place her reliance in feminine intuition as generated by herself. "I don't like to know of masculine wisdom or experience. What are they letting him run for, if they don't think he'll win? He's a hundred to one in the betting, and if you put $200 on him you'll have a whole barrel full of money."

On him you'll have a whole barrel full of money—of course. But the horse that is going to walk away with this race is an even-money shot. In spite of the fact that he's about as ugly-looking a skate as ever stood on iron. He's sway-backed, and he's skinny and over-trained looking, and he doesn't resemble a thoroughbred race horse at all. If you'd see him hauled to a farmer's buggy you'd say to yourself that he was just in the right spot, and when he runs he's got a climbing motion that makes him look like a giraffe that's broken loose from a circus parade. But he's won about five-eighths of all the races he's started in this year, and he'll just walk in, that's all—walk in. With which offhand, I-know-it-all pronouncement the man resumed the consideration of his program, while his wife, bridling her lips a little more firmly together, summoned one of the grand stand commissionaires, took $20 to $2 against the beautiful horse of her fancy and settled back in her seat to wait for her moment to convey a series of 100-100-100 remarks to her husband.

The field got away to a good break right in front of the stand, and before the first turn had been reached the beautiful animal of the bunch had taken a clear lead of three lengths on his field, while the scraggy-looking favorite, the even-money choice, immediately fell back into the rank of the struggling masses of horses. Around the back stretch swept the beautiful animal that had so captivated the eyes of the women in the stand, outstripping him, it seemed, at every stride, while the wife of the man who had ridiculed the horse's beauty points stood up in her excitement and waved her program frantically, her husband in the meanwhile smiling in a crestfallen sort of way, and then—

However, this is not a continued-in-story of a horse race. It is a story of a thing that happened out at the Benning track the other day. It would be very simple, and dramatic and diverting, too, to describe how the despised handsome horse came sweeping down the stretch, 29 lengths ahead of his field, and amid the delighted shrieks of the women and the skeptical exclamations of the male favorite players, but as a simple matter of fact, nothing of the sort occurred.

The beautiful animal "chucked" it like a dog at the far turn and fell back to the rear in half a dozen strides, whereupon the scraggy-looking favorite pranced out in the lead in five jumps, led it to the wire, and won easily, without an effort.

It is a pity to be compelled to occasionally hurl a dose of shrewdness at the "feminine intuition" idea, but if there's any point in the world where found as in a nut shell, it doesn't count for anything. It's on a race track. Neither does masculine intuition, for the matter of that.

IN THE FAR WEST.

"Tommy," said Tommy's father, as he caught the boy counting a roll of bills, says the Brooklyn Eagle, "where did you get all that money?"

"Playin' poker," answered the boy.

"Tommy," said the old man sternly, "you follow me out back of the house."

"But, dad—"

"Ain't I told you never to tackle no game of chance till you—"

"But this ain't no game of chance," protested the boy. "Why, dad, I run across a couple of tenderfeet from the East that didn't know no more about poker than to back ag'in a pat hand in a jack pot with only a pair of tens."

"The old man had picked up a strap, but now he dropped it.

"What's that?" he asked.

"Fact, dad," replied the boy. "An' on the very next deal one of 'em had three queens, an' let me bluff him out on ace high."

"Didn't know no more about playin' poker than that?" asked the old man.

"They sure didn't, dad."

"The old man began to show signs of excitement.

"Have they left town yet, Tommy?" he asked.

"No, dad."

"Well, this here poker is a bad thing fer boys, an' I don't stand fer it no-how," announced the old man. "But if you'll just steer your poor ol' dad up ag'in them suckers, Tommy, we won't bother with the strap this time. Somebody ought to git that money that can take care of it, fer it would be a cryin' shame to leave it with two such careless fellers as that."

"D—RIPTION OF ETERNITY.

There is an old-fashioned preacher down in Southern Kansas who recently gave this picturesque description of eternity:

"I see a sparrow was to tip its bill in the Atlantic ocean and take one drop of water and then take one hop a day across the country and put the drop in the Atlantic, one hop a day, until the Atlantic was as deep as a hole. It wouldn't be sun-up in hell."

CHECK WAS FORGED

Superintendent of Philadelphia Deposit Company Goes Wrong.

Has Not Been Seen Since Check Was Presented.

Philadelphia, March 6.—Charles T. Moloney, general superintendent of the Philadelphia Warehousing and Safe Deposit company, cashed what is alleged to be a forged check for $7000 on the Girard National bank on Saturday morning last.

The check bore the names of A. M. Bright, treasurer of the Pennsylvania company, and William Rommel, secretary of the company. A member of the board of directors, which met today, said that the $7000 had not been refunded to the company, although he admitted that the bank was "legally responsible for the sum."

Mr. Moloney, who lived with his wife and child at Woodbury, N. J., six miles south of Camden, has not been seen either here or in Woodbury since Monday. Moloney is under bond to the Pennsylvania company for $10,000.

DISPATCHES OF AGUINALDO

Show That He Depended On Others For Advice.

Washington, March 6.—The bureau of Insular affairs, war department has just published a pamphlet of forty-eight pages giving the telegraphic correspondence of Emilio Aguinaldo from July 15, 1898, to Feb. 28, 1899, the period just preceding the fall of Manila and following the outbreak of hostilities between the United States forces and insurgents. These telegrams were discovered by Captain John R. Taylor, Fourteenth infantry, among a mass of papers captured from the so-called insurgent government. They are sufficiently complete to show that Aguinaldo leaned strongly upon others for advice and counsel, that there was serious opposition to his authority and among his own people, and that an attack upon the Americans at Manila had been fully decided upon before the outbreak of hostilities on Feb. 4, 1899, and that in the event that the struggle should prove successful, the new government would have been a republic, but titles of nobility would have been conferred on certain insurgent officers as a reward for entering Manila and capturing the American forces and their officers.

There is an old-fashioned preacher down in Southern Kansas who recently gave this picturesque description of eternity:

"I see a sparrow was to tip its bill in the Atlantic ocean and take one drop of water and then take one hop a day across the country and put the drop in the Atlantic, one hop a day, until the Atlantic was as deep as a hole. It wouldn't be sun-up in hell."

STRIKE OF BRIDGE MEN

All Employes of American Bridge Company Called Out.

Philadelphia, March 6.—A general strike against the American Bridge company has been called by the executive board of the International Union of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers. This general order includes all construction work in the hands of the company throughout the United States and Canada, and involves thousands of men in all sections.

When the order was received by the Households and Bridgemen's union, No. 3, of this city, strikes were called on all operations where American bridge company iron was used in construction, although the erecting contracts were in the hands of the general contractors, who purchased iron from the American Bridge company.

Frank Buchanan, general president of the union, and another member of the executive board, came to this city last night. As the result of a conference between representatives of several contractors and the business agents of the local union, the men were ordered back to work today on operations in this city not being erected by the American Bridge company.

New York, March 6.—An official of the American Bridge company said today:

This strike has been called without our receding any prior notice of any trouble. So far as we know, the strike is in sympathy with the hoisting engineers, and reports from our foremen throughout the country show that everything is tied up everywhere in the country. We have always lived up to our agreements with the men in regard to the employment of union men, but the unions have failed to supply us with union men. The question for us to decide now is whether to employ non-union men or stop work.

committees will be taken up. It is thought necessary to have the vacancies on the foreign relations committee filled immediately as that committee will have to deal with the pending treaties. They also will ask that the Democratic vacancies on the committee on inter-oceanic canals, caused by the retirement from the senate of Messrs. Harris and Turner, shall be filled with

It also is probable that they will ask that the places vacated by Senators Vest and Turner on the committee on commerce, shall be filled before the nomination of Dr. Crum, to be collector at the port of Charleston, is taken up by that committee. A similar demand probably will be made in all other cases in which committees have charge of nominations over which there may be controversy. The caucus was in session for almost two hours.

FEATS OF CHESS EXPERTS.

Men Who Play Many Games Puzzle Scientists.

Few, indeed, even among the chess fraternity can understand how one single man can possibly conduct twenty-six games simultaneously and successfully too. Fewer still have the slightest idea of the wonderful dexterity required for such a task, says the Baltimore Herald. It is a mistake to suppose that all a genuine player has to do is to go from board to board, look at the position, see the move made by an antagonist, and then make his rejoinder. While going from board to board, the single player must carry all the positions in his head in order to achieve success. Even when not present at the board the positions of most of the interesting games will be constantly before him, and while often quite mechanically making a move on one table he will still have the position before his mental eye of some other board. That an expert simultaneous player must have that wonderful skill has been proved over and over again by the exhibition in some English chess club—played over thirty games on that occasion—was able to dictate the scores of these games by heart, giving at the same time an analytical description of the game without sight of men or board. Blackburne, too, was very clever in this respect. The day after the Manhattan Chess club in such a performance he found that board on which he was about to make a move did not present the actual position. The amateur conducting the game against him on that board must have inadvertently shifted the pieces. The latter, however, maintained that the position was right. Still, the latter's memory for games in simultaneous performances was somewhat remarkable. CHURCH TRUST A SUCCESS.

Its Scope Will Be Extended In New York.

From some church door to every home in Greater New York a "bridge of approach" is to be built, scientifically co-operating, no more in competition for the cure of souls. New York's religious organizations are to combine into practical unity, says the Brooklyn Eagle.

For six years the plan has been tried experimentally, at a cost of some $30,000; within the past few days the movement has reached the permanent stage. Chicago has heard of it and is starting out on just such a venture. The first dollars of an endowment fund of half a million have been pledged for the New York field.

No great sum is needed for the firm establishment of this twentieth century enterprise. In no time since it has been started has over $10,000 been spent. The men behind it figure it can be safely and thoroughly carried on for some years to come for $25,000 a year, the income of half a million dollars.

What it has been proved can be accomplished with this $25,000 annually under this most modern of church projects is almost incredible. The church, regardless of denomination, is to come into every household. The church-going population of New York, which today has only been estimated, has not, in the opinion of experts, been correctly counted. It is estimated that there are 1,000,000 church-going people in New York, and that the church-going population of New York, which today has only been estimated, has not, in the opinion of experts, been correctly counted.

The machine that has set this in motion and step by step has already brought 202 churches into working unity, forming co-operative parishes and gaining for the denominations hundreds of new members, is a highly interesting machine. It is an organization far down town in New York, on one of the floors of the Bowdoin building, at the foot of Broadway, with the name of the "Federation of Churches and Christian Organizations in New York City."

By a system that has been perfected over some years and is the root of all this work a system that literally is as great and wonderful in its way as is the tabulation of the census at Washington, actually millions of important facts are collected each year regarding the families of New York. These facts, extraordinarily complete as they are, make up a sociological and statistical study of each family. One man alone in the employ of the federation, its first fellow, has collected facts about 15,000 families. The sociological census (which has not its counterpart in the world, and has attracted great attention among political economists) only furnishes to New York's religious bodies these invaluable details, tabulating with wonderful rapidity on electrical machines what the census of the United States would take months to compile. These statistics may be wanted, but it places in the hands of each church, synagogue, mission cards giving the location, condition and address of any family it might possibly reach.

In no way, by itself, even with the expenditure of great sums of money, could any church gather together these facts that, it is now realized, mean so much for parish upbuilding and the growth of denominations.

But one part and portion of the federation's work, however, is this collection of statistics and this tabulating. That is merely scientific investigation, conditions, analyzing and setting them down in mathematical forms. Part the second is the carrying out of the federation's plan to the number of churches in it, giving each church a block or perhaps two to explore in detail. Part the third is the carrying out of the federation's plan to the number of churches in it, giving each church a block or perhaps two to explore in detail.

So with and so improving is the program that at first thought it seems out of the question. Nevertheless, it is all being done today, though on a small scale to commence with. It must not be forgotten, however, that the most of the work in question is to be done by the hundreds of religious bodies all ready in existence. The central office of the federation itself plans, systematizes and starts. As its projector, its promoter and its executive secretary from the beginning, the Rev. Walter Laidlaw, has put the federation on nothing more or less than "a church clearing house," wherein the management of the affairs of the New York City churches, their relations one with another and the covering of their wide material needs are all simplified and made effective at little cost to each and to religion generally, just as is done in the case of metropolitan financial institutions.

The statistical part of the work has already had one notable and significant outcome. The head of the department of political economy at Columbia heard of it, came down to the federation's offices and studied the methods of tabulating there over one whole day. He went away only to establish that very same system in Columbia's economic course, securing like electrical machines and putting the university stamp of high efficiency upon it. Thus the religious endeavor of the new century is adding sociology materially.

Behind the movement stands a most powerful directorate. Thus far little has been done save on Manhattan island. But a good third, at least, of the men who are guiding it are men of Brooklyn, with ex-Mayor Charles A. Schieren, the federation's vice president, and Charles A. Schieren, the federation's vice president, and Charles A. Schieren, the federation's vice president.

DEMOSTRATION MOST REMARKABLE AT PARIS

An Elaborate Banquet to President Francis.

Paris, March 7.—A remarkable demonstration of Franco-American cordiality occurred at the banquet given at 11 o'clock this morning in the Hotel Continental to President Francis of the St. Louis exposition. It was under the presidency of Minister of Commerce Trouillot and was attended by 500 of the foremost officials, including a personal representative of President Loubet, practically the entire ministry and representatives of the state, senate, chamber of deputies, judiciary and the army and navy. Mr. Francis arrived here from Madrid late last night, and owing to his intention to leave for Berlin at 1 o'clock, the banquet was arranged for an unusually early hour.

The corridors leading to the banquet hall were lined on either side by long lines of Republican guards in brilliant uniforms, with burnished helmets and flowing red plumes. On the upper landing was stationed the famous band of the One Hundred and Fourth regiment of infantry, which played the "Marseillaise" as the distinguished guests assembled. When President Francis appeared he was enthusiastically greeted, and the band played "The Star Spangled Banner." During a prolonged demonstration Mr. Francis was escorted to the post of honor with Col. Meux, St. Marc, of his right and the minister of commerce at his left. The full capacity of the spacious banquet hall was taxed by the guests, who were seated at twelve long tables flanking the table occupied by the guests of honor.

THE ANTI-VACCINATION BILL KILLED BY THE STATE SENATE

Bill Passed But Amended So That Its Author Would Not Recognize It—Strong Speech Made By Dr. Cole of Fergus Falls.

FROM A STAFF CORRESPONDENT
St. Paul, March 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The senate yesterday afternoon gracefully and decisively killed the anti-vaccination bill, thus making of the multitudinous and arduous labors of the anti-vaccination lobby during the past few weeks.

The bill was passed, but in such shape that its author would never recognize it if he met it unexpectedly in a strange locality.

This can be understood when it is known that the amendment that was adopted was written by a practicing physician and an ardent believer in the efficacy of vaccination.

As the bill originally stood, it prohibited compulsory vaccination, and particularly required that vaccination should not be demanded as an essential to the admission of children to the public schools.

As it was passed it simply provides that where a physician furnishes a certificate that the physical condition of a child is such that vaccination is dangerous, that child may attend school, providing it has not been exposed to smallpox within thirty days prior.

This amendment was offered by Dr. A. B. Cole, of Fergus Falls, who made a long and interesting talk on vaccination and the anti-vaccinationists in support of his position. The remaining members of the senate who are also members of the medical profession made speeches in favor of the bill, and Senators Fitzpatrick and Thompson spoke against it.

The request was very much alive up to the last moment. The galleries were packed with enthusiastic supporters of the bill, and they applauded the statements of their champions on the floor with liberality and vim. At one time a too enthusiastic supporter in the gallery shouted out a response to the remarks of an enemy of the bill, and the president had to direct the attention of the sergeant-at-arms to expel the culprit.

Dr. Cole's talk was exceedingly able, and he hurled a ponderous mass of facts and figures upon the lukewarm heads of the anti-vaccinationists. While his speech included a vast

FUNSTON RECEIVES ORDERS TO REPORT AT WASHINGTON

He Expected to Leave For Vancouver Barracks, to Which He Had Been Ordered at Once, But Command From Washington Changes His Plans.

Denver, March 7.—Brig. Gen. Frederick Funston, commanding the department of the Colorado, U. S. A., has received unexpected orders calling him to Washington for a conference with the assistant secretary of war, Sanger. No reason was given for the summons. The general will leave today for Washington, accompanied by his personal aide, Lieut. Mitchell.

Gen. Funston has been ordered to assume command of the department of the Columbia, embracing Washington.

Oregon, Idaho and the whole of Alaska, succeeding Gen. Randall, who sails for the Philippines on April 1. His orders were to reach "Vancouver barracks, Washington," the department headquarters, not later than March 10, and he has been ordered to leave Denver for the Pacific coast today.

Gen. Funston declined to discuss the new order, or to make any comment on the change in arrangements. It is believed, however, that the war department has in view extensive plans for the hauling of troops in Alaska in connection with the impending difficulties over the Alaskan boundary question.

CHAPLAIN DIED FROM HICCUGHS

Chicago, March 7.—Exhausted by an attack of hiccoughs, which had lasted without interruption for several days, the Rev. J. P. McLeary, an army chaplain, formerly of Fort Logan but lately on the retired list, is dead at the residence of his son-in-law, Capt. Alvord, at Fort Sheridan.

The chaplain, a hale and vigorous man of 68 years, had an attack of pneumonia three weeks ago, but recovered after a stubborn fight against the disease. He was rapidly convalescing when, seven days ago, he was attacked by a spell of hiccoughs. Several doctors at the fort were consulted, but their efforts to relieve him proved futile. The patient grew weaker from day to day, and finally died from exhaustion.

Chaplain McLeary, who spent most of his service in the West, has devoted himself to writing for magazines and newspapers since his retirement, and had contributed many articles to various periodicals. Three children survive him.

POOL ROOMS ARE ORDERED CLOSED

Cincinnati, March 7.—A sweeping order was issued by Judge Hodge in the Campbell county circuit court at Newport, Ky., pertaining to pool rooms. In the order George Easton and others interested in a pool room known as the Tuxedo Garden, in that city, are directed to cease operating such places or they will be held for contempt. This is the room which John J. Ryan, of Turf Investment company fame, is said to have been backing financially. Easton pleaded guilty yesterday to an indictment which charged him with "maintaining a nuisance." At that time the county prosecuting attorney suggested that Easton and his associates be fined $500. The court took the matter of sentence under advisement, and today the sweeping order to close up the Tuxedo Garden was issued.

FIRST ARREST IN BURDICK CASE PROVED A BLUNDER

CRUISER CHATTANOOGA LAUNCHED
Handsomeness New Vessel Successfully Placed In Her Native Element at Elizabeth, N. J.

Elizabeth, N. J., March 7.—The cruiser Chattanooga was launched at 2:30 this afternoon. She slid gracefully into the water, the launching and ceremonies being most successfully carried out.

Great precaution had to be taken in launching the Chattanooga because there was only 600 feet of water in front of the ways and the cruiser is more than 350 feet long. To overcome the danger a system of checking the movement of the vessel was devised. Two great weights were secured well down in the ground on each side of the ways. As the cruiser left the ways and was waterborne a series of heavy ropes were broken, each rope sustaining a strain of twenty tons. In this way the ship gradually was stopped before she reached the opposite shore.

The Chattanooga was christened by Miss Nell Chambliss, daughter of the mayor of Chattanooga. The maids of honor were Miss Frances Bond and Miss Rleta Faxon. The bottle of champagne Miss Chambliss broke on the vessel's prow was gold meshed and draped with the national colors.

A large number of invited guests of the United States Shipbuilding company attended the launching.

The Chattanooga is a sheathed steel protected cruiser. The sheathing is of Georgia pine. Her length over all is 306 feet 6 inches, and 232 on the load water line. Her extreme breadth is 44 feet, draught 15 feet 9 inches, and displacement 500 tons. There are four steel decks and a deep coffer dam is built completely around the ship in the region of the water line. The coffer dam is filled with corn pith cellulose for the protection of the ship. There is a cellular double bottom the full length of the ship and ten complete transverse water-tight bulkheads extended above the water line. The pilot house and chart house are built of bronze and the water-tight doors are operated from a central station.

The armament of the Chattanooga consists of ten 5-inch quick-firing guns in the main battery, one each being located at the ends of the vessel on the main deck and four on each broadside of the gun deck. The secondary battery consists of eight 6-pounder rapid-fire guns, two 1-inch guns of the broadside battery of the Chattanooga are protected by nickel steel plating 1½ inches in thickness. There are two powerful searchlights on the flying bridge and the vessel is to have a wireless telegraph system. BRIDGE COMPANY VIOLATED AGREEMENTS, SAY STRIKERS

Philadelphia, March 7.—President Buchanan of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, who is in this city today, issued a statement giving the reasons for the general strike against the American Bridge company. The statement in part is as follows:

"The company started the fight in endeavoring to subvert the riveting on a job at the Lackawanna steel plant to be done by non-union men after the union men had done the difficult part of the work. The company then attempted to put non-union men to work fitting and riveting on a bridge where our members were working. The representatives of No. 6, Buffalo, requested the company to comply with the agreement by allowing members of the union to do the work. The request was disregarded by the superintendent of the company and a strike occurred there."

The statement sets forth that in Pittsburgh the company put non-union men to work on "false work, contrary to the established working rules. Other rules are alleged to have been broken in Philadelphia, N. Y. and Albany. These grievances, he says, were referred to the president for adjustment, who was unable to secure a conference with the American Bridge company.

In conclusion, President Buchanan says: "After consulting the executive board, I have issued an order for a general strike."

A Young Woman Suspect Placed In Custody. She Was Released on Writ of Habeas Corpus.

Buffalo, March 7.—Superintendent of Police Bull announced at 10 o'clock this morning that a woman had been arrested in the Burdick murder mystery.

"We strongly suspect this woman," said Superintendent Bull. "Her name is Miss Marion Hutchinson, who was employed as an extra clerk in Burdick's office. Her former home was in London, Ont. She is a woman of refinement and a fine musician. She came to Buffalo last summer with her mother and sister. Her father is dead. She is short and slight and has a light complexion."

Miss Hutchinson was taken to police headquarters by detectives at an early hour today. Much secrecy was maintained by the police.

It appears that a handkerchief played an important part in the identification, and that one not belonging to anyone in the Burdick household was found in the den after the tragedy.

As she sat in the office she was approached by Detective Cornish, who asked her for her handkerchief. She gave it up rather reluctantly.

Then Superintendent Bull stepped into the outer office and took from his drawer a handkerchief which had been concealed there. It was taken into the inner office and laid on a table and carefully examined by District Attorney Coatsworth and Superintendent Bull and compared with the other taken from the woman.

The woman was cross-examined in the private office of Superintendent Bull. While refusing to divulge any of the case in the hands of the police, Superintendent Bull made the statement that he was confident that the mystery of the Burdick murder had been solved and that complete proof would be forthcoming.

Miss Hutchinson was taken into Superintendent Bull's private office and a cross-examination was begun. Besides Miss Hutchinson in the office were Superintendent Bull, Assistant Superintendent Cusack, Detective Cornish and District Attorney Coatsworth. After her examination at police headquarters Miss Hutchinson was taken to the district attorney's office. Later Attorney Penney, the lawyer retained by Mrs. Seth T. Faine, appeared at police headquarters and demanded to see Miss Hutchinson. Superintendent Bull denied that she was there, whereupon Mr. Penney retired to the city hall and obtained from Justice White a writ of habeas corpus ordering that Miss Hutchinson be produced in court, on the ground that she was being illegally held for the murder of Edwin L. Burdick.

No defense to the writ was interposed by the police, and Miss Hutchinson was thereupon released.

Superintendent Bull issued a statement saying that she had been at no time technically under arrest, although she was detained and questioned.

Buffalo, March 7.—A woman known to have been under the eye of the police in connection with the Burdick mystery was today taken to police headquarters. She was taken at once to the office of Superintendent Bull and the door of his office was locked. Heretofore any one whom the authorities desired to question in regard to the murder mystery, has been taken to the office of the district attorney.

Assistant Chief Cusack, with Capt. Kilroy, took the woman into custody in Tenth precinct, which includes the Elmwood district. The woman is being questioned by Superintendent Bull and District Attorney Coatsworth.

The police refuse to state whether the woman has been placed under arrest or not. They decline to give her name, although they admit that she has been taken into custody in connection with the Burdick case.

The woman who was taken into custody was taken from 19 Tupper street, a boarding house kept by Mrs. Coughlin. Mrs. Coughlin stated that the woman taken from her house by the police, was Miss Marion Hutchinson, who came to the house Feb. 17. She said Miss Hutchinson worked for Burdick at the envelope factory up to four weeks ago.

Miss Hutchinson came to Buffalo last fall. Her former home was in London, Ont.

Mass Meeting to Be Held In Boston to Ask State Department to Act In Case of William Miller, Who Has Been Educating the Poles.

Boston, March 7.—The Poles of Boston are greatly excited over the news just received from Europe that William Miller, of Boston, has been arrested by the Russian government and exiled to Siberia.

Miller has been recently engaged in endeavoring to educate the Poles wherever they may be, and he had not confined his work to Russia alone.

Various societies of well-to-do Poles have contributed funds to his care for this purpose, and it was the accounts for this money and not the money that was found on his person that caused his arrest. His Boston compatriots declare that Miller had no revolutionary motives and that his sole motive was to educate and assist Polish immigrants who, upon landing in America, are detained by the inspectors and often sent back owing to their lack of education.

A mass meeting will be held here Sunday to protest, and Secretary Hay will be asked to act. Miller, it is declared here, is an American citizen. His real name is Vincente Milkiewicz, but he adopted Miller for convenience. He has been imprisoned for ten months in St. Petersburg, according to the reports here.

FIRE AGAIN THREATENS HOUGHTON

Houghton, Mich., March 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fire, the origin of which is undetermined, did $25,000 damage in Houghton early this morning. The blaze was discovered in Needham Bros' laundry, on the second floor of the old stone building, owned and formerly occupied by the A. Haas Brewing company. The flames spread so rapidly that they were beyond control before the firemen got there. The departments of Hurontown and Hancock were summoned and all efforts bent to wards preventing the spread of the flames to adjoining structures, stout stone walls of the burning building directly confining the fire to limited area. The water pressure was insufficient and the aspect was threatening for a time, but finally the fire was gotten under control. This is the second time within a month that Houghton has had a fire that threatened the business portion of the town. Besides the minor losses to the laundry's patrons, the losses are: Needham Bros, machinery, $700; Michael's saloons, $2500; Howard Small, household goods in storage, $500; A. Haas Brewing company, building, $15,000; Richard Hooper, pop maker, $100. Most of the losses are covered by insurance.

DEMONSTRATION MOST REMARKABLE AT PARIS

Cordiality of the French Well Illustrated. An Elaborate Banquet to President Francis.

Paris, March 7.—A remarkable demonstration of Franco-American cordiality occurred at the banquet given at 11 o'clock this morning in the Hotel Continental to President Francis of the St. Louis exposition. It was under the presidency of Minister of Commerce Tournon and was attended by 500 of the foremost officials, including a personal representative of President Loubet, practically the entire ministry and representatives of the state, senate, chamber of deputies, judiciary and the army and navy. Mr. Francis arrived here from Madrid late last night, and owing to his intention to leave for Berlin at 1 o'clock, the banquet was arranged for an unusually early hour. The corridors leading to the banquet hall were lined on either side by long lines of Republican guards in brilliant uniforms, with burnished helmets and flowing red plumes. On the upper landing was stationed the famous band of the One Hundred and Fourth regiment of infantry, which played the "Marseillaise" as the distinguished distinguished officers assembled. When President Francis appeared he was enthusiastically greeted, and the band played "The Star Spangled Banner." During a prolonged demonstration Mr. Francis was escorted to the post of honor with Col. Meux St. Marc, of President Loubet's personal staff, at his right and the minister of commerce at his left. The full capacity of the spacious banquet hall was taxed by the guests, who were seated at twelve long tables flanking the table occupied by the guests of honor.

THE ANTI-VACCINATION BILL KILLED BY THE STATE SENATE Bill Passed But Amended So That Its Author Would Not Recognize It—Strong Speech Made By Dr. Cole of Fergus Falls.

FROM A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.

St. Paul, March 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The senate yesterday afternoon gracefully and decidedly killed the anti-vaccination bill, thus making of no avail the multitudinous and arduous labors of the anti-vaccination lobby during the past few weeks.

The bill was passed, but in such shape that its author would never recognize it if he met it unexpectedly in a strange locality.

This can be understood when it is known that the amendment that was adopted was introduced by a practicing physician and an ardent believer in the efficacy of vaccination.

As the bill originally stood, it prohibited compulsory vaccination, and particularly required that vaccinated children should not be admitted to an essential to the admission of children to the public schools.

As it was passed it simply provided that where a physician furnishes a certificate that the physical condition of a child is such that vaccination is dangerous, that child may be exempted from attending school, providing it has not been exposed to smallpox within thirty days prior.

This amendment was offered by Dr. A. B. Cole of Fergus Falls, who made a long and interesting talk on vaccination and the anti-vaccinationists in support of his position. The remaining members of the senate who are also members of the medical profession made speeches in favor of the bill, and senators Fitzpatrick and Thompson spoke against it.

The lobby was very much alive up to the last moment, but the galleries were packed with enthusiastic supporters of the bill, and they applauded the statements of their champions on the floor with liberality and vim. At one time a too enthusiastic supporter in the gallery shouted out a response to the remarks of an enemy of the bill, and the president had to direct the attention of the sergeant-at-arms to expel the culprit.

Dr. Cole's talk was exceedingly able, and he hurled a ponderous mass of facts and figures upon the luckless heads of the anti-vaccinationists. While his speech included a vast

FUNSTON RECEIVES ORDERS TO REPORT AT WASHINGTON

He Expected to Leave For Vancouver Barracks, to Which He Had Been Ordered at Once, But Com- mand From Washington Changes His Plans.

Denver, March 7.—Brig. Gen. Frederick Funston, commanding the department of the Colorado, U. S. A., has received unexpected orders calling him to Washington for a conference with the assistant secretary of war, Sumner. No reason was given for the summons. The general will leave today for Washington, accompanied by his personal aide, Lieut. Mitchell.

Gen. Funston has been ordered to assume command of the department of the Columbia, embracing Washington, Oregon, Idaho and the whole of Alaska, succeeding Gen. Randall, who sails for the Philippines on April 1. His orders were to reach Vancouver barracks, Washington, the department headquarters, at later than March 10, and he had arranged to leave Denver for the Pacific coast today.

Gen. Funston declined to discuss the new order, or to make any comment on the change in arrangements. It is believed, however, that the war department has in view extensive plans for the handling of troops in Alaska in connection with the impending difficulties over the Alaskan boundary question.

CHAPLAIN DIED FROM HICCUGHS

Chicago, March 7.—Exhausted by an attack of hiccoughs, which had lasted without interruption for several days, the Rev. J. F. McLeary, an army chaplain, formerly of Fort Logan but lately on the retired list, is dead at the residence of his son-in-law, Capt. Alvord, at Fort Sheridan.

The chaplain, a hale and vigorous man of 68 years, had an attack of pneumonia three weeks ago, but recovered after a stubborn fight against the disease. He was rapidly convalescing when, seven days ago, he was attacked by a spell of hiccoughs. Several doctors at the fort were consulted, but their efforts to relieve him proved futile. The patient grew weaker from day to day, and finally died from exhaustion.

Chaplain McLeary, who spent most of his service in the West, has devoted himself to writing for magazines and newspapers since his retirement, and had contributed many articles to various periodicals. Three children survive him.

POOL ROOMS ARE ORDERED CLOSED

Cincinnati, March 7.—A sweeping order was issued by Judge Hodge in the Campbell county circuit court at Newport, Ky., pertaining to pool rooms. In the order George Easton and others interested in a pool room known as the Tuxedo Garden, in that city, are directed to cease operating such places or they will be held for contempt. This is the room which John J. Ryan, of Turf investment company fame, is said to have been backing financially. Easton pleaded guilty yesterday to an indictment which charged him with "maintaining a nuisance." At that time the county prosecuting attorney suggested that Easton and his associates be fined $500. The court took the matter of sentence under advisement, and today the sweeping order to close up the Tuxedo Garden was issued.

CRUISER CHATTANOOGA LAUNCHED Handsomeness New Vessel Successfully Placed In Her Native Element at Elizabeth, N. J.

Elizabeth, N. J., March 7.—The cruiser Chattanooga was launched at 2:30 this afternoon. She slid gracefully into the water, the launching and ceremonies being most successfully carried out.

Great precaution had to be taken in launching the Chattanooga because there was only 500 feet of water in front of the ways and the cruiser is more than 350 feet long. To overcome the danger a system of checking the movement of the vessel was devised. Two great weights were secured well down in the ground on each side of the ways. As the cruiser left the ways and was waterborne a series of heavy ropes were broken, each rope sustaining a strain of twenty tons. In this way the ship gradually was stopped before she reached the opposite shore.

The Chattanooga was christened by Miss Nell Chambliss, daughter of the mayor of Chattanooga. The maids of honor were Miss Frances Bond and Miss Helen Foxon. The bottle of champagne Miss Chambliss broke on the vessel's prow was gold meshed and draped with the national colors.

A large number of invited guests of the United States Shipbuilding company attended the launching.

The Chattanooga is a sheathed steel protected cruiser. The sheathing is of Georgia pine. Her length over all is 308 feet 6 inches, and 22 on the load water line. Her extreme breadth is 44 feet, draught 15 feet 6 inches, and displacement 526 tons. There are four steel decks and a deep coffer dam is built completely around the ship in the region of the water line. The coffer dam is filled with corn pith cellulose for the protection of the ship. There is a cellular double bottom the full length of the ship and ten complete transverse water-tight bulkheads extended above the water line. The pilot house and chart house are built of bronze and the water-tight doors are operated from a central station.

The armament of the Chattanooga consists of ten 5-inch quick-firing guns in the main battery, one each being located at the ends of the vessel on the main deck and four on each broadside of the gun deck. The secondary battery consists of eight 6-pounder rapid-fire guns, two 1-pounders with four machine guns and one field gun for landing purposes. The 5-inch guns of the broadside battery of the Chattanooga are protected by nickel steel plating 1 1/2 inches in thickness. There are two powerful searchlights on the fly-bridge and the vessel is to have a wireless telegraph system. Her bunkers can carry 50 tons of coal and at ten knots her cruising radius will be over 5000 miles.

Chief Black, of the fire department, denies that he is a candidate for the position of chief engineer of the St. Paul department.

In St. Paul a number of business men have been urging the Duluth fire fighter to try for his old place at the coming biennial election of the board of fire commissioners.

Chief Black, however, says that there is not the slightest truth in the Twin City reports that he is a candidate, and even makes his position more emphatic by announcing that he would not accept the position if the St. Paul commissioners elected him.

He makes this emphatic statement more emphatic by saying that he would not return to the head of the St. Paul department if he were out of employment and the position was offered to him unconditionally.

The salary of the chief engineer of the St. Paul department is better than that of the same position here, but in other particulars underwriters say that the department is not as well equipped or disciplined as in Duluth.

Chief Black says that at one time the St. Paul department was in rather bad shape, but of recent years it has understood these defects and remedied them.

Mr. Black also says that he does not know that the present chief of the St. Paul department will have opposition at the coming biennial election, as he has proven himself a very competent man, and is politically in sympathy with the present Democratic city administration of St. Paul.

NEEDED HER HELP

MRS. BIRD SAYS SHE COULD NOT AFFORD TO BE SICK.

She Contributed to Pay Off the Mortgage on the Farm and Found a Way to Overcome Her Chief Difficulty.

Before things took a turn for the better the outlook was anything but cheerful on John Bird's farm at Oakdale, Iowa. There was a mortgage on the place, there had been sickness and death in the family and Mrs. Bird was run-down from worry and work. But in spite of her rheumatism, which made it agony for her to move her right arm, she kept at work to help raise money to lift the mortgage.

"I never expected it," says Mrs. Bird, "but Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People cured me of my rheumatism and gave me a new lease of life."

The disease had lodged in my right shoulder and it pained me so much that I could not sleep on that side. I could not get my right hand behind my back and, in fact, had to use the other one for nearly all my work. I was nervous, my heart was weak and my stomach gave me a great deal of trouble. Nothing that I took did me any good.

"Then I read of some of the wonderful cures Dr. Williams' Pink Pills had made in cases like mine and I determined to try them myself. My rheumatism had become chronic, but these pills soon helped me and after using them a number of bottles I was able to do my work."

The real cause of rheumatism is the presence of acid in the blood, which irritates the sensitive tissues that unite the joints and cover the muscles, thus causing those indescribable tortures which rheumatic sufferers endure. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People go directly to the seat of the trouble, exerting a powerful influence in purifying and enriching the blood by eliminating poisons and renewing health-giving force, thus making a potent remedy for curing this disease.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are an unfailing specific for all diseases arising from impoverished blood or shattered nerves. They cure not only rheumatism, but locomotor ataxia, vertigo, neuralgia, nervous headache, after-effects of the grip, of fevers and other acute diseases, palpitation of the heart, anæmia, pale and sallow complexion, and all forms of weakness. At all drug stores, or direct from Dr. Williams' Medicine company, Schenectady, N. Y., fifty cents per box, six boxes for two dollars and a half.

THRILLING RUN

Fire Department Has an Exciting and Dangerous Time.

Apparatus and Men Run Great Risk—Some Minor Accidents.

One of the most thrilling runs in the history of the Duluth fire department occurred this morning.

Down slippery grades that careful pedestrians could scarcely stand up on the apparatus dashed at high speed.

Twenty firemen risked their bodily welfare and lives in responding to a fire that was extinguished with less than a half bucket of water.

People that watched this exciting run were greatly wrought up, expecting every moment to see the fine apparatus overturn with a smash and probably pin the firemen underneath the wreckage.

No. 1 hook and ladder rig came dashing along West First street from headquarters. At Fifth avenue west the rear wheels of the heavy truck began to slide around and once sliding there was no way stopping it.

A most delivery wagon of Mark Brothers was standing near the McKay hotel building. The rear of the truck swung around and struck the delivery wagon with such force that it went clear over the sidewalk and overturned in a vacant lot between the hotel and Herald Building.

Meant while flying in all directions and the horse hitched to the delivery rig was turned entirely over. The apparatus continued on its swinging, sliding course, for the good and sufficient reason that it could not be stopped until it reached Third avenue west, two blocks beyond.

The meat wagon was not damaged to any great extent and the horse was only scratched.

Engine No. 1, alias "Henry Truesen," came galloping along close behind the hook and ladder apparatus. By sheer force of speed this heavy apparatus got across Fifth avenue west without sliding but the rear wheels began to slide around and once sliding there was no way stopping it.

To those watching the performance it seemed only a matter of a second or two till the engine would turn over with a crash. One of the firemen was thrown off and slid a distance of fifteen or twenty feet on his back. He picked himself up and caught the engine again as it was brought to a standstill in making the turn down Third avenue west.

The fire was in the Leithhead Drug company's building on South Fifth avenue west. The lighter apparatus from headquarters and No. 2 hall went down Fifth avenue in a very sensational manner and the scene of the fire in time to learn that their mad dash was caused by overexcitement on the part of a small boy.

The slippery condition of the streets this morning caused a wagon of the Paine & Nixon company to overturn at the corner of Fourth avenue west and Superior street. It had a load of window glass but the cases of the glass were packed so well that very little damage resulted. The wagon was pretty badly broken up.

A wood wagon at Second avenue west and First street upset on the icy grade and the wood was scattered around in great shape.

LARGEST CIRCULATION IN DULUTH.

TO SUBSCRIBERS:
It is important when desiring the address of your paper changed, to give both old and new address.

REMARKABLE PROGRESS.

Cass Lake Times: The Duluth Herald one of the newest papers of the Northwest, has recently celebrated its twentieth birthday and its occupancy of a new home. There is no necessity for wishing The Herald prosperity; the managers will look out for that, but we might wish that every paper in the state could be edited and published with as much care and ability as we find in The Herald.

A RELIABLE INDEX.

Did you notice the report of Postmaster Fisher on the business of the Duluth postoffice in the month of February? The receipts show an increase of 20 per cent over the corresponding month of last year, and February, 1902, showed an increase over the same month of the previous year. This is a very reliable indication of the growth of business in Duluth, and of the prosperity of its people. There is no better index of the state of a community in a material way than the postoffice receipts. When the receipts are advancing by leaps and bounds, when there is a continuous increase from month to month, it is positive proof that the city itself is forging ahead and steadily and rapidly growing in population and business.

The postoffice statistics are not padded. They tell the true story of the community's advancement or decline, and the 20 per cent increase which the receipts of the Duluth postoffice show for the past month, in comparison with the business transacted a year ago, speaks eloquently and emphatically of the rapid growth of the city.

THE LATE CONGRESS.

The congress which ended its official life last Wednesday performed much excellent work. It is natural that many people take exceptions to some things that were done and some that were omitted. There were several instances of important and much-needed legislation failing to pass. The opponents of the Republican party which was in control of both branches of congress and therefore fully responsible for what happened, will condemn the work of the Fifty-seventh congress, and even some of its party friends will criticize it, but it should be remembered that no congress which has ever sat in this country has pleased everybody. The congress which has just passed out of existence would have been a most remarkable body had it accomplished the feat of satisfying the expectations of every person.

It is recalled that the extra session of the Thirty-seventh congress, which was called by Lincoln to meet on July 4, 1861, and which passed more legislation of vital importance to the United States in its thirty-three days of existence than did any other of the country's national legislatures except the one which met at the outset in the first term of President Washington, did not meet the approval of all the friends of the government. Nor did the one which served through the first two years of the first president. The Lincoln congress referred to, in the extra session and in the regular sessions which followed, passed the legislation by which the government was saved. The other congress, the earliest under the constitution, created the machinery under which, with some slight variations, the government has been run to this day. Yet even those congresses were charged with some serious sins of commission and omission. It would be strange if similar accusations were not made in these days.

The Fifty-seventh congress did many things of much advantage to the country. It passed an act for the construction of an isthmian canal, thus bringing to practical realization a half-century's aspiration of the people of the United States. It abolished the war taxes levied in 1797 for the support of the government during the Spanish war. The Chinese exclusion law was extended by it, and modified to meet some requirements which had not presented themselves when the law was previously dealt with by congress. It passed several acts calculated to curb the pernicious activity of the trusts. A law for needed army reform, which is designed to strengthen the military service at points where strengthening was needed, was put upon the statute book. The navy received intelligent attention. Under a law of this congress a department of commerce and labor was put in operation. A national irrigation act, dictated by the trans-Mississippi region, was passed, which will add immensely to the productive capabilities of the states and territories between the great river and the Pacific, and help to divert to that part of the country the immense stream of Americans which is now flowing across the border into Canada.

There were several measures before this congress which should have been enacted, but failed at the last moment, owing to a policy of obstruction pursued by certain senators, but taking its record as a whole, it has a long score to its credit.

A New York man committed suicide because the attending physician told him he had Bright's disease. The post-mortem showed the doctor was wrong, but that does not help the victim.

SEMITEETOTALISM.

A lively discussion is proceeding in temperance and business circles on both sides of the Atlantic over the "Semiteetotalism," which has been formed in Great Britain, with Lord Roberts as its president. The semiteetotalers are each pledged "Never to take intoxicating drinks, except at midday and evening meals." Teetotalers look with much disfavor upon such a pledge. Habitual drinkers ridicule the movement, believing that the former governors of North and South Carolina had the right idea on the subject. The man who "Can drink and leave it alone, sir," condescends to nod his head approvingly when asked his opinion of the plan.

It is probable that, as a result of his varied experience in army circles, Lord Roberts reached the conclusion that this rule of "no drinks during business hours" was necessary. He wanted soldiers to be sober when on duty. Medical men assert that over and over again it has been demonstrated beyond question that regiments supplied with alcoholic liquors are less capable of long marches and suffer more from fatigue than others to which no alcohol is issued. Kraepelin has shown this to hold good for forms of work in which more mental capacity is required than the marching of soldiers. Tests performed by this eminent chemist all show among drinking men a lessened capacity for mental work and a smaller ability to keep the attention directed to one object.

Perhaps Lord Roberts reached the conclusion that if moderation in drinking was needed in army circles, it was equally desirable in business and social life. At any rate the new movement is receiving much encouragement, and as the great battle everywhere is to prevent the abuse of liquor, Lord Roberts' plan is a step in the right direction.

Nothing is so important in business life as a clear head. Successful business men will not tolerate drinking by their employees. Even small doses of liquor, Kraepelin found by experiment, impaired the physical powers so that "the average efficiency was not regained until from twelve to twenty-four hours had elapsed after the alcohol had been taken." "If this proves to be true," he says, "in the case of persons who have acquired a tolerance for alcohol, many individuals are never completely normal, their mental powers never recovering entirely from one dose of alcohol before the next is taken." A clouded brain cannot do safe work. Even semiteetotalism, therefore, is full of danger. It is commendable not to drink to excess or only between meals, but wiser and better not to drink stimulants at any time.

AN IMMENSE PILE.

The Iron Trade Review makes an interesting comparison with the dimensions of well-known structures of the size of the iron ore pile mined in the Lake Superior region last year. The total shipments were 27,571,210 gross tons, or approximately 275,712,210 cubic feet. The height of the Washington monument is 555 feet, and the length of Westminster Palace is 855 feet. If we imagine a structure as high as the monument, as long as the palace and 561 feet wide, we would have a building containing the number of cubic feet in the Lake Superior ore pile of 1902 before it was mined, if it had all been in one place. The hole made in the ground by the year's mining would be 275 feet deep, 1000 feet wide and 1000 feet long. Into this hole, fifty-three buildings of the size of the Frick building in Pittsburgh could be placed.

THE RESOURCES OF ALASKA.

It is estimated that there is room and occupation for 100,000 people in Alaska, and that the time will come when that number will be living in that great Northwestern possession. Alaska is almost half larger than the thirteen original American colonies, very nearly twice the size of California, Oregon and Washington, as large as Great Britain, Denmark, Sweden, Norway and German empire and with a better climate and greater natural resources than an equal area of Northern Europe supporting 100,000,000 inhabitants. This land, so rich, so fertile, has a seacoast of 2,300 miles everywhere accessible. The Yukon, the fourth largest river in the world, navigable for more than 2000 miles above its mouth, and running in a great semi-circle from Southeastern to Northwestern Alaska, forms a natural highway. All this was known years ago, but it was not known, writes Harrington Emerson in Engineering Magazine, that the interior contained 100,000 square miles of farming lands and almost limitless areas of the richest mineral lands in the world. It is in this unobdured country that thousands of miles of railroad must be built, that great areas will open for settlement, absorbing and keeping busy 2,000,000 workers as fast as they choose to go. It is, however, not the agricultural resources that will immediately attract the largest influx of population and capital. About 140 miles from Valdez in the Chitina valley are very great copper deposits, which during the last season have been visited by many experts. Some of the ores run 85 per cent copper, and there are many thousand tons in sight assaying 16 per cent. A great mountain slide has occurred in this region, revealing, it is claimed, as much as 400,000 tons of high-grade copper ores. Valdez bay and the low pass north of it are the American gateways to the Yukon valley, and already a railroad has been surveyed and partially graded to the interior, for the copper, though it can be quarried like the iron ores of Lake Superior, without a railroad will remain worthless. The railroad itself is assured an unlimited tonnage. It is not too much to expect that improvement in transportation facilities alone will convert Central Alaska into as densely populated and prosperous a region as Colorado, as the Black Hills of South Dakota, as the rich mining region of British Columbia.

The Seward peninsula also offers great inducements to mining enterprises as the success of Nome has amply demonstrated, and there are many other equally desirable localities. Alaska needs 10,000 miles of railroad, 20,000 miles of wagon roads and telephone lines, and can, as fast as transportation is available, give homes and employment to 100,000,000. The settling of the Alaska boundary question will give added impetus to settlement in that country, and it will not be many years before its productions of minerals will stirle the world.

"The Bum Husbands' club" is a new social organization in Philadelphia, and its motto is: "There are no bad husbands—some are better than others." To this motto every well-regulated husband will subscribe.

A NEW COMPLICATION.

The pathway of the Cuban treaty, from its inception to the present time, has been a hard one and filled with obstacles of varied natures, that thus far prevented it from reaching its goal. Just as the outlook brightened and the prospects of its passage by the senate in special session seemed good, a new complication arises which may prove the most serious of all. It is now claimed by the state department that if the treaty is ratified in its present form it will have the effect of abrogating every treaty with other nations which there is the unmodified most-favored-nation clause.

The whole mischief has been wrought by the amendment to the treaty as agreed to at Havana. This states that for five years after the ratification of the convention, no rate on sugar and tobacco lower than fixed by the Dingley tariff act shall be granted to any other nation. It is explained that if the treaty were to be ratified and enforced in that shape, it would have the effect of abrogating every treaty we now have in which there is an unmodified clause conferring the most favored nation privileges. Were it not for this amendment, the treaty would be open to the objection which has already been raised; to-wit: that the same reductions given to Cuba must be given to other countries now entitled to the rights of the most favored nation clause. A precedent for this was established in 1899, when Switzerland demanded the admission of her products under the same advantageous terms that were that year granted to certain goods from France. The United States and Switzerland were parties to a convention containing the most favored nation clause. Under Section 3 of the Dingley act, an agreement with France was made by which we admitted wines, argols, works of art, spirits and a few other products at reduced rates, in return for similar concessions on certain specified manufactures from the United States. As soon as this agreement was made public, Switzerland demanded the same concessions for all the exports of her domain covered in the arrangement with France. As the United States government had pledged itself to give to Switzerland all the trade privileges extended to the most favored nation, there was nothing to do but admit her goods on the same ground with those of France, although we got nothing in return. "Rather than maintain the unequal bargain," the United States denounced its treaty with Switzerland, which was abrogated at the end of the usual twelve months of notice.

It is now claimed that the plain, straightforward Cuban treaty would carry the same advantages to all countries with whom we have the most favored nation treaties. But to further complicate the situation an amendment has been made, specifically stating that no reduction in the duty on sugar and tobacco shall be given to "any other nation." Many of the treaties of the United States with other countries contain a modified favored nation clause, but it is claimed that those which do not would be abrogated by the Cuban treaty as framed. This condition is, of course, unfortunate, especially in the light of present relations with certain foreign countries, such as Switzerland and Russia, which are hostile now toward the United States in the matter of tariffs. While this feature of the Cuban treaty may cause additional negotiation, there is not much doubt that the difficulty can and will be overcome in some way.

PROHIBITION IN MAINE.

Judging from the vote in the Maine house of representatives yesterday on a bill providing for the submission of the prohibition law to the voters, the people of the Pine Tree state are not ready to forsake the teachings of Neal Dow, which they have followed for fifty years. The bill was emphatically killed by a vote of 94 to 46, and the matter is probably ended for two years more, at least. There has been a movement in that state of late to make the law so obnoxious, by a rigid enforcement, that the people would rebel against it, but thus far it has accomplished no results.

When the supreme court adjourned its last session at Bangor a short time ago after imposing fines on Bangor liquor dealers to the amount of over $28,000, the judge who presided served notice "that those who persist in remaining in the business in the future may expect to receive in addition to the usual fine, a jail sentence." He made this statement, thinking it right that those who are engaged in the liquor business in Penobscot county should have notice of what to expect, the same as have the dealers in other counties. This movement will strike the Bangor people hard. For years the "Bangor plan" has been tolerated, and even approved by the majority of the people of that city. The arrangement has been perfectly satisfactory for a long period and the people would doubtless prefer to continue it. The prohibitory law was interpreted according to public sentiment rather than to the letter. As the Boston Transcript says: "It is well understood by the broader citizenship of Bangor that as long as the present system is maintained, so long will the social organism of the city remain more or less demoralized. Either the 'Bangor plan' will be resumed by degrees in all its riotous expression, or else the traffic will be driven to cover with all the degrading incidents involved in such a case. Perhaps the liquor dealers who have so suddenly come to grief do not deserve much sympathy, yet whenever public sentiment is stronger than law, men will bank upon it, and aside from ethical considerations are measurably justified in so doing. A high license law would transform Bangor from one of the most notorious 'rum' cities in New England to a well-regulated and comparatively temperate municipality. These sporadic and fitful spasms or convulsions of virtue do not effect a cure of this deeply-rooted evil. They merely advertise the shame of the state."

A man from the Smoky City was introduced to Congressman Littlefield of Maine in Washington. "I spoke in Pittsburgh last fall," murmured the congressman. "Yes," replied the Pittsburgher. "I ran for office there and was beaten by only 7000." "Heavens!" exclaimed Littlefield, "I am not usually so fatal as that. I spoke out in Omaha in 1900 for Dave Mercer and they didn't beat him until 1902."

Apostle Smoot has only one wife, but he has six children. That will commend him to the administration.

As warm weather approaches, there is less talk about the fuel question.

Detroit Free Press: Count Aftereyne—Ah, dear heart, I will be just as devoted after our marriage as I was before. Minnie Millions—You'll have to be, Papa is going to put all the money in my name.

Brooklyn Life: The Bride—Oh, Jack! I've delighted in this matter for four months. He is actually an eloping couple. The Groom—You don't regret it, do you, dear?

The Bride—Oh, no. But I do wish we could have eloped with father's consent.

Chicago News: Smith—Oh Skinner, I don't mind your check for four figures if she married according to his wishes. And did she get it? Phil—Sure. The check called for $11.11.

Philadelphia Press: I don't understand how Miss Milly can see anything that is so beautiful. Her husband is a "jerked fool." That's so, yet the chances are 10 to 1 that he will be a case of a fool and her money soon married.

Chicago News: He was on his knees. I can't find words to tell you of my love for you. I heard and I looked. "Don't try to tell it in words," she advised. Directly thereafter she was on his knees and everything was left to the imagination except the kisses.

Down Topics: Von Blumer—Where's my wife? Dimpleton—She's in the next room talking to her maid about her clothes. Von Blumer—Well, then, suppose we go and spend the evening somewhere together.

Through Peace to Light. I do not ask, O Lord, that life may be a pleasant road. I do not ask that Thou wouldst take from me the Auglit of its load.

I do not ask that flowers should always spring from my feet; I know too well the poison and the sting Of things too sweet.

For one thing only, Lord, dear Lord, I pray—Lead me aright. Though strength should falter and though heart should fail, lead me through Peace to Light.

I do not ask, O Lord, that Thou shouldst shed Full radiance here; Give but a ray of peace that I may tread Without a fear.

I do not ask my cross to understand, My way to see; Be Thou my guide, my feet to feel Thy hand And follow Thee.

Lead Simple Lives. Milwaukee Journal: Greed for gold is a conspicuous evil of our time and country. We want money to burn; wealth to squander. It appears as if some men, and women, too, would rather live by the sword than by the plow and the hoe.

Rockefeller's Standard Roll. Springfield Republican: John D. Rockefeller is credited with owning $5,000,000 of value of Standard Oil stock which, at the present market value, is worth $25,000,000. He must be quite as rich as a man as Andrew Carnegie, and no one else stands in the same class with them, unless it be J. P. Morgan, whose wealth not even the guessers of the sensational press venture to estimate.

Living Up to the Treaty. Indianapolis Journal: The conclusion of an agreement with Cuba by which the United States acquires a naval station and a coaling station at eligible points on that island is a matter of considerable importance. It commits the Cuban government to carrying out the Platt amendment to its constitution and gives the United States a foothold on the island that will add materially to our naval control of West Indian waters.

A Discredited Report. Chicago Record-Herald: There is no truth in the rumor that no woman weighing less than 160 pounds is eligible for the presidency of the Daughters of the American Revolution. The absurd story was probably started by somebody who had been looking at pictures of some of the candidates.

No Escape From Publicity. Baltimore American: No more can brain-fagged men and women take a sea trip for perfect rest. Wireless telegraphy and such a thing as the electric shark has brought to naught the ocean's shore between continents. The world today is ruled by the little great things.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"I was out at New Duluth yesterday," said A. F. McManis, of Minneapolis, a well known traveling man in this section, who is at the Spaulding hotel. "I was very much surprised to see the growth in the settlement, as I hadn't been there for a long time; but far more to see the large unoccupied building there. It formerly belonged to the Atlas Iron company and is large enough to accommodate a big manufacturing business, and besides is on the railroad tracks. "You don't find any buildings like that vacant in the East, and is seldom that I have seen one vacant even in the West. The home of the 'bonus' manufacturing concern, in a long time. A big building like that on a railroad track would be snapped up in a holy minute in most cities. "Look at down in Minneapolis, for instance. Large wholesale houses are building big buildings, and they can't get to the railroad tracks. That means some of the wholesalers have to cart their wares and goods from the warehouse to the tracks. But that is not the worst of it. Sometimes they store the goods in warehouses and in case a carload lot of the same consignment is ordered by a dealer the next day, there is a great deal of loading and unloading, drayage and handling, which has to come from somewhere, and in these days of active competition it must come from the wholesaler."

C. C. McCarthy, of Grand Rapids, is in Duluth on business and is stopping at the St. Louis hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Warlick are registered at the Spaulding hotel.

It was shortly after midnight and the lobby was quieting down. The night clerk was dozing.

The elevator bell rang violently, and the sleepy boy yanked a lever and it shot up.

When the lift returned to the ground floor, and the grating door slipped open, there stepped out a man in a yellow and red uniform, who looked a little worried. He was dressed in the height of fashion, and he looked a little better, but it only reached his clavicle on one end and his ankles on the other.

One of these models, full-skirted frock coats and baggy trousers, without the aid of shoes, stockings, shirt or collar, is not to attract attention. It did.

The eccentric person went to the register on the desk and began studying it assiduously. His eyes followed his finger down the row of names, and he looked up and then he asked the night clerk, "Is Mr. Bell, of Chicago, registered here?"

"No such person here," said the polite clerk. "Are you very sure, d— sure?" asked the interrogator, eyeing the clerk suspiciously.

"He is not." "Well, by George," said the man with a deep sigh, "I was lying awake in bed, and I heard Mr. Bell and his partner (that's the firm's work) and I heard him in the next room. I heard him say that I was drinking again and he'd have to settle with me."

"I know it was his voice. It's rather peculiar, is it not?" "The clerk looked a closer look at his man and found the tell-tale blankness in his eye.

"No, there's no one here by that name, and there hasn't been for a long time." "But I heard him," said the man, and he looked with his back on the desk.

"Well, that's peculiar," said the clerk. "But I heard him say that I was coming home one morning in Chicago last fall, and when I got to the hotel, I found him in the next room. I heard him say that I was drinking again and he'd have to settle with me."

DUN'S WEEKLY

TRADE REVIEW

Improvement In Freight Movement Makes Situation More Favorable.

New York, March 7.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: Further improvements in the movement of freight and fuel makes the general situation more favorable, although shippers are still constantly complaining and pig iron factories are not able to run steadily. Numerous labor struggles also interrupt manufacturing, yet mills and shops are producing freely as a rule. Jobbers and wholesalers are busy, while spring retail trade has opened very well in many lines, notably wearing apparel. Forwards for building operations show gains over last year's figures, giving additional strength to lumber and other materials. Prices of commodities scarcely altered in the aggregate during February. Dun's index number being $101.067 on March 1 against $100.920 on the previous day. Foreign trade continues very heavy.

Conditions in the iron and steel industry need no other elucidation than the plans announced by the United States Steel corporation. The past week has brought out a large quantity of new orders as is customary at this season. Among the leading features were liberal purchases of pipes, tubes, agricultural implements, structural shapes and railway equipment. Tonnage of steel rails was very good particularly for trolley lines. Quotations are firmly held in all departments of this industry and in several instances the week past brought a higher level. Thinplates were advanced $4 a ton. Billets, bars and pig iron are still in great demand and further imports have been arranged. This business would be still heavier but for the strength of foreign markets.

Spinners are growing very cautious in regards to shipping contracts, calling for distant deliveries of cotton goods, knowing the extreme uncertainties as to what the raw material will cost. Even on present stocks there is an upward tendency in quotations.

While new business at first hands is only fair, there is much activity in jobbing lines. Export trade is slow. Print cloths are higher. Fine cotton fabrics for the spring of 1904 are opened, and a limited number of business has been done. Dealings are small in woolsens and worsteds, but mills are fully occupied. The spring clothing trade is satisfactory, especially in staple lines. New fancy lines of worsted goods are not sold freely and opening prices are maintained with difficulty. A firmer tone is rooted in the dress goods trade. Footwear has lost nothing in strength, but somewhat in activity, as buyers are placing orders voraciously. A large volume of contracts could be taken at old prices.

Failures this week numbered 229 in the United States against 176 last year, and 16 in Canada compared with 17 a year ago.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

A telephone message from Sister Bay says three of the fishermen were brought from Washington Island by the first stage across yesterday afternoon. All the missing men are safe. The stage has started back for the remainder.

Edward Slatery, a farmer, shot and killed H. W. Shaw, a stockman, at O'Neill, Nev., Friday, while the latter was on his way to town. Slatery surrendered and was released on bail. An old feud caused the tragedy.

Miss Ella Lyde, aged 22, a telephone operator, was suffocated Friday evening in a street car during the rush hours between 5 and 7 o'clock. She was forced to stand because of the crush and after riding seven or eight blocks fainted. After being carried into a nearby drug store, she expired in a few minutes.

About 550 employees of Tiffany's Glass and Decorating company are on strike because their daily supply of beer has been cut off by the firm. The men say the water is unfit to drink.

Vice-President Hannaford of Northern Pacific Is Here.

Excursion Rates For Home-seekers Again Effective
March 16.

Second Vice-President J. M. Hannaford of St. Paul, who is also in charge of the traffic of the Northern Pacific railroad, was in town today looking over things in company of H. E. Still, assistant general freight agent.

Mr. Hannaford and Mr. Still spent the morning talking over affairs with General Agent Blanche of this city, and this afternoon visited the dock at Rice's point and the three took lunch at the Commercial club at noon.

"I am just up here looking over the business in Duluth," said Mr. Hannaford. "There is nothing especially that brings me here beyond the fact that I want to keep in touch with the department I have control of."

"We are able to take care of the business we are receiving now, though there is a great shortage of cars. We handle the local business, but we are not shipping off the road much. We are a little short of cars, all right. The other roads have ours and we can't get them back."

"I do not think the situation is easing up as yet. The shortage remains, and I have no idea when the equipment will be sufficient to handle the business for this season."

Change In Time.

E. P. Bennett, who has been in the railroad business for several years in Duluth, and is at present the Duluth agent for the Empire East Freight line, has resigned.

Mr. Bennett will take a position with the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road as station agent at Grace Falls, Minn., and will leave in a short time for that city.

HOMESEEKERS' EXCURSIONS
Rates Will Again Be Effective
On March 16.

The homeseekers' excursions, which provide a $2 round trip to the Pacific coast, and which have not been in effect since last October on the Northern Pacific, will be available to persons desiring to make the trip after March 16. Circulars reached City Passenger Agent McPherson this morning. The dates of the running of the excursion trains are March 17, April 7 and 21, May 5 and 19, and June 2 and 16. The limit on the tickets is twenty-one days.

MAKES A CHANGE.
The Milwaukee road will make a change in time between St. Paul and Chicago, and the mail south will leave St. Paul at 11 o'clock in the evening instead of three hours earlier.

This change is made to connect with the Great Northern's fast train due at 10:30 in the evening, and will cut off twelve hours in the time of the Pacific mail to the East. The train will arrive in Chicago at 11:55 in the morning, and will connect with the trains leaving for the East shortly after noon. The change takes place tomorrow night. A new train will leave at 6:50 for Chicago and Milwaukee, carrying passengers.

John Pantton Talks of
Duluth's Standing.

John Pantton returned today after a six-weeks' absence from the Eastern markets where he is assisted by ten department managers, and George Sloan and E. M. Devine, of the New York and Paris offices of the Pantton & White company, he selected the spring and summer stocks for the greater Glass Block. In commenting on his trip Mr. Pantton said the past six weeks had been hard ones for him as the growth in business and the many new departments made the buying for the Glass Block a much harder task than in former years, and it is particularly so now that wholesalers are so rushed and merchandise scarce.

"We were fortunate, though, and our stocks at the opening of the season will be a revelation to the Duluth public," says Mr. Pantton. "The retail business in the East has been slow this winter for which the coal strike, I think, is largely responsible. In some towns and cities in Pennsylvania trade has been practically paralyzed. Everything promises a very active and busy season in the West, and Duluth will get a very large share of the prosperity, and to me it looks like we will have a very good year."

"There is my little talk of politics, as the conservative policy of President Roosevelt has been very busy to the business interests, and you hear no complaint except from the stock jobbers of Wall street."

Returning with Mr. Pantton were D. F. McDonald, George T. Miller, Frank Price, J. W. Scott and Mrs. H. Engels.

OFFICIALS TO NAME

Mayor Has Several Appointments to Make
In Near Future.

Half Dozen Nominations
May Go In Next Week.

Annual appointments by the mayor this year are not disturbing the political serenity of the city hall officers, as in former years.

About the only appointments over which there seem to be any question are on the board of public works and board of park commissioners.

Mayor Huc says he has not indicated his selections—in fact, has stoutly refused to do so under the strongest pressure that has been brought to bear by large delegations of interested citizens.

As commissioners of public works he will undoubtedly reappoint W. A. Holgate and probably select Alex. Kennedy as the successor of the late Charles W. Wilson. In making the latter appointment he will also make about seventeen appointments.

There has been a lively agitation for a Lakeside member of the board of park commissioners. The indications are that this request from Lakeside will not be granted at this time, and that Luther Mendenhall will be reappointed.

It is understood that the mayor is anxious to have Mr. Mendenhall retain the position on account of business ability shown on the municipal conference committee since that advisory board of city officers was established.

The park authorities claim that parks in Lakeside are given as much consideration as parks elsewhere.

The mayor has four other appointments to make next week, but in each instance he will probably name the present incumbents. They are:

Arthur A. Fidler, civil service commissioner.

James McDowell, board of fire commissioners.

S. F. Snively, board of water and light commissioners.

The mayor is very busy on his annual message, which will be ready for the council on Monday evening.

The first buds of spring—the styles and finishes are prettier than any display you have ever seen—and the prices so reasonable. Never before have Duluth residents had such an opportunity to see such swell new furniture. If this was only an ordinary display we wouldn't be so anxious to have everyone see our new goods and compare our prices with what others have to offer.

AN OPPORTUNITY

of a life time. How often do you hear people say, "I could have bought this if only I had such a chance," meaning a few dollars, for property of immense value. Some man did it, and it is counting his wealth by tens and hundreds of thousands. He bought a $20 cash and $5 a month, without interest, for fifty-four months. He bought five acres of land near Woodland. There is no better land for market garden purposes in St. Louis county, is comparatively level and free from rock and has a nice spring bubbling through it. Can be cleared and made ready for cultivation at a very small expense. We give you a home, where you can live in ease and comfort. Let us show you this land.

THE SUMMER GIRL; SUMMER GOWNS

The Imported Dresses Bear No Hint of Phinness
--The Newer the Gown the Fluffier It Is.

New York, March 5.—It was Mrs. Arthur Paget, American woman and leader of the king's set, who gave the English dressmakers their first lesson in economy.

"You take your material," she is reported to have said to her tailor, "and you treat it too extravagantly. You make the entire gown out of it. And when it is done it is a miracle of cost."

"The French modistes, on the other hand, understand how to make their materials go a long way. They use a little of the expensive goods, enough to give tone to the gown, then they fill in, so to speak, with a cheaper grade. It is easy enough when you understand how it is done."

Mrs. Paget certainly had no need of stint, for she had millions to spend on dress, but with American thrift, descended from the Holland ideas of economy, she wanted to get the best she could for the money.

The French modistes afford a lesson in dressmaking and a sermon in economy at the same time. Their gowns are an evolution from the old styles into the new, and a protest against extravagance in any form.

Take a dress just made by the Baroness von Andor, sister of Mrs. Chauncey M. Depew, and note how charmingly it combines taste and economy. Surely any husband's wife could have as pretty a gown, though the husband's wife might want to use materials not quite so choice. Yet the style would bear repeating in cheap as well as the same materials.

The front breadth of the skirt is in a dotted stuff, very thin and much resembling the new summer lawn. At the sides the gown is made of lousine lawn, with flowers scattered through the goods. The figured material forms the sides and back, leaving only the front breadth plain.

Around the foot there is one of those marvelous French touches, all cascades, four domes deep, each lousine headed and edged with a little flounce of its own. The whole is very fluffy, and it lies upon the floor, making a very billow of foamy stuff.

So far there is nothing expensive and nothing that could not be done by the average purse. Neither is the great swirling trimming of lace an expensive affair, though it comes down the front of the skirt, making a big lace panel at each side of the front breadth.

The waist is a very simple affair, with a Marie Antoinette flounce of dotted mull, which is attached to the bodice and edged with narrow bands of black velvet.

The French gown must have its touch of black, for without black it is nothing. Therefore there are bands of black velvet falling downward from the waist line and trimming the bodice with stripes of black velvet as well as the sleeves.

The light lawn, even of the washable variety, does not wear well in this way, and one need not like them, but one can trust to the nice taffeta underskirt and the nice taffeta corset cover to supply the lining.

The most charming lawn petticoats and corset covers can be purchased for wear under such lawn gowns as these. And the woman who goes in for the chables, the dimities, the muslins, the mulls and the crisp effects can be pardoned a little extravagance in the matter of purchasing her underwear in pretty quantities.

It was Mrs. Whitehead Reid who first started the becoming vogue for elbow ruffles. But when you look at Mrs. Reid's ruffles you will appreciate that there are ruffles and ruffles. Here are not the thin variety that leave the arm bare, but they are the light, though thick ruffles. A finger and a half wide, one ruffle coming down even with the other in the lower layers, at least five deep, each ruffle edged with black velvet, that is the way the best sleeve ruffles are made. They can be fashioned of silvered chiffon and can be made detachable from the sleeve, which is a very nice form for them.

It may be that the plain summer gown will come in later, but the imported dresses bear no hint of it now, and the newer the gown the fluffier it is. The very light materials, crisp, many ruffled, much trimmed with expensive lace, make a mass of ruffles and whittings, are apparently to be the vogue for a long time to come.

Very charming are the white and gray gowns. Indeed, there is nothing that gives the impression of silver immortality as thoroughly as do gray and white used together. The best grays are the oyster grays and the silvery hues and the gray which one associates with Irish poplin.

If the gown be of the durable stock it can be a mixture of gray brillant and white linen, and the French certainly do make up some delightful dresses out of these two inexpensive materials.

A gown made for a very dressy New York woman, and never yet displayed to the public, has a many gored skirt, fitted to the hips with the upper half of the skirt made in Irish gray brillant. This lustrous cloth, hugging the hips and fitting the figure to a nicety, is dressed in its tone and of a sort that gives distinction to its wearer.

There is a legend that brillant is one of those materials that can be depended upon to "wash like cotton." But certainly one would hesitate to put an elegantly made creation in gray brillant and white linen, through the tubbing process. There is only one thing to do, and that is outlined by a society girl, who says: "I wear my summer dresses until they are stiff with sand and dirt, and then I send them to the cleaner."

And this seems the only thing to be done. The summer parasol, later, will come in with all its lummary, but now it is rather plain. It is more upon the umbrella order and suited to the April shower, which comes just the same, whether it brings its May flowers or not.

The shower umbrella, frail though it may look, is warranted to stand a little wetting, and one can depend upon it to protect the Easter hat, if not more.

They take white umbrellas and stripe them with black ribbon to give the mangle umbrella.

And here again, is a chance for the economical woman to have a French umbrella. Let her buy a silk umbrella in pale gray or in white. Then let her buy a little lace of the sort through which narrow black velvet can be run top and bottom. This lace is used to border the umbrella in two rows. The umbrella is now completely trimmed for the spring months. Later the insertion can be taken off and several deep ruffles of chiffon can be put on with a chiffon rosette at the ferule and a chiffon bow on the handle.

Every effort is made each spring to keep the parasol from becoming fluff. But the fluff parasol is so pretty with its rows of chiffon and its rows of lace that women will buy it, and if they can not get it ready made you will find them making it up for themselves. Even the striped parasol does not fail. The striped parasol is a great thing, for the umbrella that is all applique. The summer sun always plays most becomingly upon the striped sunshade.

A put-colored muslin, too, inexpensive to be counted among the nice dresses of the summer, was dotted with very small dots of black, cut one by one, out of silk muslin. The dotting of the goods would have been an endless task but for the fact that the gown was made up first and the dots put in afterward. It is questionable, though, if results just as good could not have been obtained from buying a ready-made gown of better grade.

The owner of the dotted gown then bought two yards of wide lace insertion, a mass of ferns in bunches and acorn leaves. These she cut out as whole as possible and applied to the front of the gown in a way to make two rows of flowers down the front.

The bunches were so big that only three could be used at each side of the front. Then a row of them went around the head of the flounce, and the smaller bits of lace, the left-overs, were used to make a little trimming for the flounce. The waist with its vest of shirred chiffon was outlined in the same manner.

In dressing one's self, black knots are very useful to outline a yoke, to trim an elbow sleeve, to dot the head of a flounce, to make little knots around the belt and the stock, and even to make panels for the skirt. The French, who are very clever with these little trimmings, make a point of providing black knots for every gown, and in the making of them they show great ingenuity. No two sets are ever quite alike.

Should you want a specially smart summer gown for nice wear, there is one that is copied from an imported model, but is well within the means of any woman with the time to spare for its making.

The material is a deep leaf green linen as heavy as possible, and, if preferred, one can use denim, or even the heavy dark green canvass. But the goods should not be of the transparent kind.

The next step is the making of the dress, and this can be accomplished by using plain linen. Let the skirt be of seven length and let there be four tucks down the middle of the front.

The waist can be one of the ever-popular little bolero waists, with Eton suggestions. It should have two wide tucks each side of the front. The sleeves grow straight below the elbow and end in a wide flare cuff.

Now comes the artistic part of the gown. With a sharp scissors the dressmaker must cut out little circles of chamrock-green linen and she must applique them in groups of three to the entire gown. They need not be very near together, but the little groups of shamrock with the trifoliate must dot the gown. The last step is the embroidering in light green cotton thread of a long, graceful stem to each bunch. The embroidery must also go around the shamrocks.

There are printed and stamped materials that can be used for this same purpose. But in this summer of hand-made goods one hesitates to mention the printed stuffs.

Yet the printed goods are lovely. And not only lovely, but very realistic. For the life of you, it is impossible to tell,

MADE FOR A WEDDING.

Costume of pale blue silk, with panels and bands of silk mousseline to match, having applications of white lace, held down by embroidery in pale colorings of blue, pink and green. The silk is not cut away under the embroidery, which is finished with narrow folds of the silk. Undersleeves of blue mousseline. Dress hat of blue tulle, white lace and pale pink roses; underlining of jet pendants.

at a distance of three feet, whether a gown is hand-embroidered or is one of those delightful new printed stuffs, done so drolly that they show the very stitch of the embroidery which they imitate.

The secret of a French gown is its finish. A French dressmaker does not say to herself: "This is a 5-cent material. Therefore, I will make it up in 5-cent fashion."

But she says: "This material is very cheap. Therefore, I will put all my time and all my skill into it, and I will make it so beautiful that no one will care how cheap she was wearing a real live creation."

And succeed she does, wonderfully well; for it is no unusual thing to see a gown which retails here on bargain days for a few cents made up in such fine fashion that the gown would bring $40 any day in a Fifth avenue window, even without a yard of lace upon it.

The rain-drop silks, with the rain drops distributed in little clusters, or put on in wide bands, are much seen, and they make up exquisitely. They need no other trimming than their own goods. And a little modest shirring, a deal of tucking, or a band of two of the same goods, is about all you can ask for them.

It is always effective, however, to add an edge of a contrasting color, and to cut these flowers out of the lace, one can border the flounce of a black and white raindrop silk with a band of strawberry-colored taffeta and, of course, the blouse will have both sides of its front edged with the taffeta, as will be the deep sailor collar.

How very fashionable it is going to be to have one's umbrella mirror the trimming upon one's gown. And how like sixty it is going to cost to have an umbrella with each dress, trimmed to match the dress. It will be enough to drive the women to the insane asylum and the men to the poorhouse, but it must be done, for the French ladies declare that it is to be the proper caper.

The directoire cuff in all its guises is lovely, and so is its cousin, the directoire cuff. One has a beautifully mediæval feeling cut in a seeded silk (an ashes of roses shade, with a smart gauntlet cuff upon one's elbow and a directoire coat upon one's back. It need not be a rigid directoire to come under that name, for the greatest latitude is allowed.

The duchess of Manchester, fresh from baronial halls, wears a directoire in an old yellow brown. It is lined with pink satin and its cuffs are pink satin turned back in gamutlet style and embroidered in black and brown. This coat has its velvet belt with metallic clasp. And it has great metal buttons down the front as big as oysters; each button in a bed of velvet.

With this coat her gown wears a stunning brown cloth skirt, and big brown hat with pink plumes that wave widely in the most thorough style.

The summer laces are to be Irish lace, which is still enjoying its revival and which is used for everything and remembrance, which is largely used for over-dresses; also yak lace, which is a great favorite, as a revival of an old lace, and Valenciennes, which is just the thing for evening. Then there will

THE NEW SHAPE TURBAN.

Trim and top, which is in prague form, made of plaited black tulle and ruffled horsehair braid in alternate rows. Undertrim of black lace over white tulle. Jet ornament holds tulle rosette, with aigrette above. Large flat rosettes of plaited ribbon on each side, with jet ornament in center.

Confide in a Woman

Women may write about their ills to Mrs. Pinkham, and avoid the questioning of a male physician. They can tell their story without reservation to her; she never breaks a confidence, and her advice is the best in the world.

The questions asked of a woman by a male physician are embarrassing, and often revolting to a sensitive nature. In consequence the whole truth is not told; this makes it difficult for female troubles to be successfully treated even by the best physicians, and is the reason so many women grow worse rather than better. A woman understands a woman better than a man, — there are symptoms which sick women have that a man cannot understand, simply because he is a man, but the whole truth may be told to Mrs. Pinkham, and her vast experience enables her to give advice which leads to a cure.

All women who suffer should secure Mrs. Pinkham's advice; it costs nothing but a letter addressed to her at Lynn, Mass. Female troubles are real troubles, and must be treated understandingly. For a quarter of a century Mrs. Pinkham's advice and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound have been helping women to get strong and well, and her great file of letters prove that more than a million women have been restored to health and strength by her advice and her medicine when all other means have failed.

When you go to a druggist for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, do not let him persuade you to try something which he says is just as good; there is nothing just as good, because Mrs. Pinkham's medicine holds the record for the largest number of cures of any female medicine in the world.

be a great deal of fillet lace worn, and in the net laces there can be mentioned the darned laces, which are creeping so into favor. The Russian lace and the Italian lace differ widely, will also be seen, and the lace expensive of the point de Paris laces.

In the higher grades of lace little has appeared upon the gowns of the popular variety. When cheap laces can be bought, of lovely pattern and of charming design, there really seems to be no reason why the woman of modest allowance should begrudge herself to buy the so-called real laces.

For the general public it is too early, but for the privileged few there are pretty things to be seen. Not complete by any means, but sufficiently advanced to give an idea of novelty—a skirt in wide knife pleats in the thinnest of cloths, in pale blue and in nasturtium red, with a tiny piping of silk at the hem; a blouse-bodice crossing in front over a small chemise and collar of embroidered lawn; sleeves wide at the elbow, tight just below the wrist, and opening again over the hand. Black and white striped silk as trimming in cordings upon the bodies of plain cloths are to fight for favor, but it will be short-lived, just as a light note to usher in the season.

There is a movement in silk of all descriptions—silk gauzes, silk lawns (called toile de soie), tussore, four-ards; but the stiff taffeta is confined to underskirts. Even for linings it ceases to please this season, and is only tolerated as a foundation for mousseline de soie. Cloth walking skirts are not lined, and for china crepe and foulard there is a clinging, silky material that does not rustle that will have all eyes staggered.

High waistbands are to be the distinguishing feature in the new spring costumes, and in all probability the only feature. For the blouse-bodices embroidered cannot be considered a novelty, yet they are the indispensable accompaniment to a walking skirt.

Serge in dark blue and in white comes to us every year, and we welcome it for early spring. A charming model in the darkest of navy is made with a bolero opening over a waistcoat of olive green leather. The skirt is trimmed with three bands of black silk, forming a tablier; passementerie and tassels connect the bands and finish the sleeves and waistcoat and fall upon the waistband of draped black silk.

The cloaks shown for spring are either white or black, long, loose garments like a supreme court justice's robe, inserted with white or black lace. The nature of the lace is different to that we have been wearing during the winter. The importers are employing a kind of thick curtain lace, both in favor and white, that comes from Tuz, in France.

Blouses in white washing silk, almost transparent, as they are, are soon over colored silk bodices, are inserted in the daintiest manner with narrow Valenciennes insertion and colored silks, in the shape of groups of shamrock in the palest of green. The green upon the blouse in no way interferes with the color of the inner bodice, even gives a catchet that a green transparency would not have.

White coarse linsens promise to be favorite wear as the season advances, and already the embroiderers are designing the loveliest things in pale blue and white, with a shade of cream to trim the heavy linen. Pale blue embroidery, like Madeira work, with giant holes, is to be employed upon a thick canvas material as a shade of cream, that recalls the homely holland, but in color only. These blue holes trim the top of a knitted flounce upon the skirt, and are the prettiest things imaginable upon the bodice and sleeves.

They outline the bolero from neck to waist, and are laced backward and forward with pale blue hewn over a chemise of white muslin and Valenciennes insertions. Upon the sleeves these same blue holes run from the elbow to the wrist, and lace in the same way over white muslin, hanging ever so lightly through the lines of fawn. This lawn lies in a bow at the wrist, and makes a delightful gown with the simplest materials.

A pretty fancy of the day is to copy in modern materials the lace gowns painted by artists of long ago. The Dutch and Italian painters were fond of sitters who wore lace and seemed to delight in reproducing it with minute fidelity. The French painters also loved lace, and there are fine imitation laces and nets to be had now reproducing these beautiful old patterns, copies of Alencon and Mechlin laces that would carry out this design with great success. It is not a case of contrasting bold laces with fine nets, but a contrast in designs all carried out in a fine, delicate make. The machine-made laces of our day are so perfect they seem capable of carrying out any old world daintiness worn by an eighteenth century belle. The characteristic of the lace is a straight edge. Lace is universally, or almost universally, becoming, but some women are meant to wear hold-patterned laces and others of delicate patterning and net of the spotty order.

Mrs. John Jacob Astor never lets a season pass without wearing a gown of striking design or color, not alone for the admiration of her friends, but even for that of the public, as the gown usually is shown in the theatre. The other night there was a justifiable craning of necks and leveling of opera glasses when young Mrs. Astor appeared in a frock of sapphire blue, spangled. There was the usual princesse effect, and the only innovation in design was the two capes that rolled from her shoulders. Over one shoulder she wore a network of diamonds, and only this mass of brilliants and her terra nurred the absolute simplicity of the costume. The gown itself was of net, heavily pailletted with sequins.

Homemade Pheasantry.

The impression has prevailed for many years that the beautiful pheasants of the Old World would not thrive at all in a small place, and that it was difficult in this country to breed them even on a large estate, but in recent years this theory has been disproved. Pheasants of the most beautiful type, and some of the rarest birds in the world, have been raised on village lots with scarcely any of the natural environments which formerly were considered essential to their welfare.

In starting a pheasantry on a country place only the breeds which have proved that they can be easily raised should be purchased at first. These can be obtained from dealers at moderate cost, and after a season's experience with them it will be safe to try rarer sorts. A pheasantry must be supplied with outdoor and indoor quarters for the birds. A yard forty by fifty for a pair of the birds and a warm house fifteen feet square should be supplied with as much natural shrubbery and bush as possible, but these conditions are not absolutely essential to the welfare of the birds. They will thrive on ordinary poultry, and with only a trifle more care. Disease among them is rare if the quarters are kept clean and sanitary. Good, wholesome food and plenty of fresh, clean water must be provided for them daily. With protection from the severe weather they will be contented and healthy in their home. So attached does a bird become to these quarters that the loss of one is almost like the loss of a child. One soon becomes so enamored of the hobby that he would not exchange it for all the attractions and excitements of the city. In such ways cultured persons learn to find enjoyment in the quiet occupations and researches which the country furnishes in abundance summer or winter.

be ample, although the larger the rooming ground the better the birds will enjoy it. The outdoor enclosure must have a fence ten to twenty feet in height to prevent the birds from hopping over it, and a top covering of wire should be provided as a precaution.

Many of the ordinary varieties of pheasants are no more difficult to raise than fancy breeds of chickens. Their quarters are about the same and their food not much different. A home pheasantry and pigeon loft combined furnish a greater amount of profit and pleasure than where either one is built separately. The upper part of the house for the winter quarters should be built with pigeon lofts where only the fancy pigeons are kept. The combination of the two in nearly but separate, enclosures yields no end of gratification. The pigeons often will fly through the wires of the pheasantry and invade the quarters of the beautiful wild

Paris Hats Indicate New Styles

All important is the question of a becoming hat or hats, especially as the prevailing styles are never becoming for everybody; but it would seem as though milliners realized this and offered to their customers such a variety of shapes and designs as to make it almost a crime to wear a hat that is not suitable and becoming. At the same time it is decidedly confusing to see so many absolutely different fashions as are displayed and to choose wisely.

Smaller hats are to be more fashionable, and we are threatened with a revival of the bonnet with strings tied under the chin. As yet the bonnets that have been exhibited are not especially alarming, but are smart and attractive, fitting close to the head—it might be said the individual head—and with high trimming either in front at the side, as is most becoming. The cap shaped net of pearls or chenille studded with jewels, such as has been worn by some of the favorite trimming for this hat is the stiff aigrette at the side, fastened with jeweled ornament on the brim or two small Mercury wings just inside the brim at the left side. Without exception these hats fit close to the head at the back and are most becoming to the profile as well as in front. The same shape in straw is also very smart, and it is astonishing how many different changes are rung on the one note. A black and white straw in soft crown has the brim entirely hidden under combed flowers, which at the back are in a circle, and with blossoms hanging down over the hair, and at the left side well toward the front are two little white wings in Mercury shape. Another variety of the same style is in red straw, with brim and back formed of geraniums or carnations. In these red hats there is no other color introduced, not even black or white, and the little wings are in red to match. A charm-to be seen among the new shapes, and are, in fact, precisely on the lines of the winter ones. The white and light colored hat felt hats are as much in fashion, or even more so, than at the beginning of the winter, and as many of the new tulle and straw hats are exactly the same shape, the economically minded, would be smartly gowned women may at this moment purchase a light or white felt hat, wear it for a month, and then transfer the trimmings to her spring hat and be in fashion all the time. Flowers and velvet ribbon trim these hats, and the fad is to have the flowers on the top and also under the brim. Roses and geraniums are the most fashionable flowers, and pink and white the juvenile colors, but there are many of these hats made in the one tone color scheme, hat and flowers all of the same shade, regardless of botany. Silver leaves and flowers in the gray hats, and tan flowers and leaves on the beaver hats of the same shade, are odd, but, it must be admitted, are effective.

smartly gowned women at the opera, is reported in the new bonnets, but put over a framework of tulle. Chenille braids of all kinds are much used for this style of bonnet, but fancy straw is also in favor, both in coarse and fine weave, but with a decided preference in favor of the yellow straw, and even the burnt color.

For the moment tulle hats are the smartest of all and are to be had in every shape. Apparently perishable, these hats will stand a lot of hard wear, especially those made of the narrow pleatings of tulle, but the sides collect dust and sooner look shabby, in black or white tulle are seen the ostrich plumes or tips fastened with rhinestone ornament is always effective and becoming. The turbans in tulle are charming, especially the white ones, for the brims covered with the soft pleatings are so becoming. A ing black fancy straw has the brim faced with yellow and black cowslips, and a white hat has daisies. Although the style is sure to become popular, there is not much danger of its being satisfactorily copied in cheap materials, and this is its only safeguard, for the straw must be of the most expensive quality or the crown will look and be too heavy. The flowers must be fine ones to be becoming.

A touch of pink and also of black is most satisfactory on the burnt straw or yellow straw hats, and a most effective turban of tulle straw has the brim covered with hanging scales of jet, white at the side is a deep pink rose, and the combination of coloring is most charming. A tulle straw bonnet has a black velvet bow and a pink rose, and in time there will be black velvet bonnet strings added to the shape, whenever women can be made to adopt the fashion of strings again. Flat hats, with no crowns at all, are materially smaller, and in rows of tulle pleating is very effective and becoming. The ostrich feathers are the favorite trimming, and it is smart to have a white feather and a black one as well, while on the white tulle hats a pink or blue feather is a new and effective style. This same idea of a colored feather is seen also in the white tulle turbans with the feather starting from the front of the hat, just back of the brim, and falling down onto the hair at the back.

Lace hats and hats draped with real lace veils, black or white, are also to be included, but beautiful and becoming as lace is in itself it requires the skill of an artist to drape it becomingly over the new shapes, either in the broad flat hats or the smaller turbans. With a rose tucked in at the back of the hat amid the fall of lace a most picturesque old-fashioned effect is produced, but for that picturesque and charming effect an appalling price is generally asked.

Digestibility of Vegetables.

As the value of a food depends not alone upon how much of nutrients it contains, but also upon how much of these the body can digest and assimilate, it follows that the preparation of food materials is a matter of as much moment as their composition. It is not enough that foods should be appetizing, although this is a necessary factor, but they must be cooked so as to preserve or increase their digestibility as well as their flavor.

Cooking changes the texture of food and it should develop flavor rather than destroy it. Vegetables suffer, perhaps, more than any other class of foods in this respect, the original delicate flavors being destroyed and then rich sauces added to disguise their tasteless condition. Tasteless meat may, in actual experiments be as quickly and wholly digested as a savory roast, but the fact remains that with a diet of more or less tasteless food the appetite is soon lost, and sufficient food for actual nourishment is not assimilated if eaten.

The vegetables which we term common, possibly because they cost less, are the greatest sufferers in respect to careless cooking. Turnips, carrots and cabbage may be delicious if carefully prepared, but are ordinarily not especially tempting. Cauliflower and Brussels sprouts when served in a watery sauce, even if cooked through, are not appetizing.

Many vegetables, notably Brussels sprouts and carrots, are improved by cooking in stock in such a manner that they will absorb its flavor. Onions and cabbage should be cooked in more than one water, this rendering them more delicate and wholesome, but the majority of vegetables should be cooked in only sufficient water to keep them. The long cooking required by this method not only destroys the flavor, but ordinarily the exteriors of the vegetable is overdone and the interior not done enough. Kohlrabi should be peeled, halved and cut into thin slices. Parsnips in boiling salted water, as directed for the string beans, and drain. Simmer in stock until tender and serve with a cream or bechamel sauce. Turnips should be cut in dice or cubes and cooked in boiling salted water until tender.

Turnips as a Grain.

Cook the turnips as follows: Pare and cut into cubes; cover with cold water, put over the fire and boil five minutes; drain, rinse in cold water, cover with boiling salted water and cook until tender. Or the turnips may be cooked in white stock, uncovered, so as to absorb the stock. When tender, drain. Make a white sauce as directed. If the turnips are cooked in stock make with all milk; if they are cooked in water the sauce, if desired, may be made of part milk and part stock. For a pint of turnips take one tablespoonful of butter, one cap of milk, one tablespoonful of flour, one tablespoonful of grated cheese and salt and pepper to taste. Melt the butter without browning, add the flour, stir until smooth and thoroughly well cooked. Add the cheese and stir until it melts. Add the milk, stir until the sauce begins to thicken; season and pour over the turnips. Put the turnips with the sauce in a greased earthen dish, and if they seem too dry add a little butter. Cover with buttered crumbs and brown in a moderately quick oven.

them moist until they are tender. This method retains their natural juices and flavor. In cooking young green peas, for instance, melt a little butter in a saucepan and add the peas and let them cook in the butter, stirring occasionally, until they are well heated. Add salt and sufficient boiling water barely to cover them. Cook uncovered, adding water a little at a time as needed to keep them moist, until they are tender. The water should for the most part be absorbed.

Cooking Beans With Stock.

String beans, after having the strings removed, which should be done from each end twice, should be thoroughly washed and cut into inch pieces. Cover with boiling salted water and let it come to a boil, drain and cover with hot stock. Simmer uncovered until the beans are tender. When done, if the stock has not been entirely absorbed, drain, cover with milk, add butter, salt and pepper, let the milk just scald, then put the beans absorb a little of the milk before serving.

Kohlrabi, turnips and carrots should not be covered with hot water and cooked until them, and add a tablespoonful of butter. Stir carefully until the butter melts; then let the carrots simmer until tender. Stock may be used in place of the butter and water. When tender little of the liquid should be remaining. Make a cream sauce as directed for the turnips, and when the milk is added put in the carrots with the liquid which is left. Stir carefully until the sauce has thickened, season and serve. Cooking in this manner retains the delicate flavor of the carrots, and proper serving gives a delicious instead of a rank vegetable.

For Brussels sprouts wash in cold water, cover with boiling salted water, let come to a boil, drain and cover with cold water. Drain again. Cover with two tablespoonfuls of hot stock, and add one tablespoonful of butter for a pint of sprouts. Cook gently until tender, add more stock or butter if necessary, season and serve at once in the sauce in which they have been cooked. The majority of the green vegetables are likely to be cooked too long. Asparagus, spinach, cauliflower and particularly fresh green corn are injured by long cooking, their delicate flavors being destroyed.

SUGGESTIONS FOR DRESSING BAY WINDOWS.

Excellent possibilities are afforded by a bay window for interior decoration, although it is one of the most difficult features of a room to treat satisfactorily. The light must not be obstructed and the drapery or other adornment must not be heavy or cumbersome. Window seats may be introduced effectively and a pleasant nook formed in which to read when the light is failing in other parts of the room.

Figure 3 suggests a method of treating a bay window with a seat in a bedroom. The cretonne used is flowered on a cream white background and the curtains, which are looped high, are made of bottle green silk velour and a metal galleon is sewed on the valance to form a decorative design. This galleon also forms a border up and down the curtains and across the bottom. The popular stores or bone femme curtains are used against the windows. The seat, which is oddly shaped, is upholstered in bottle green mohair.

For a reception-room a bay window may be prettily draped with perfectly straight valance and curtains of salmon pink damask, with black velvet appliques outlined with gold embroidery. The cash curtains are sheer, with a small figure. The window seat is covered with velour and has a French plaited valance. This is an Empire mode of treatment and should be used in a room furnished in the style of that period.

A dignified method of draping a bay window in a library is shown in figure 1. The shaped valance and the curtains, which are looped high, are made of bottle green silk velour and a metal galleon is sewed on the valance to form a decorative design. This galleon also forms a border up and down the curtains and across the bottom. The popular stores or bone femme curtains are used against the windows. THE GOSSIP OF THE WORLD OF SPORTS

Duluth Must Hustle To Get Into the Northern Baseball League, Or All Good Players Will Be Engaged.

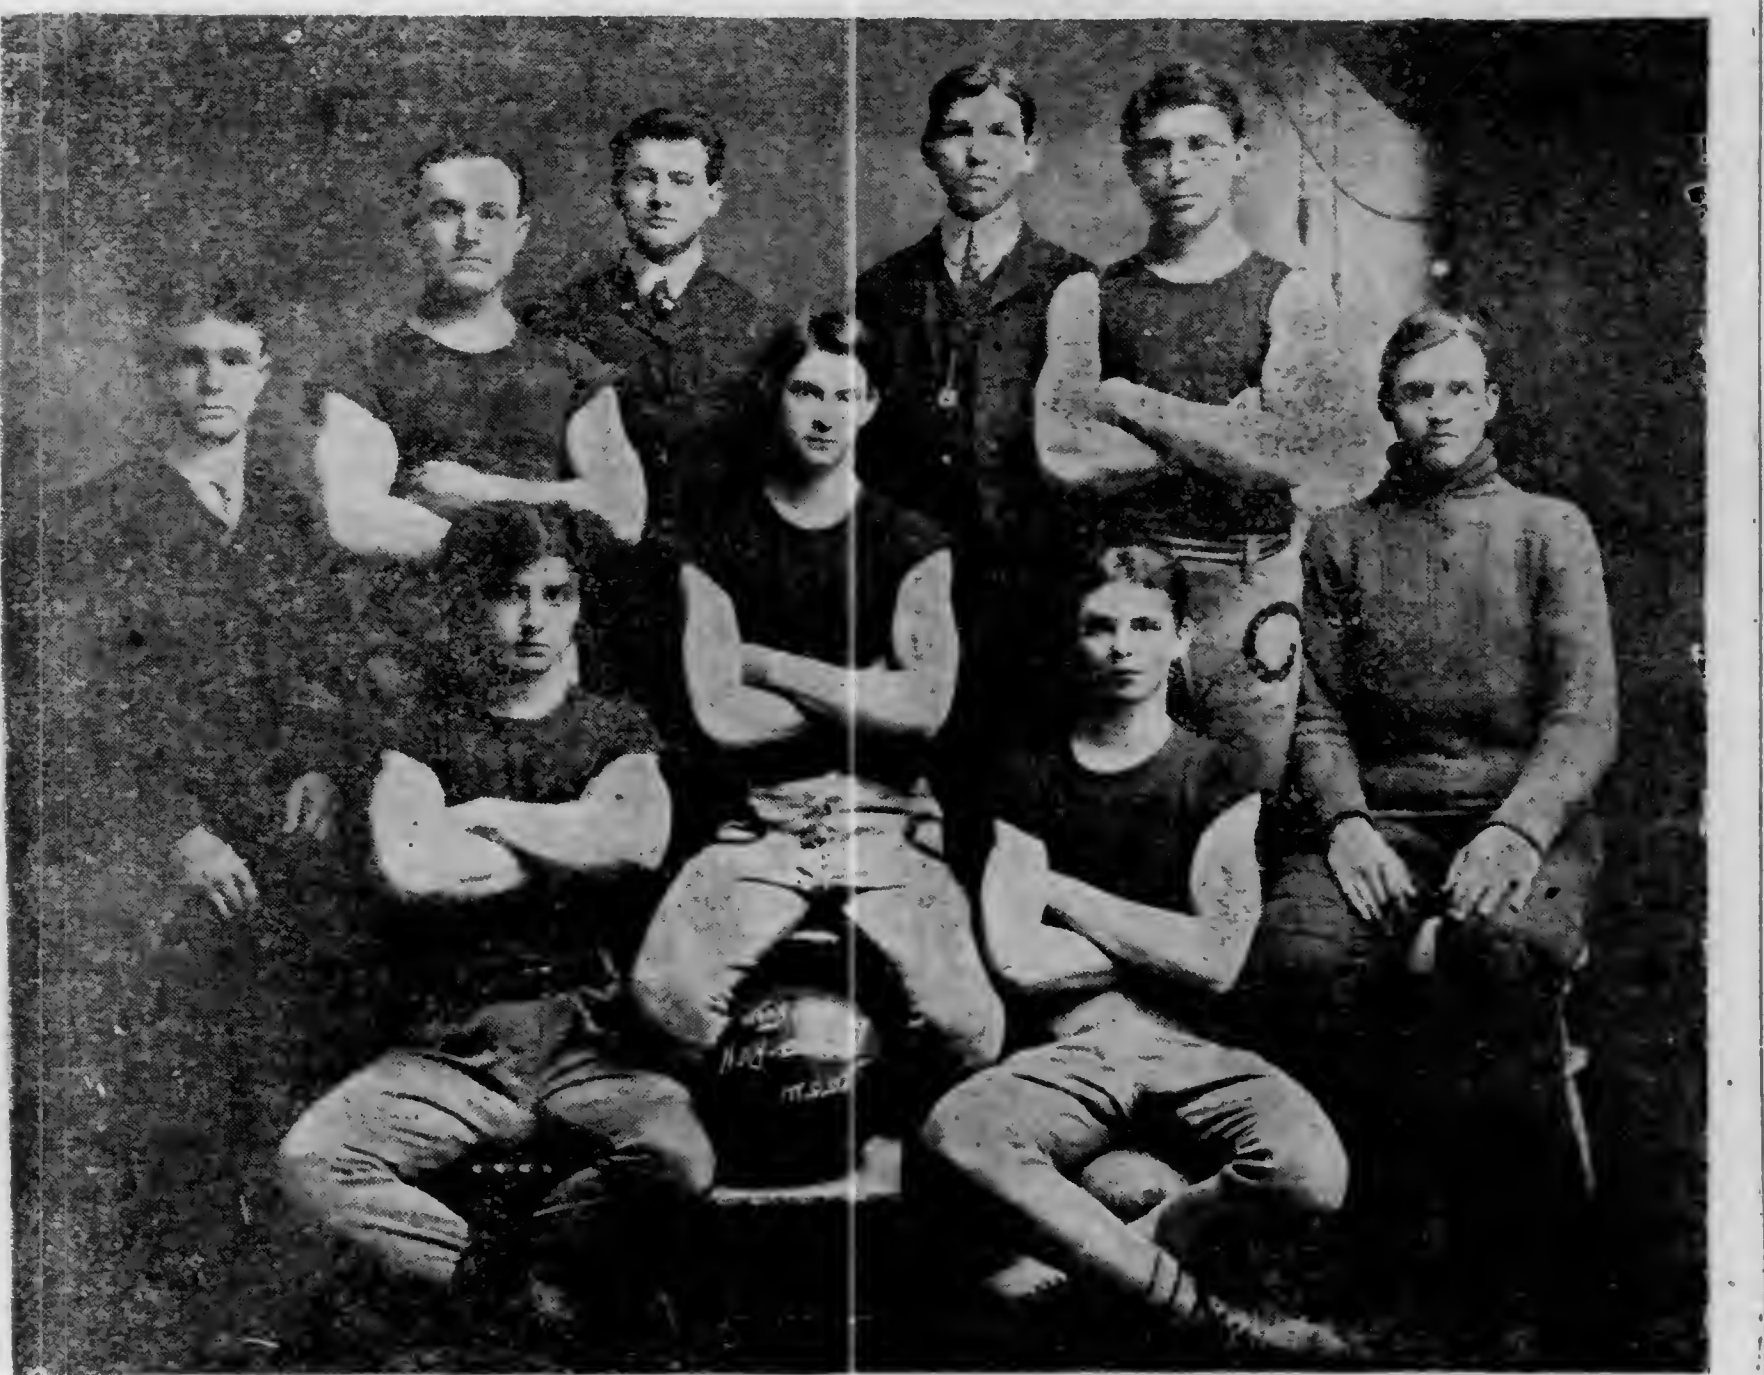

Unless Duluth does something definite in the way of organizing a ball team and getting the Northern league franchise, practically all good players will have berths for the coming season and this city will not be in the chase for the festive banquet.

Local promoters of diamond affairs have been doing a great deal of talking during the past week, but that is all. Some of those directly interested in the old club are not overly enthusiastic about the Northern league, claiming the traveling expenses would eat up all the profits.

The Proctorknott basketball club, a picture of which appears in this issue, is composed of three teams, known as the Proctor first and second teams and the Junior team. The teams are under the management of J. M. Jollymore and are playing good ball. W. A. Edwards captains the first team, A. Edwards the second, while the Juniors have at present no regular captain. The club has been organized three years and the first team has been defeated only by two teams, those being the Zenith Athletics and the normal school of West Superior.

But Proctorknott has several of the best players at the head of the list. M. A. Kemp, Proctor's heavy guard, played with the Duluth Y. M. C. A. for about five years, while John Rice, the other guard, played with the two Harbors team for several years and was playing with that team a few years ago when the two Harbors team defeated the Duluth Y. M. C. A. H. Trempe, center, is also a good player and deserves credit for this year's good play. J. Jollymore and Edwards, the two forwards, are also playing good ball.

Middle row—H. Kemp, umpire; H. Trempe, center; A. Bethune, substitute.

The Proctor team played and defeated the Lakeside team at Proctor Friday evening of last week by a score of 37 to 9, while the second team from Lakeside defeated the Proctor second team after a hard game by a score of 8 to 10.

The Proctorknott first and second teams will probably play all the stars of West Superior some night next week.

Star pitcher will race no more. That has been finally settled. He has earned laurels enough for one horse and he will be kept in the stud from now on, although he has fully recovered from the injury which led to his retirement, three years ago.

Six racing seasons have come and gone since Star Pointer placed the world's racing record for the mile at 1:58 1/2 at the Louisville, Mass., meet, and no bit of horseflesh has yet been found able to wrest from him the laurels he earned that August day, although Dan Patch, last September, covered the mile in identical time, and, in spite of that the record is still Star Pointer's.

This wonderful animal has had a remarkable career. In his four years of his racing career he started in forty-two races and time contests, and won twenty-seven of them. He was foaled in 1882, sired by Brown Hal, and made a mark of 2:04 1/2. In 1896 he started in eight races and won four. In 1897 he started in sixteen races and won eleven. In 1898 he won six races, and made a mark of 2:04 1/2. In 1899 he started only twice. On Aug. 31, at Hartford, he attempted to break his own record, but made the mile in 2 flat. Sept. 6, in a race with Joe Patchen and John R.

gentry, he won the first heat in 2:04 1/2, and finished second to Joe Patchen in the second, in 2:07 1/2. When scoring for the third heat he became so lame that he had to be withdrawn from the race. That was his last appearance on the turf.

After months of "mud-slinging" and "championing" Jollymore and Corbett got together at New York Sunday afternoon and practically agreed to meet in a limited round match at San Francisco in June or July before the club offering the large purse.

The meeting was at the Delevan hotel and personal reports of parties who overheard the talk say that it was anything but pleasant. Jeffries is determined to shut the mouth of Corbett for good and wants the match to go as far as the law will permit. The fight will be posted and straight. Marquis of Queensbury rules will govern.

After a discussion of the best place to pull off the contest both parties agreed that unless a new bidder sprung up before June the fight would take place at "Friar."

Jeffries agreed to the demands of "Pompador Jim" about bandages, and other points which were expected to cause friction, were amicably settled. The money will be divided 75 per cent to the winner and 25 per cent to the loser.

Next Friday the managers of the big pug will meet at Baltimore and sign articles of agreement.

Terry McGovern's wonderful show-up against Billy Maynard was a revelation to the sports, especially those who had their doubts about Terry still having the knockout punch. That Terry is there with the goods there is no further question, and that it only takes one of his to do the business has also been demonstrated to the satisfaction of the friends and admirers of the little Brooklyn whirlwind. Terry won back hundreds of friends when he knocked out Maynard in four rounds on Monday night last in Philadelphia.

Maynard made a great fight against the Brooklynite and there is no discredit to the fact that he made Terry hustle from bell to bell. It was another case of Fitzsimmons and Jeffries over again. Terry went in and took a lot of unnecessary punishment to land the one punch that would earn for him a victory. Maynard came at him and fought fast and fair. He did not resort to the wrestling and hugging tactics of Joe Bernstein, but endeavored to win, and win in a hurry, if possible.

Maynard was knocked down once in the first and second round. One time he was saved by the call of time after four had been called out by the referee. The knockout punch came in the fourth round, after one minute and forty-five seconds of fighting. The men rushed to a clinch and Terry, as usual, wriggled himself out of it. Before Maynard could get straightened up the Terror had sent in his left with terrific force into the pit of the stomach and the next instant swung the left for the jaw. The last blow was not necessary as the punch near the heart had done its work and Maynard was down and out.

nose. This made him furious. He rushed in at Lutz, who cleverly sidestepped. Then they clinched. In the breakaway Lutz shot his right to the jaw and the ringer dropped like a log. It took twenty minutes to bring him to. After he got on his street clothes Lutz invited him to call again. The fellow was so changed that he made no reply, but moved cityward in a badly shattered state. Lutz learned afterward that the man he knocked out was an Indiana glassblower, with considerable reputation as a boxer in his home town. He was brought here to give Lutz work, but the latter was still there with his old knockout punch; he sent the glassblower home with a broken nose as a souvenir of his visit to Cincinnati.

"How near Jim Jeffries came to losing the championship to Bob Fitzsimmons," said Lutz, "is a story that I have never seen in print." remarked a sporting man in the Enquirer office the other night. "I know something about it, and can assure you that if it had not been for Jeffries' wonderful nerve the bout would have been a foregone conclusion in favor of Fitzsimmons."

"How was that?" asked an interested listener. The man who was there then gave the following facts concerning the incident:

"In the first two rounds Fitz had landed three blows to Jeff's nose and was jumping around the ring like a monkey. Jeff tried hard to corner him, but Lanky Bob was so shifty on his feet that Jeff couldn't get him. Fitz would jab Jeff on the nose, sidestep and then send a harder one into Jeff's face or body. To say that Jeff was waiting his chance to land his terrible left on Bob, but while he was doing this Fitz was getting in his telling work. Fitz had the best of the first and second round. In the third Jeff smashed Fitz on the face and ear. Then he followed up with a right to the mouth and Fitz came back with his left hand to the nose. The blood spurted and Jeff's face began to swell. Jeff attempted to retaliate, but Fitz cleverly blocked the attempt. Fitz again caught Jim on the nose and the champion came to him with a desperate look. Fitz stopped with a left hook, and it was this blow that came nearly winning the fight for the Cornishman.

The punch caught Jeff on the right side of the head and the blood flowed like water. Jeff was bleeding from the nose and eye, but still strong on his feet. He charged again, but did no damage. When the men went to their corners Jeff's face was in bad shape. Billy Deane, at once put the seconds to work on the upper portion of the champion's body, and when the sponge was dashed into Jim's face he cried, 'Look out for my eye!' Deane made a hurried examination, and found that the punch had almost torn the eyeball from the socket. 'Does it look bad?' he asked. 'Yes, it does,' replied Billy. 'Then tear it out,' yelled Jeffries, showing that he was a man of wonderful nerve. Jeff then ran his hand up over his nose and found that it had been broken. 'My nose is gone too,' said Jeff to Deane. 'That's all right. Tear it out! It will do you good.' 'Yes, it will do you good,' replied Billy. Exercises for the Brain Worker

BY ELLA ADELIA FLETCHER.

Evils which threaten the health of brain workers are subject, with two exceptions, to their own control, and can be avoided by the exercise of judgment and sometimes self-control. The two exceptions are the indoor confinement for long hours and the inactive physical condition which the work necessitates, when a more fraction of the muscles is called into use and all those unemployed are becoming stagnant.

In the case of the brain worker these evils are enhanced by the changes of tissue in the brain, which take place rapidly during study and thought. It is a popular error that the brain alone is taxed by its labor, but three hours of mental effort exhausts the forces of the whole body as much as a day of manual labor. The absence of physical exercise encourages dangerous torpidity of voluntary functions, making their elimination of effort more sluggish. Most brain workers increase the unavoidable evils of their work by eating improper food and by taking heavy meals at the wrong hours.

These workers and all leading sedentary lives require concentrated and easily digested foods. They should eat less meat, less starch and sugar, than those engaged in manual labor or those who spend a good deal of their time out of doors. Breakfast should be a nourishing but not a heavy meal. Fruit should be a part of it, and also should form the principal part of luncheon, which should be a light meal if work be continued after it. The hearty midday meal is for all persons except those living in the open air close to the sea. When to the injudicious amount and kind of food thrust upon tired organs is added the practice of pitching that food in a half-mast condition into the abused stomach at lightning speed the conditions are created that cause many deaths said to be due to "heart failure."

Not half so much physical harm would be caused by doing without food until the craving of hunger became insistent as is inflicted by eating when in a state of extreme fatigue or in haste. Under these conditions digestion is so retarded that the food has time to ferment, generating foul gases, which distend the stomach uncomfortably, sometimes causing it to press painfully upon the heart. Afternoon headaches, from which so many women suffer, and the stupor and drowsiness which overcome school children and others working at desks in mid-afternoon are symptomatic of sluggish blood and stomachic disorders, often due to indigestion in eating.

Other sufferers from this unhealthy habit are the women in small homes, especially in the country, who after busy mornings engaged in household labor finish their work by preparing a heavy supper meal. The men who come in from the fields to partake of it and who often enjoy a leisurely smoke before returning to their outdoor work experience no discomfort, but the women are more tired when they rise from the table than when they sit down. They would consider it shameful idleness to rest a half hour before "sitting up" the work, so a bad matter is made worse and they attribute the afternoon lassitude, which makes attention to duties which cannot be postponed almost a torture, to the morning's labor. But the chief factor in the lassitude is the absence of oxygen in the blood to feed the fire that burns away impurities. The resulting depressed condition of digestive organs and their inability to do more work till they are renewed are natural effects of the given cause. Their condition is only this much better than the brain worker's—that the drain on physical forces has not been so great and the variety of their labor has given opportunity for some exercise.

It should be the natural desire of every human being engaged in any regular occupation to study the ways and means by which to enable himself to perform the maximum labor with a minimum expenditure of life's forces.

Exercise is the only specific for overcoming the dangerous stagnation which the brain worker's inactivity produces, yet most persons complain that they have no time for it. It does not take as much time, however, as is wasted daily by most workers in idle talk and countless avoidable interruptions. Sufficient exercise to raise the average of health appreciably and save many a hopeless breakdown can be taken in from three to five minutes, devoted to different movements, either hourly or from four to half a dozen times during the day, according to convenience.

In this way from twenty minutes to a half

hour's exercise could be taken without missing it, and, soon, if the practice be regular, the physical benefit would be so marked that the work accomplished would be increased instead of lessened. The brain is no less stimulated and freshened than the body by the impetus thus given to the beautiful functioning of all organs and responds cheerfully to all demands when the body is in a condition to give it support.

There are some valuable exercises that can be taken when sitting still without further interruption of the mental direction required for the movement. These are muscular contractions and expansions of the abdomen and chest, by which the whole alimentary canal and adjacent regions are stimulated. Until you put your mind on it and try to feel these muscles you have no idea how many there are or what control you can gain over them, making them exercise beneficent pressure upon torpid organs. In this way the muscles in and down the sides, around the back, over the shoulder blades and across the chest can be raised to beautiful activity. To bring pressure upon the stomach and liver contract the abdomen forcibly, throw the diaphragm up as in expelling the breath, and, holding this position, contract and expand the muscles running around the body.

The movements illustrated are accompanied by deep breathing, inhaling with the upward or outward movement of the arms, and exhaling as they fall or the body is bent forward. The first part of the exercise with arms extended sideways is to bring them no together in front with tightly gripped fists. Inhale and rise on the toes as you sweep the arms round in a quarter circle, keeping them in a horizontal line with the shoulders. The muscles over the shoulder blades should feel an intense pull. Poise upon the toes and hold the breath while you count five; then exhale the breath and come down upon your feet as the arms drop to the sides. This movement has a wonderful effect in equalizing the forces of the body. Even three repetitions of this one movement hourly would have an exhilarating effect.

The kneeling movements alternate advantageously with the above and the illustrations show the whole exercise. Grasp any convenient staff with a firm grip, and, kneeling upon the left knee with the extended leg in line with the leg, throw the arms upward and flex backward till you feel the torso muscles pull from the shoulders. Take the forward bend with a stretching reach, which pulls on shoulders and the whole side of the extended leg. Alternate with kneeling also on right leg.

In the liver and lung movement the arms are extended alternately. Standing firmly upon the right foot with arm extended upward, raise the left leg upon the toes so that the hip will support the bent elbow. Take whole arm's length contracted forcibly with fist resting just forward of the shoulder and forearm pressed closely against the side. Don't forget to breathe deeply.

Dosia's Automobile.

Genes say that women marry for many other reasons than love. They marry for a position, for an establishment, for a diamond necklace, for an automobile.

Such solid motives are attributed to the demoralizing influences of low life, which ultra-civilization suppresses the natural instincts.

"Oh, for a return to nature," say the critics, "where men do not hate and women are brought. Let us live close to the beating heart of the Great Mother, where life is simple and muscles are untrained."

"The old Tim," says the critic, "read this little tale, and you will see the same faults that you have laid at the door of 'modern life' leading and hanging in the simplest of surroundings among the least artificial of people. Back of 'town life' and 'ultra-civilization' is a human nature, which recognizes no civilization."

These Kelly, tall, bent and shambling, his black face set in a frame of knobby jaw; Uncle Kelly, seventy years old and three feet tall; and Kelly—was in love.

His condition was whispered about the settlement quietly at first, for the neighbors, who had been unfortunate in their wives; three of them, such an expense for his wife, and not one of them alive to look after his old age. And certainly he had married a nobody until Sam Perkins, Dosia had come back a few years ago, pink and plump and up and down pretty.

But Dosia was sixteen, and sixteen, whether black or white, requires a heavy weight on the other side of the scale to swing evenly from the ground.

If the girl's parents had been of a higher social standing, they might have expressed such a thing as a desire to see her "established in life." Sam and Sally Perkins told their daughter with a brutal honesty that they wanted her to marry Kelly to "get shut of her."

This remark was not especially moving to Dosia, for she had earned her living before, and was competent to do it again, and felt independent of parental support. It did make her think, however, of the advantages of having a cabin of her own, with no one to lose her but Kelly, whom she knew how to manage.

She could have a flower garden, too; Kelly said so. Her father never had spared her a bit of ground from the corn and sorghum and potatoes; and she did love flowers. Then all the work she did would be for her self, not for a spiteful folk, nor even for her father. No, how her back ached skinning syrup last sorghum boiling (that) yet she had hardly had a chance to wobble her pore in it all winter.

Such thoughts certainly did make her hope to get married.

As she came to this conclusion she slid along the bench on which she and Kelly were sitting under the big oak and leaned against the old man. He chuckled contentedly and put his arm around her waist.

It was the worst move he could have made, for, in spite of his triple conjugal experience, Kelly was not apt in the ways of lovers. As she felt his touch Dosia remembered in a flash how differently young Ed Baldwin had done the same thing no longer ago than the previous evening, and she slid swiftly back again to her former place. Kelly grumbled in spite of himself, but made the mistake of staying at his end of the bench, while Dosia pouted and sulked and dug a hole in the soft dirt with her bare brown toes.

It was a crisis in the courtship. During the next week Kelly came to the house every day, and every day Dosia ran away into the woods when she saw him coming.

But her father was unbearably cross, and she never got as much syrup as she wanted, and Ed Baldwin had not been to see her again, and the independence of the new and untold life of a matron appealed to her.

Still, Uncle Kelly was mighty old. And powerful, too. No, she never could.

Just as she made this decision, which she felt to be final, Kelly came along the road, sitting on the running gear of his wood wagon and driving between the shafts his spotted steer.

"Hello, Dosia; get on and ride," he said. Nothing loath, Dosia slipped between the wheels and, hitched herself on to the pole that connects the front axle-tree and the back. It was not a comfortable seat, but she was not critical. Three of the wheels were of the same size, but the fourth was much larger, an arrangement that created a certain unevenness of motion in the vehicle. But Dosia did not care. Neither did she object to the steer's emaciation.

"Do you like it?" asked Kelly, looking down at her beaming face.

"You bet!" she answered with cordial simplicity.

"Well, if you marry me you can take the center and the gear most any time I like."

hauling and carry your friends to ride. What do you say?"

"I will, Uncle Kelly. I'll marry you soon—tomorrow, if you want me to. It's just elegant."

And marry him she did.

Treatment Of Floors.

Among the first to introduce twenty-five years ago floors of parquet were elaborate and costly, and in which strong color contrasts were produced with different sorts of natural woods, were the Vanderbilts. The designs worked out in these floors were elaborate, the borders beautiful.

Through all the mutations of carpet and rug styles of manufacture the hardwood floor—widespread and rich in parquet—has advanced steadily in popularity until to-day it is pre-eminently the floor of all who care for elegance or good taste under foot.

The hardwood floor, in its simpler forms, is seen in nearly all buildings of any pretension, and in private residences it has reached a high degree of beauty and elegance. A comparatively short time ago these floors often mimicked the stained with the natural wood. To-day the grain and pattern of the natural wood are brought out and subjected to a high polish, and floors have the soft sheen of satin and the glow of burnished metal.

As an example of brilliant color in wood nothing could be more vivid than the vermillion wood, whose sanguine hue corresponds to its name. It is used in parquet where Oriental patterns are produced and occasionally a whole floor is laid in it at vast cost and with wonderful effect. One such floor in the home of a New York banker has a border of rich emerald blue. This has the shading of a peacock's feathers, and the Parquet floors are often mitered at the corners, but a favorite corner arrangement is to have squares, which at the corners of the room in diamond shape, and to have a replica of the design of the floor on its borders.

The most elegant floors are without borders except in special cases or in imperceptible patterns, and many oak floors are without ornamental edges. These are made of Indiana white quartered oak, which is highly valued for its beauty and durability. No other American oak is as good for flooring, dealers say, and they tell how the Southern live oak is sometimes slipped in with the logs. "When we see cotton sticking to it," they say, "we know pretty well where it comes from." The beautiful hard grain of the live oak is greatly desired, but the wood shows red streaks in unexpected places, which mar a floor.

"If we could only get a floor of those streaks," said one enthusiast, "it would be magnificent!"

Teakwood is a favorite for fine floors. It has a natural oil which preserves and makes it valuable. At one time all the ships of Holland were built of teakwood, and it is through that country that East Indian teakwood reaches America.

In making patterns of floors the result is obtained by reversing the grain of the wood. Some woods that have hick-like streaks are so arranged that cubes and blocks appear built upon each other, giving a curious effect of perspective to the floor without altering its single color scheme.

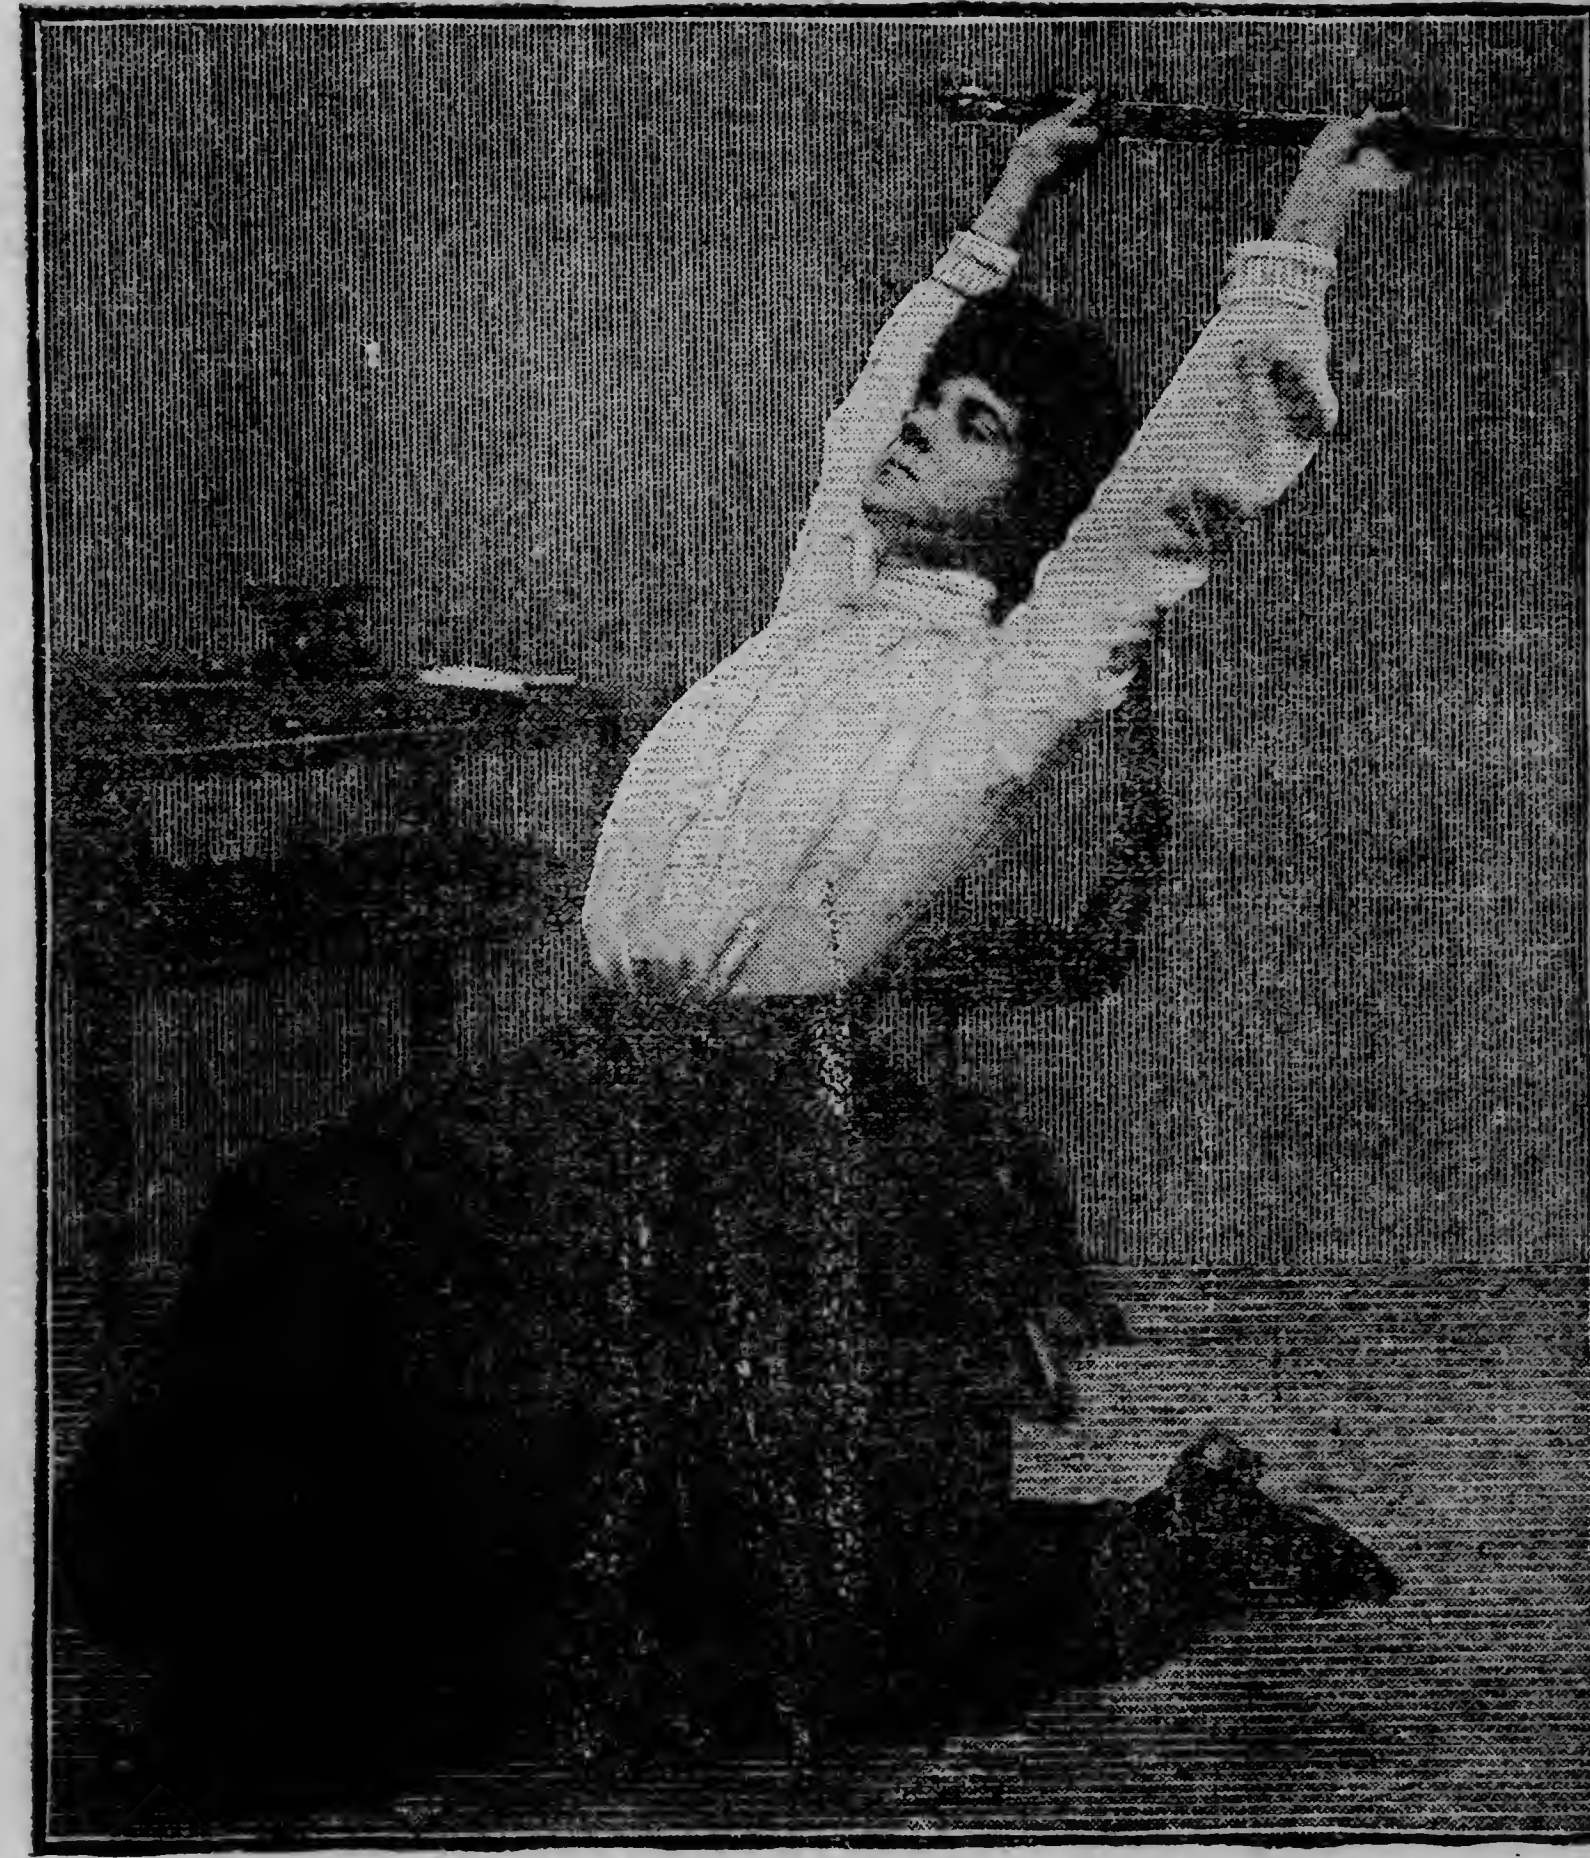

Of the exquisite luster of satinwood, of which entire floors are seldom made, nothing need be said, but less familiar and more fashionable woods are the Cressian walnut from the East, and the South Pacific walnut from the Sandwich Islands.

There is a floor that can be rolled up like a bolt of cloth and unrolled at will to lie flat in narrow strips upon its cloth foundation. The aggravating circumstance, however, is that it cannot be purchased at so much per yard, with a chance of picking up a remnant at a bargain. There are also grooved floors and others of rare woods are renowned.

The striped, courtier wood, with its warm red gold coloring, and the yallapa, with its greenish gold stripes, seem too lovely for common usage under foot, and so do the white maple, the golden ebony and the mopagus wood, whose ruby color shades to a bronze red.

The Feats Of Muchslash.

BY JOHN WALKER HARRINGTON.

CHAPTER IV.

No sooner did the army of the king of Freeland approach than the circus tent came down with a clatter of poles and a flapping of canvas, rolled itself into a cylinder and stood on end, to the great confusion of the persons who were assembled within it. Tent and spectators slowly sank into the ground, and, passing through a long, narrow tunnel, emerged in the cellar of the castle of the Duke. There the canvas and the poles were separated by agile attendants and the entire company rejoiced in comfortable quarters.

Between the Duke of Twitchester and the King of Freeland there was no friendship, and His Majesty was only too glad of a chance to lay siege to the ducal castle. The monarch made the presence of Muchslash in the stronghold an excuse for bringing cannon and stone throwing machines and all his army.

"If," commanded he, "His Grace of Twitchester does not surrender to me one Muchslash I shall bombard this castle and make all its lands forfeit to the crown. The only other condition on which I will spare it is that the globe of Calcas be restored to me."

"And this globe of Calcas," asked Muchslash, dodging a shower of arrows which fell upon the battlement where he and the Duke were watching the gathering of the royal troops, "where is it?"

"That I do not know," replied the Duke, with a sigh. "I never saw the miserable wood and shot thousands of shafts tipped with flame. The royal cannon, which were fired every minute, and in spite of the efforts of the garrison, the army of the King of Freeland pressed nearer and nearer to the walls. The supply of food became so low that the Duke was in despair. The roast fowl and the wines which had been in the castle in such abundant store were no more, and the garrison, which had lived on cake, was reduced to bread, and then the cry went through the ducal kitchen: 'There is no flour!'

The ammunition of the army of the Duke of Twitchester became exhausted. The stones which could be fired from the walls were thrown from the battlements, and all the silverware in the castle, to say nothing of the pewter spoons and a lead statue of King Leod, were melted into cannon balls and bullets. The furniture, bearing the ducal crest, was split into arrows. The army of the King of Freeland increased in size and daring. The Duke called all his captains to council of war, and explained to them that further resistance was useless.

"It is foolish," said one, "to keep this Ambassador Muchslash. All of us will lose our lives, and to no purpose. Let us give him up to the King, and save ourselves and the castle."

"I hesitate to do so," replied the Duke, "for I account him worthy of kinder treatment." His remarks were drowned by a mighty shout outside the walls, and the violent knocking of battering rams against the portcullis.

"The Globe of Calcas!" cried the besiegers. "St. Galba and the Globe of Calcas!" Down with Muchslash!"

"If this Muchslash, whom you so warmly champion," said the Chief Captain of the Ducal Horse, "is indeed such a wonderful person, why not let him to work to find the globe?"

"A bright idea," exclaimed the Duke. He sent a messenger to find the tailor, who, in the midst of all the din, was busily engaged in smoking a long pipe. Muchslash, when he was told that he had the choice of finding the missing globe or of being handed over to the enemy, said that he was driven to sheer desperation.

At his request the Duke called for all the retainers of the castle and had them pass Muchslash one at a time. The Black Dwarf, the Court Jester, the Major Domo, all the serfs and men-at-arms were carefully watched by the shrewd and ancient tailor, but in none of their faces did he observe signs of guilt.

"There are certainly two more persons," I saw them today in the courtyard of the castle," cried Muchslash, "yet I see no trace of them now."

Six men-at-arms were sent to make a thorough search of the building, and finally the two men and two women were found, the knaves known as the Handspring Twins. Balancing on their hands and their feet, and smiling the while as though life were a joke, the knaves came into the presence of the Duke.

"Have you," asked the shrewd Muchslash, "seen anything of the Globe of Calcas, which until recently was in the treasury of the King, who is now paying such delicate attention to the barbeque?"

The Handspring Twins turned over several times in the air, and then said that they had never heard of the globe for which Muchslash had so earnestly inquired.

There was, however, something in the expression of the knaves which aroused the suspicions of the tailor.

Taking from his girdle the magic shears, Muchslash whistled them thrice about his head, and then, before the assembled spectators, slashed the Handspring Twins in three directions. At the moment when Muchslash gave them this seemingly mortal wound the acrobats were bent over with their backs to each other and their hands on the floor. When the cut occurred their bodies fell into three pieces apiece. Gathering up the fragments, Muchslash calmly put the acrobats together again, so that they stood upright before the world, and behold! on the floor at their feet were the two halves of a gigantic globe. "The Globe of Calcas!" cried the astonished spectators, as the tailor joined the two halves, while the Handspring Twins, furious that the tailor had discovered their theft, leaped upon the globe and tried in vain to roll it from the room.

The sphere proved indeed to be the lost Globe of Calcas, which had for more than a year been sought in the remotest corners of the Kingdom of Freeland. How the tailor accomplished this feat will be seen by those who take the trouble to use on the picture of the Handspring Twins an ordinary pair of shears.

JUDAS REPENTANT

As she sat by the fire with her almonde—
This mite of a girl that I mean—
She was breaking the shells on the hearthstone.

When she gleefully cried, "Philopene!"
They were there, the two kernels together,
Brown twins in a cradle of oak;
Oh, would I eat one of them with her;
Who would not, with the way that she spoke?

"Yes! and 'No' for the trap that's to catch us!"
I asked, but the curls gave a shake
And the sweet eyes laughed up through the tangle:

"No, I think it's more fun 'Give' and 'Take.'"

All the long day she plotted to catch me;
She brought me the book I'd mislaid
And she asked me to hand her the sugar,
And she passed me the quince marmalade.

I confess that she 'most caught me napping—
She begged me to please hold her cloak:
"These old sleeves are so hard to get into!"
But her eyes were too full of the joke.

The daytime had gone and the twilight
Had deepened and darkened to gloom,
As I loafed there in solid enjoyment
By the firelight that danced in the room.

'Round my neck went two arms very softly,
Two lips pressed my own in between,
And she gave me a kiss; I remembered,
But too late! for she cried "Philopene!"

But that night when I bent toward her pillow,
To share in our good night caress,
She entwined my neck closer to whisper,
"It's—that kiss was—was—not fair, I guess!"

"A boy! What's a boy?" asked the others, in astonishment.

"Well, he's pretty hard to describe," said the inventor, "as there's nothing quite like him in heaven or earth. In appearance he resembles a bullfrog, in behavior a monkey."

"That sounds promising," said one of those present. "An animal like that ought to keep of the old gentleman's having been a little girl. And yet it was not so absurd as it sounded. The old gentleman himself, to be sure, had never been a little girl, nor his father, nor grandfather; but once upon a time, long ago, before little boys had been invented, the old gentlemen of that day had really been in earnest when they said: "Once upon a time, when I was a little girl." For, of course, as there were no little boys at that time there was nothing for the old gentlemen to have been but little girls.

And this was the reason that the old gentleman whom the children knew always began his stories by saying: "Once upon a time, when I was a little girl."

And now for the story of the way that little boys came to be invented.

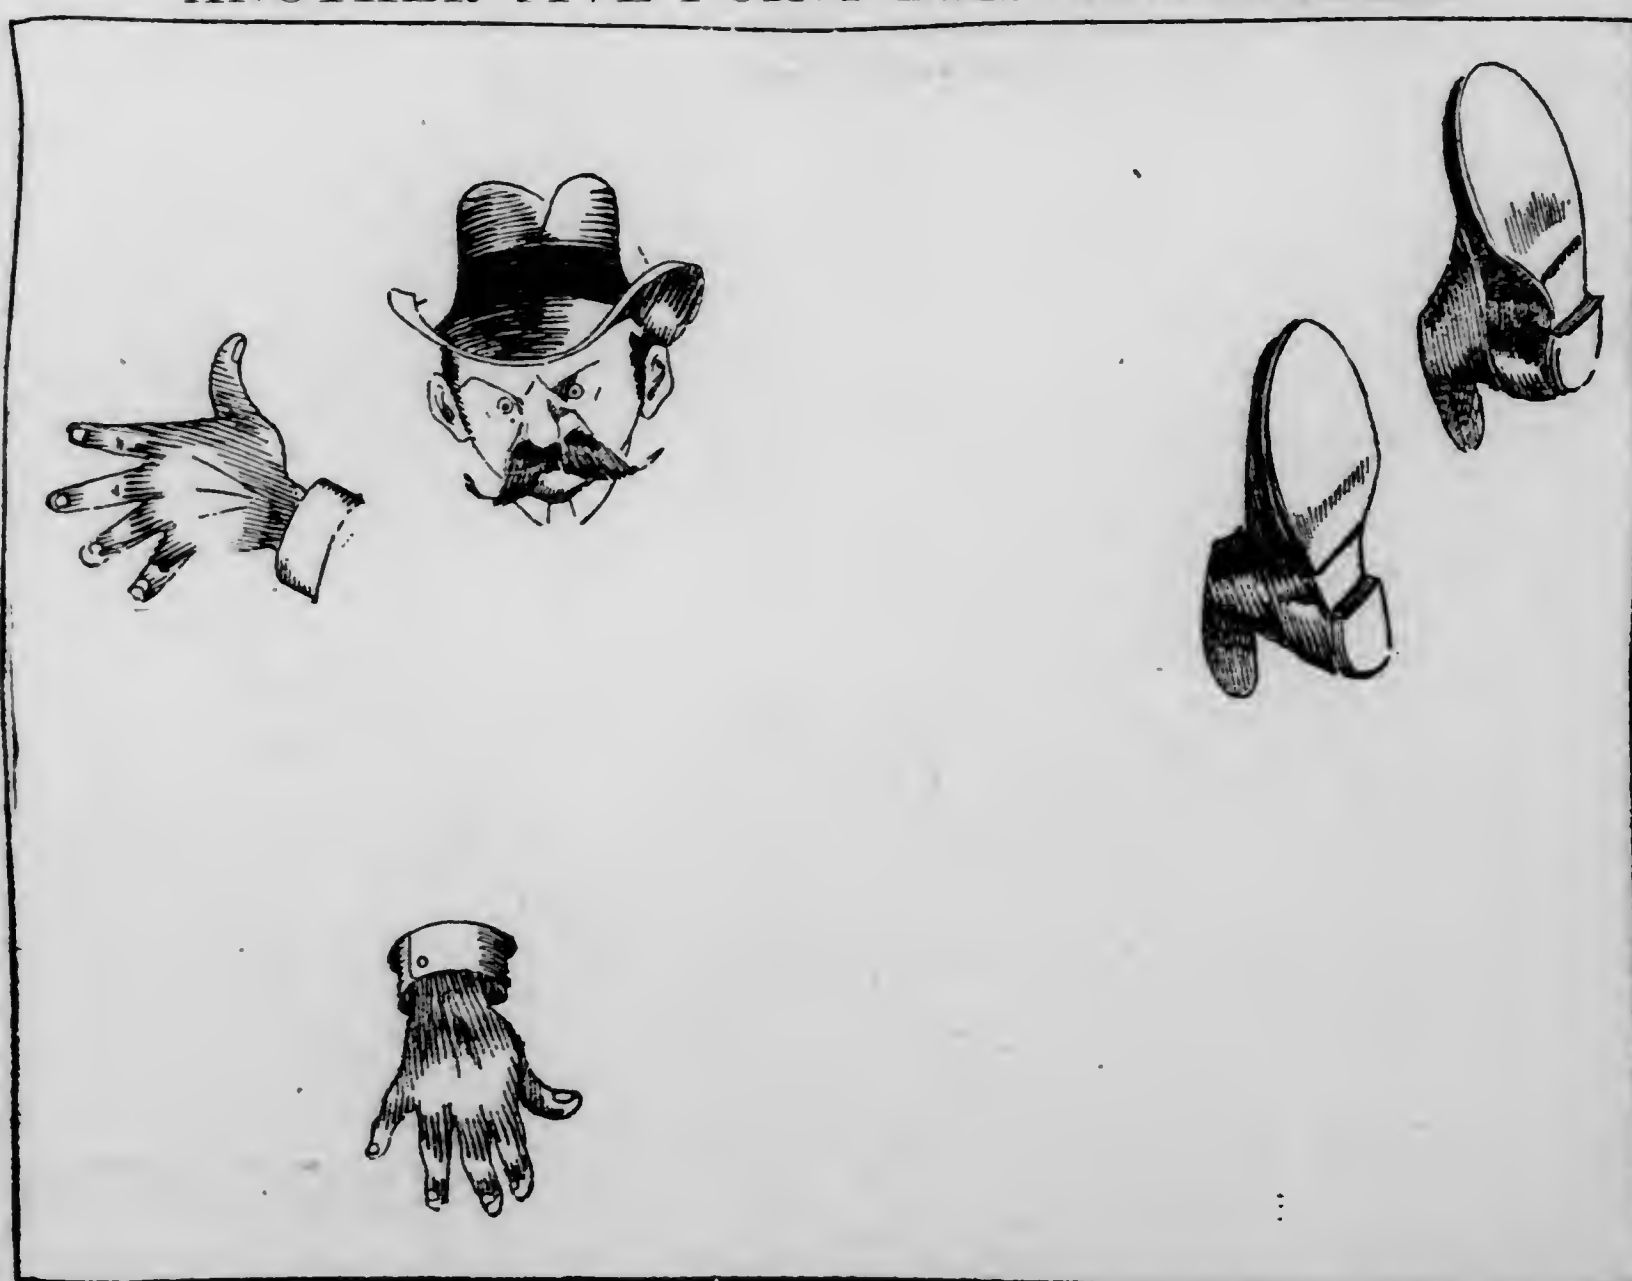

In the days when there were only little girls it is said that the world went along so smoothly that it was a delight to live in it. Everything was clean and orderly and in its place, just where it belonged; the beds were made in the morning as if by magic; nobody teased the cat or stoned the birds, and everybody was contented and happy.

At least, everybody should have been contented and happy; but, as you know, there are always dissatisfied people, who don't know when they are well off and who can't let things alone. Even in the days before little boys had been invented there were people of this sort, and they banded themselves together into an association, which they called the Anti-Monotony Club.

"Oh, my, what a tiresome old world this is!" they sighed. "Everything runs along so smoothly that nothing interesting ever happens. If people weren't so contented they'd be a great deal happier."

Now, unfortunately, there was a great inventor in the Anti-Monotony Club, and he set his wits to work to see what could be done to make life less monotonously pleasant. So, one day, when the members of the club were complaining, he arose and said:

A Little Jap In School.

BY LOUISE JAMISON.

Do you know how many letters the Japanese alphabet contains? Forty-seven. Think of it! And besides, there are ever so many word signs, some standing for a word and others for a whole sentence, which the little Japanese boy or girl must learn to know perfectly. When the young "Jap" goes to school in the morning he leaves his sandals outside the door. Then he goes in, bows very low to the teacher and takes his place beside the other children.

That is, he squats down upon a floor mat and begins to study with a book on his knee. A very queer book you would think it if you could see it, for it begins at the back, instead of the front, and the lines run up and down the page, instead of across it, as yours do.

The letters are curious, too. Very much like the Chinese characters we see on packages of tea. When he learns to write he does not use a pen, but a small brush with a fine point.

Neither is his ink like ours. Rather, it is what we call India ink. It is quite hard and comes in a long stick. To use it he first pours water upon a flat stone and rubs his ink in it. Then he dips in his brush and copies the letters which the teacher has made upon the blackboard. His paper is not smooth, but quite rough and porous.

He has a very easy time when he comes to arithmetic. He does not have long tables of pounds, shillings and pence, and he knows nothing about avoirdupois and Troy weight. He does everything by tens and he counts upon his fingers.

Then, too, he has the Soroban, and he does all his sums on it. It is a great frame, with wires running from top to bottom. On the wires are large wooden buttons, and it is only necessary to move these about to do any sum he wishes.

The Pat-a-go-ni-ans.

Have you ever heard of the folks who live in the land of Patagonia?

Where the sun comes up when it should go down.

And they cultivate ammonias.

Neither black nor red nor brown.

For they're five feet tall when they stand up.

And six when they sit down.

TWEEDLEDUM, TWEEDLEDEE AND THE OTHER TRIPLET.
They Visit a Circus.

Tweedledum—Remember me?
Ticket Taker—Yep, I remember passin' you on. Go on in agin'!

Tweedledee (ten minutes later)—Remember me?
Ticket Taker—Hey! I didn't see you go out agin'! Well, pass in!

The Other Triplet—Say, remember me?
Wow! You out agin'! Say! I'm losin' me memory, I guess.
Well, git in an' stay in!

The Triplets—And all this for 10 cents!

"And yet I remember the night you proposed. You told me to say the one little word that would make you happy for life."
"Yes, and you went and said the wrong word."

Uncle Sam—Well, goodbye, Winter! Considering the price coal has been I'm glad to see you go.

MANY DRINKS—ONE TREE.

James (who has come in contact with the same tree five times)—Losht! Losht in an impenetrable foresht!

I shall never wear this gown again, myself.
Why, I heard Mrs. Jolliere tell you it was beautiful.
That's why I think it must be a fright.

ECHOES OF "FAUST."

"Do you know, I overheard a woman in the next box say that you looked like Mephistopheles."
"Well, I've felt like the devil all the evening."

A LOAD OF TROUBLE.

Dolly Dimple—I read today that the men outnumber the fair sex so greatly in South Africa that they are considering importing a ship load of women.
Von Benedict—Oh! they're used to war down there, I suppose.

"A SLIGHT OVERSIGHT."

Doctor Monk—Well, this is the last time I'll give a hippopotamus laughing gas!

"Now, tell me, why is that hyphen placed in chicken-coop?"
"Please, sir, for the chicken to roost on."

MUMMIED HEADS OF PERU.

Some of the tribes that live in the northern part of Peru have very strange customs. One of these is to mummify and preserve the heads of such enemies as they have overthrown in battle.

The heads are first prepared by boiling until the skin can be easily stripped off. It is then stuffed with straw and dried in smoke until it looks like a mask or ebony carving.

The hair is well preserved and the eye sockets are filled with clay and painted. The teeth are extracted and worn as a necklace about the victor's neck. The strings in the upper lip represent the number of enemies the owner has made way with.

The heads are carefully guarded, as the women despise a man who comes home from war without at least one.

Witty Scotch Dame.

An old woman was recently summoned as a witness before a court in Scotland, and after she was sworn the judge, noticing that she spoke in a very low tone, politely requested her to raise her voice so that she might be heard better. Her reply was that she could not raise it conveniently and that she could not remove it altogether without taking off her hat. Upon the judge's polite suggestion that she take her hat off, but she answered that she would not do so, and that there was no law which could compel her to uncover her head.

At this the judge became angry and remarked: "My good woman, since you know the law so well, you ought to come up here and take your seat beside me."

"Oh, no," was her reply: "there are quite enough old women on the bench already."

Andalusian Spectre.

Upon a mountain in Andalusia quaint spectral forms are frequently seen. Whenever there is a heavy mist and persons are ascending the mountain they appear in all their ghastly splendor and sometimes so suddenly as to strike dismay into the hearts of those who see them for the first time.

Of course, it is all a trick played by the sun. When a mist partially shrouds the mountain the sun is naturally obscured and then he revenges himself by projecting the shadow of any person who is ascending the mountain until it assumes the form of a spectral spectre.

PRESIDENT'S GIANT PEACHES.

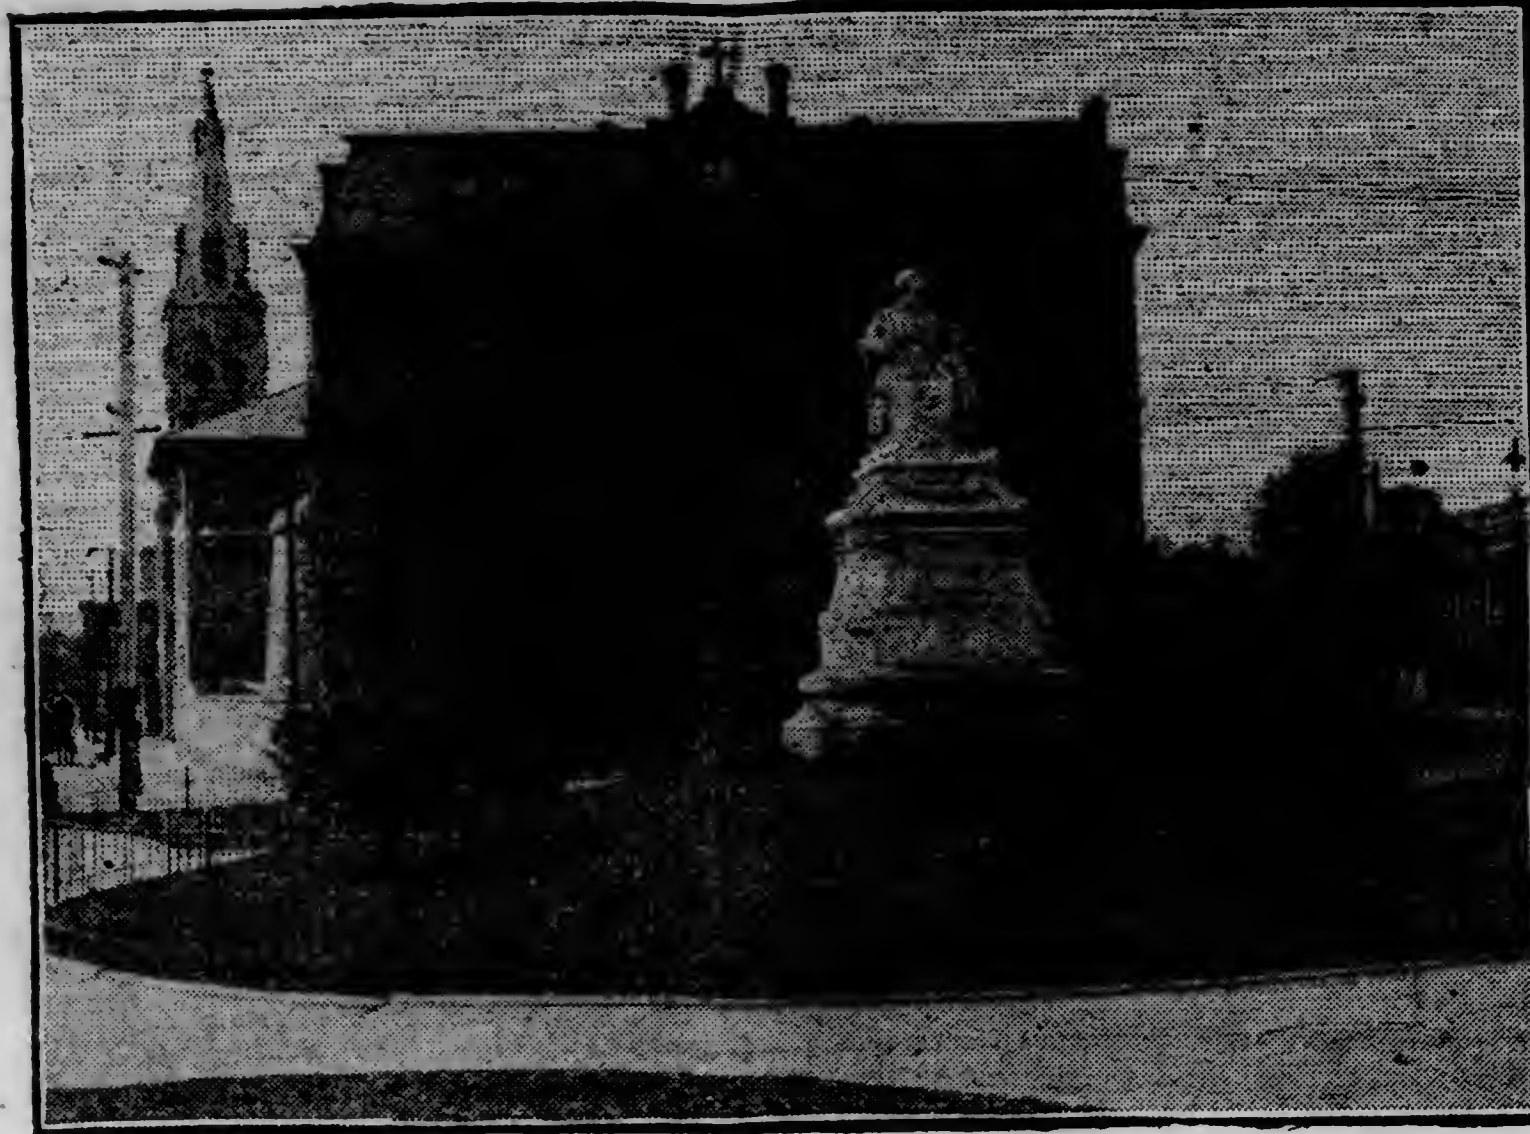

President Roosevelt was recently the recipient of an immense box of unusually fine peaches. These were sent from Elber, near Carlsbad, New Mexico, and on the box was the inscription, "Carlsbad's Compliments to President Roosevelt, the Great Friend of Arid America and National Irrigation." This fine fruit was gathered from a tree of the Elberta variety, growing in the orchard of R. M. Love. The product of these trees is out of the ordinary, and this particular tree, the largest and most prolific in the orchard, was appropriately named "Teddy's Tree." The fruit was ten inches in circumference and averaged "one peach to a pound," and was grown under irrigation.

This illustration shows "Teddy's Tree" with Mr. Love seated near the trunk, and the large box in four compartments packed ready for shipment to the President.

FIRST STATUE TO A WOMAN.

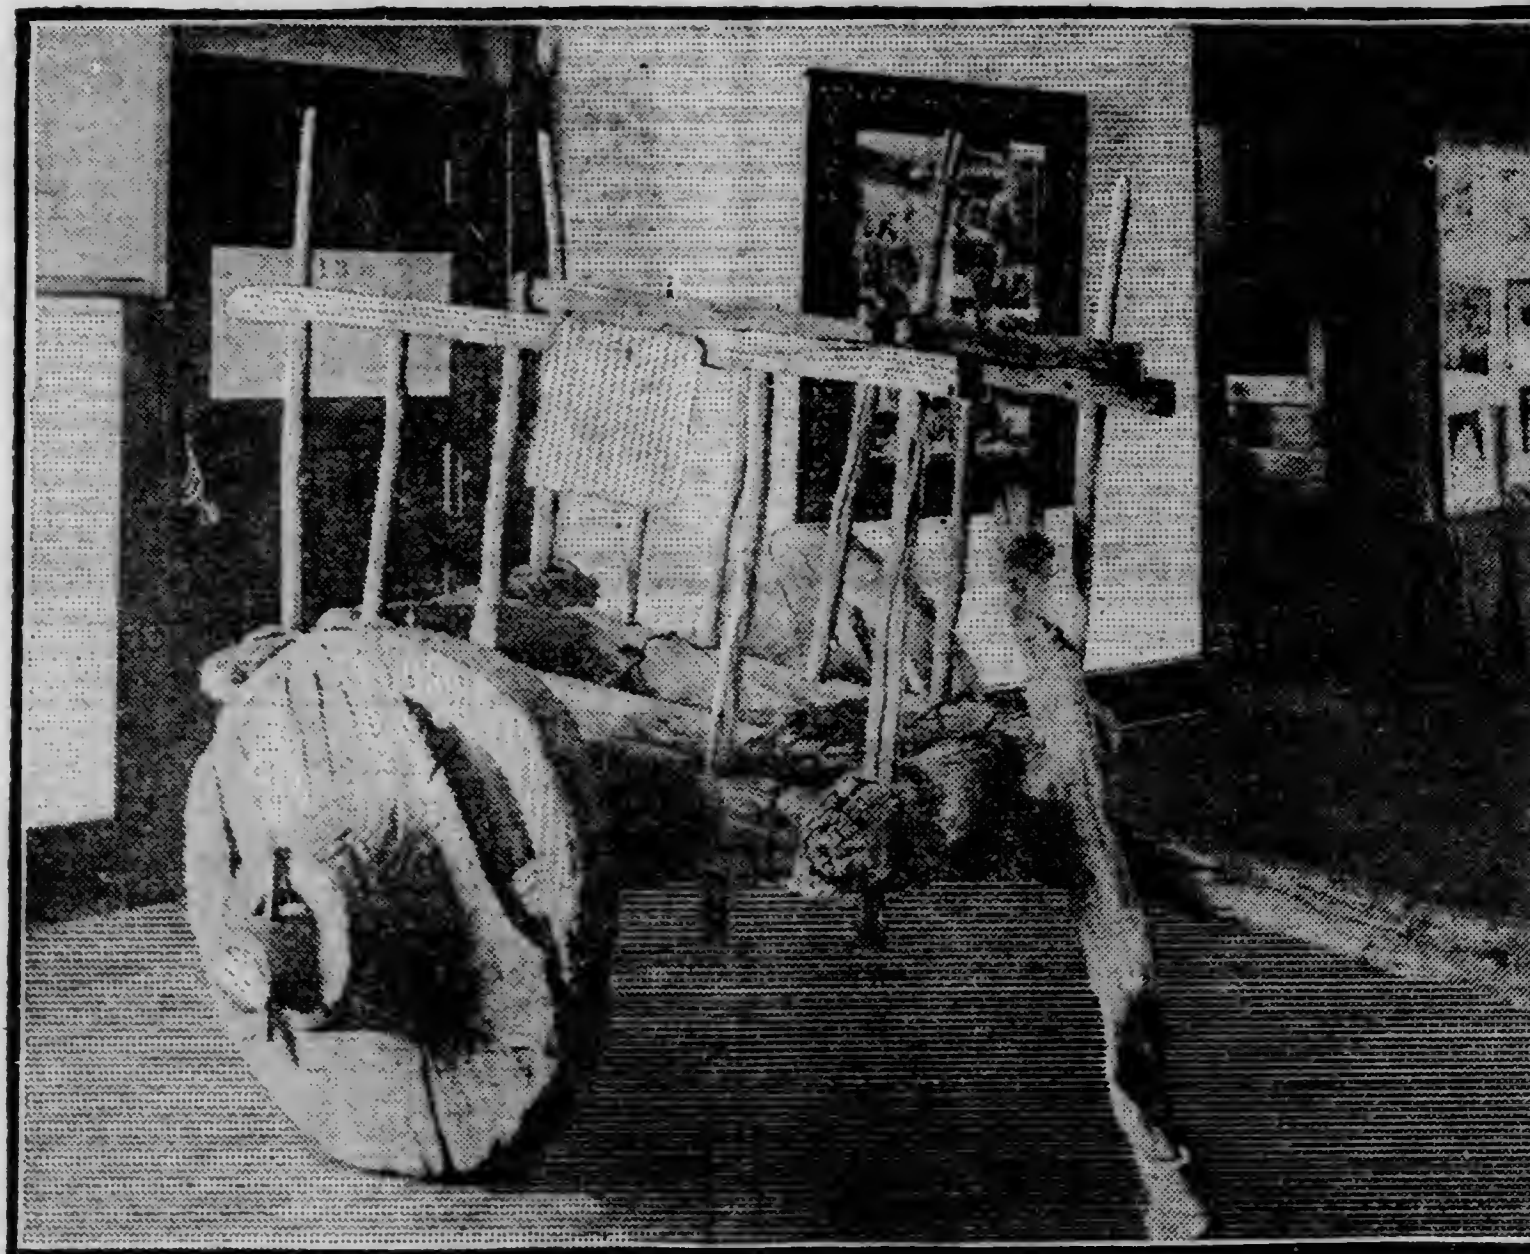

New Orleans bears the honor of erecting the first statue in honor of a woman in the United States. The monument stands in Margaret Place, at the intersection of Camp and Prytanis streets. It commemorates the character of Margaret Haughey, a woman reared in poverty, who accumulated a fortune in the milk and bakery business. She spent freely in the care and help of the poor in the city, and when she died her money was divided among the charitable institutions of New Orleans. Margaret was a young ignorant woman when she lost her little boy, and, although she had but servant's wages, she began at once to spend her money for the children of the poor about her. She used to carry bread and milk to the orphan asylum when she had no money to give, and no matter how little money she possessed she divided with those who were poorer than she. When she died the people of New Orleans erected this statue in her memory. Margaret is represented in the wooden shawl and cotton dress familiar to residents of the city for so many years, with a little child by her side.

ANCESTOR OF THE VICTORIA.

The cart in the illustration represents a type still in use among the poor of Mexico. Neither nails, bolts nor metal of any description is employed in its construction, each part being mortised and held in place by rawhide thongs so steeped in resin and twisted as to have the strength of iron bands. The bed of the carreta is made of open cross sections of mesquite wood as a solid bed of the necessary thickness, coupled with wheels of solid oak, 36 inches in circumference by six in thickness, would make the vehicle too heavy. When needed matting covers the open work of the bed.

The pole runs the entire length of the cart. The hubs are one with the wheels, the whole fashioned from circular slices of oak or sycamore trees. The draught animals, which usually are oxen—though it is no uncommon sight in Mexico today to see an ox on one side the pole and a donkey, one-third his size, on the other—are harnessed by means of the stick leaning against the front of the cart. The carreta in the illustration is reputed to be more than 200 years old. This is easily credible, considering the dry atmosphere in which it has spent its days. It recently made a journey of more than a hundred miles.

Wind in a great storm blowing at sixty to seventy miles an hour travels about 6,000 feet a minute, and exerts a force up to twenty-four pounds to the square foot.

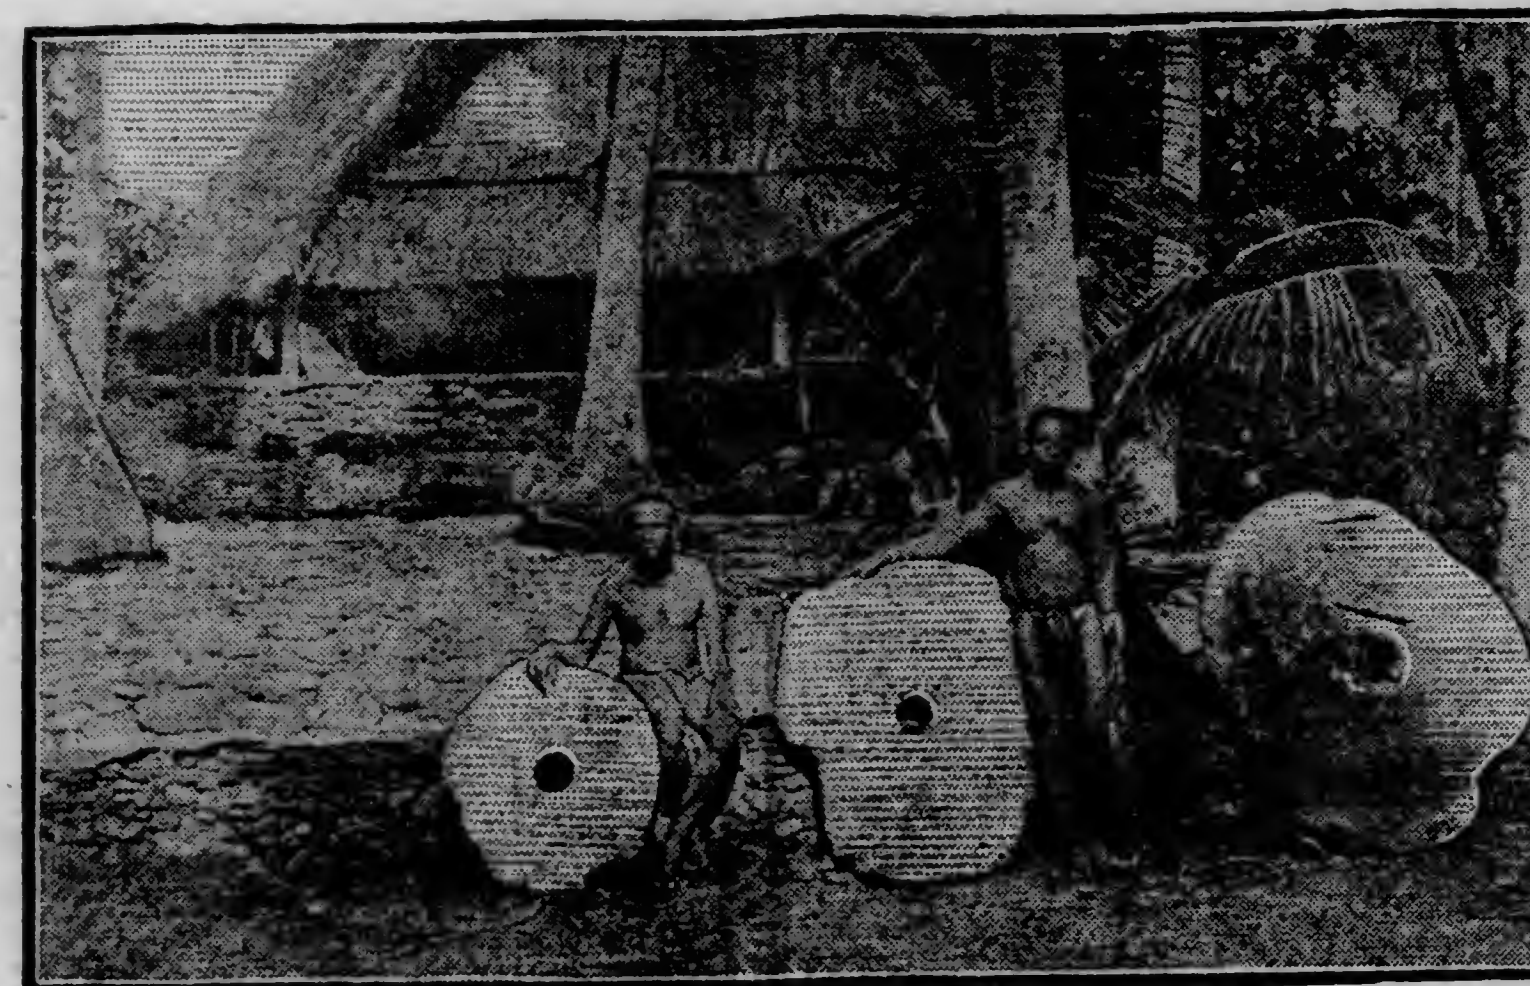

COINS TWELVE FEET IN DIAMETER.

The most remarkable money in the world is used on the island of Yap, in the Caroline group. Three pieces of it are shown in the accompanying picture, each of them being a single coin, perforated through the middle. Coins of this kind are sometimes as much as 12 feet in diameter and vary in value according to their size.

They are circular slabs of limestone, and form a most unenviable medium of exchange. A man who had extensive business debts to meet would need a whole fleet of canoes, or, perhaps, 10 yoke of bullocks and a wagon, to transport his specie. Generally speaking, however, this stone money is not moved about to any extent, the great disks or wheels being kept outside the houses of the rich men.

In mining, thirteen cubic feet of ordinary gold or silver ore are generally allowed to the ton and twenty cubic feet of broken quartz.

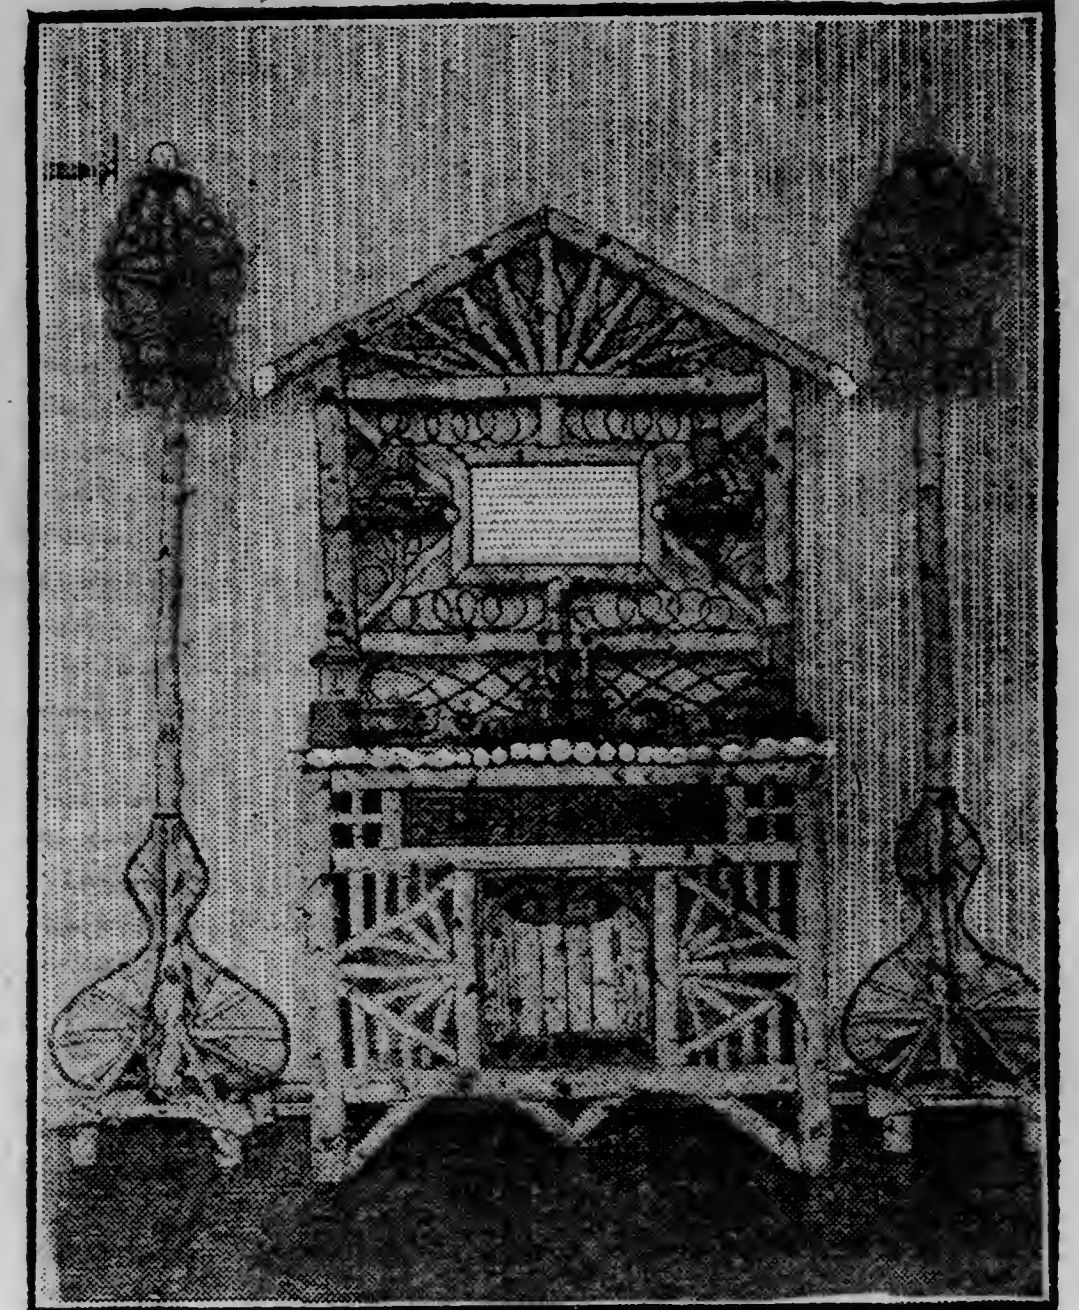

AN ODD RUSTIC BUFFET.

This rustic buffet was designed and made by H. C. Somers while sojourning for three years in the Catskill Mountains out of 417 pieces of natural white birch and wild grapevine, spruce, elm, pine and hemlock. The framework is made of wild grapevine, that grows in abundance around the tall pines on Blackhead Mountain, four miles southwest of Calvo, and the silvery white birch was cut out of the low lands lying between Purling and Round Top Mountains.

All the elm, spruce, pine and hemlock used for filling in was cut from the trees growing on top of Gay Head, near South Calvo. The draw is covered with pine and hemlock, and the knobs are hand made, of elm, gathered from High Peak, near East Windham, 3,500 feet altitude. The lampstands on each side of the buffet are made of the same material, and, when lighted up with a red gloved lamp, give a most beautiful effect to the dining-room.

The service seen on top of this buffet is likewise made of the most beautiful pieces of different woods. The time consumed in making the three pieces of work was more than four months.

TINNED FROGS.

Each year sees new inventions to the angler, some sportsmanlike and some unsportsmanlike.

An enthusiast has devised a process for pickling live minnows. He gets them in bushels and soaks them in his preparation. They do not lose their substance or color and are as tough as leather.

He puts them up in squat glass bottles securely sealed, containing from 12 to 20 minnows, according to size, and sells them at a lower rate than is paid for live minnows at the fishing resorts.

Some anglers object to them because they are dead, but minnows which are put upon the hook alive only live a little while. Indeed if the strongest club be fastened and sunk or cast in cold water, it will be dead inside of five minutes, and from that time until it is taken from the barbs by a successful forager the angler continues to fish with a dead lure.

The inventor, of course, makes a secret of his process, but a chemist ought to be able to detect it without trouble. When this is done there will be no reason why an angler should not put up his bait in the autumn and keep it over until the spring, taking the water in June supplied fully with minnows in bottles. Frogs in tins and dragon flies laid away in layers.

These things will prove a great convenience, as it is often difficult to get frogs or minnows at the resorts, and the inexperienced man who goes out to catch them for himself is apt to have only his labor for his reward.

China Fiddles.

The latest invention in the domain of ceramics is the manufacture of violins and mandolins from porcelain. A well-known manufacturer of the Meissen ceramics and porcelain organs has invented a process for the manufacture of violins and mandolins from clay. Some violins have already been completed, and the inventor has applied for letters patent for the same in different countries.

Under this process the violins are cast, and every violin is guaranteed a success and to be unexcelled for producing music. The latter quality constitutes precisely the chief value of this invention. The porcelain body, it is claimed, is better able to produce sound than a wooden one, since it co-operates in the production of sound, making the notes soft and full.

Dead Asked To Act.

Some physicians were recently discussing the question whether a person who had been guillotined continued to suffer after his head had been cut off, and at last one of them said that there was a very simple way of learning the truth.

"A man who has been guillotined," he explained, "cannot talk and answer questions, for he has lost his head, but a bell can be put into his hand and he can be requested to ring it if he really suffers after the execution has taken place. This is a simple request and no one of ordinary intelligence will refuse to comply with it. All that is necessary is for a few physicians to call on the condemned man before he is guillotined and to explain what they want him to do."

Lightning clouds are seldom more than 700 yards from the earth.

WHERE MEN WEAR COMBS.

The traveler in India is surprised to see that men wear combs in their hair much more than women do. A Cingalese gentleman wears what we know as the circular comb and a very ornamental black comb of tortoise shell to gather his curly locks together. He wears a full beard also, but his servant must trim his, and is only allowed to wear the circular comb.

Australia and New Zealand have 60,000,000 sheep, which is just one and a half times as many as the whole of the United States possesses.
